We Dedicate

— this edition of the Moundbuilder to the residents of Southwest Kansas whose loyalty and support have made it possible for Southwestern to enjoy the success which has been hers for more than half a century and which will continue, with their help, for years to come.
Foreword

The 1938 Moundbuilder is an attempt on the part of the staff to capture in tangible form some of the fleeting impressions of campus activities and personalities of the year now drawing to a close.

In it we have endeavored to use material which will preserve the individualities of the several organizations, rather than to present mere data.... We have used group photos in an effort to avoid undue stiffness and formality. These are supplemented by snapshots calculated to stimulate a reminiscent chuckle and to make the incidents—and accidents—of these memorable months permanently vivid.

It is with a sincere wish for your enjoyment that we present to you within the covers of this book a resume of a glorious year at Southwestern.

The Student Council

The aim of Southwestern is to fit her students to fill capably their places as scholars, business people, and leaders of their generation. One phase of this broad aim is met through the opportunity for self-government and legislation offered by the Student Council.

Each class elects its delegates to this representative assembly which meets regularly to discuss and act on matters relative to student life at Southwestern. With the advice of their faculty sponsor, Dr. Penrose Albright, and under the diplomatic leadership of our student president, Bob Youle, the Council has this year enacted regulations on the expenditure of funds for various collegiate activities; introduced a new feature on the annual college program, Brother and Sister Day, when the students on this campus play host to their brothers and sisters of high school age; directed all-school functions; and supervised student assemblies and elections.

The Student Council has responded with resourcefulness and sagacity to their task of giving Southwestern a student life which is democratic and rich in opportunity for enjoyment and achievement.
Personnel Council

The Personnel Council was organized in the spring of 1933, going into effect in the fall of 1934. It was set up by W. P. Reese, then dean of men, and was capably carried on this year under the direction of Dr. William Plum, dean of men, and Chalcea White, dean of women. These two faculty members were assisted in the counselor work by twenty-four upperclass men and women, who were selected because of their interest, good characters, and personalities.

Each counselor is assigned a number of freshman students, and it is his duty to cultivate their friendship, help them with their personal problems, and to instill in their minds the ideals and standards of the college as early as possible. Besides his duty to his particular group, the counselor also seeks to aid any student who is having difficulty in getting settled into the routine of college life.

During the spring of this year, each counselor and his group were entertained at the Plum home by Miss White and Mr. Plum. Two groups met together, one group of men and one of women. This enabled the new students not only to become better acquainted among themselves, but gave them a chance to meet the deans in an informal way.

A project which fostered a great amount of interest on the campus was that of the “Charm School”, in which students were taught various ways of developing a more pleasing personality. The Charm School was under the direction of the Women’s Councillor group. Six meetings were held, two of which were open to men. Talks were given by Winfield residents on manners, dress, neatness, courtesy, and similar subjects.

Although still in its infancy, the Personnel Council has already made great strides, and shows promise of being of more value in the future.
The Moundbuilder

A "back to the form movement" was attempted this year by the Moundbuilder staff on your book, by endeavoring to create new interest with renovation and hold it with practicality.

The changes appear throughout the book. The pictures and words by which a yearbook fulfills its purpose are still here.

As does every yearbook staff we hope that this Moundbuilder is just a little better than any of those of previous years.

In these pages we have tried to depict the "History of Southwestern, 1938". How well our purpose is fulfilled will be left for you to judge. Just remember—the book is published, not for criticism, but for your enjoyment.

Each staff member has played an important part in the publication of this book. Some, through extra time and interest, have helped more than others, but all have worked toward a common goal—the publication of a Moundbuilder that is your year at Southwestern. We hope you like it.
The Collegian

Journalism at Southwestern offers as much chance for student initiative as does any activity on the campus. Although the department itself is not large, ample opportunity for practical journalism is offered in the publication of the students’ newspaper, The Collegian.

For over forty years The Collegian has recorded students’ activities and served as a means to acquaint the Southwestern supporters with the school. The past year it has been used as an important part of the publicity work, 200 copies of each issue being distributed among high school libraries in the Southwest Kansas Conference.

The editor and business manager are chosen by the Publications Committee after consideration of written applications. Staff members are chosen by the editor and business manager.

Assisted by a staff of seven, Lena Anderson, as editor, and Raymond Broadie, as business manager, have put out the 1937-38 Collegian. Miss Helen Dooley was faculty sponsor.

Pi Gamma Mu

Mere thought became significant reality with the outgrowth of the national social science fraternity, Pi Gamma Mu, from a suggestion made by Dean Leroy Allen, then head of the department of economics, at a meeting of Southwestern students majoring in that field, in April, 1921. The suggestion was that a general social science honor society be established, and that one college from each of the forty-eight states should receive an invitation to form one of the charter chapters of the new society.

The plan was well received, and as the movement was begun, seventeen colleges by the early fall of 1921 had signified their approval by agreeing to establish charter chapters. By dint of much hard work on the part of national officers and leaders, the number of organized chapters mounted steadily, and at the national convention in Atlantic City in December, 1937, was determined as one hundred twenty-five. The membership at that time was nearly 23,000.

Thus, from unpretentious beginnings in Room 23 of Richardson Hall, Pi Gamma Mu has become an organization of national significance, recognition, and influence.

The aim of Pi Gamma Mu is the promotion of a scientific attitude toward all social questions and the stimulation of an intense and lasting interest of college and university students in the study of society. Members of the organization represent every field included in social science in its widest sense. Wilbur Ritter is president of the local chapter.
Delightful cultural, social, and educational advantages are offered to English majors and to others interested in literature by Southwestern's English Club.

The monthly meetings of the organization afford a gracious pause for aesthetic enjoyment, removed from customary confusion of campus activity. Musical selections, book and magazine reviews, and informal talks dealing with the various divisions of literary interest and accomplishment form a delightful diversion. Tea is served at the close of each program. Iris Mulvaney, senior, presided at the meetings.

Tangible evidence of the literary proficiency of Southwestern students is shown in the collegiate publication, “The Fledgling”, in which poetry and prose selections are included. This booklet, diminutive in size, is nevertheless distinctive in content, and represents notable attainment in the field of creative writing. This year’s edition, the second since the initial one in 1934, is dedicated to the memory of Elizabeth Ann Archer Stodzing. Several of her poems form a fitting introduction to the small volume. Peggy Wright, a junior, edited the publication this year.
Grace Church Choir

Presenting a number of special Sunday evening musical services during the year, as well as providing the musical background for Sunday services at Grace Church have been the interests of this student choir under the direction of Luther O. Leavengood, Dean of the School of Fine Arts.

The personnel of this choir consists of A Cappella members and other students in the fine arts department who fulfill a major requirement by singing in a Winfield church choir.

Outstanding interpretations of interesting anthems and a greater unity of effect were achieved by this year's choir under the excellent leadership of Dean Leavengood.

Miss Grace Sellers, an instructor in the fine arts department, has for many years offered her services as organist for the choir.

Robert Ames is student director of the choir and takes charge in the absence of the choir leader.
Epworth League

Working in unison toward a program of Christian development, the College Epworth League, under the leadership of Darrell Peter and Marjorie Parsons, has made it possible for students to reach a new high in developing Christian leadership among themselves.

Membership in the League is open to all students and during the school year the total attendance is exceedingly high. With the assistance of outstanding speakers the cabinet has provided interesting and varied programs.

Completing his fourth year as pastor of Grace Church, the Reverend Alvin W. Murray has done much to foster interest in spiritual life on the campus of Southwestern. This year the Reverend Mr. Murray was added to the faculty as instructor in philosophy.

Assisting in the church as supervisor of the League and Sunday School, Heber Miller has given valuable aid to these two departments throughout the year.
Orchestra

Following a joint recital with the A Cappella choir on May 24, the Southwestern Symphony Orchestra will have concluded a year of successful concerts.

The orchestra of this year has continued on an even higher level of interpretation, performance, and interest, under the direction of Dean Luther O. Leavengood. The repertoire of the orchestra which included mostly works of Beethoven, Mozart, and Handel, along with selections from modern composers, was made doubly interesting because of the fact that Dean Leavengood had spent the previous summer attending the Mozart Academy of Music in Salzburg, Austria.

While in Austria he attended lectures on orchestral conducting by outstanding European conductors and he did much research work on the traditional interpretation of the Beethoven and Mozart orchestral scores. One of the numbers played by the orchestra, the Symphony in A major by Beethoven, was especially studied by the director.

Concert appearances of the year included: an early fall program with Dorothea Flanagan at the piano; a concert during the annual Piano Music Festival in February, with Darrell Peter and Mrs. Alberta Buhrman, pianists, as soloists; appearing as an orchestral background for the thirteenth annual presentation of Mendelssohn's oratorio, "Elijah", given by the Winfield Oratorio Society; and a concert during National Music Week in May. Soloists with the orchestra for this occasion were James Bock, violinist; Darrell Peter, pianist; Adelaide Badell, harpist; and Mrs. Philo Woodell, flutist.
The A Cappella Choir

The A Cappella Choir of Southwestern College is one of the most popular musical organizations on the campus, and is nationally recognized in all musical centers. The choir is in its twelfth year of organization, and during those twelve years has sung in cities the size of Kansas City, New York, Little Rock, and Denver, and has made shorter trips every year through the south and middle west.

The repertoire of the choir includes many types of music, ranging from liturgical motets sung in the original Latin to the works of the most recent composers. Although the music of the choir is chiefly religious in nature, consideration is given secular numbers and Negro spirituals. The varied program of the choir makes it possible for the student members to receive excellent training in all branches of the choral art.

The choir alternates long and short tours every other year, giving the communities in the vicinity of Winfield an opportunity to hear the choir. The tour this year was the long tour. The choir sang in Kansas City this year before a warmly appreciative audience, and was one of the three choirs in the United States selected to sing before the Music Educators' National Conference at St. Louis. Music critics praised highly the work of the choir.

Professor Melvin H. Geist directed the choir for his second season. Professor Geist is an able director whose work has won wide acclaim from prominent musicians. The choir has won further national recognition this season under the excellent leadership of its director.

Officers of the choir are: president, Earl Dungan; business manager, Clark Moots; secretary, Mattie Grace Trumbull. James Spoon was elected student director, and Loyd Elliott was appointed publicity manager.

Band

Under the direction of Professor C. O. Brown, the Southwestern College Band is probably the busiest organization on the hill. Football games, pep chapels, civic concerts, initiations, basketball games and many other duties fall upon this group.

The marching band, under the leadership of Delmar Seivers, drum major, was very popular. The group showed excellent training, and its exhibitions were marked by the unusual control displayed by the leader, the response to command by the group, and the rank of five attractive twirling drum majors, who added much to the appearance of the band.

The concert band, under the capable baton of Professor Brown, also completed a successful season. Three trips were made throughout the school year. Besides a trip to Harper, the band made a trip to Pittsburg, giving concerts at Cedarvale, Sedan, and Coffeyville, in addition to playing at the football game between Pittsburg and Southwestern at Pittsburg. The appearance at Coffeyville included a broadcast over station KGGF, and was considered the highlight of the concert season.

The program of the concert band was well balanced. It included humorous readings, incidental solos, and featured a saxophone quartet in addition to the usual classical compositions.
Jinx Janes

Amid myriad wildly cheering fans at every Southwestern game, jaunty bell-hop hats, uniforms of crisp white and loyal purple, and general enthusiasm render the Jinx Janes pep club easily discernible. The name of the club itself is a tribute to the venerable Spirit of the Jinx, which by its very presence through the years has inspired S. C.'s gridiron gallants and brilliant basketers to victory. The purpose of the organization is to emulate that spirit as far as possible.

The traditional enthusiasm with which the founders of the organization endowed the club in 1935 has been kept alive to a laudable degree in '37-'38 by its forty-nine older members and eleven pledges, who combine to fill the membership of sixty specified by the democratic ideal of Jinx Janes. General activity was highlighted by rush week, from the initial pow-wow, pro and con pledges, to the culminating chili celebration at the Gypsy Trail Tea Room, and by the Jinx Janes’ assembly presentation of the hyper-hysterical drama, “Who Killed Southwestern’s Pep?”

These vital and vivacious “rimsters” were headed this year by Betty Caffrey and Jane Craft. Pat Ball acted as cheerleader and general promoter of pep.
The Southwestern Organ Club

The Southwestern Organ Club, with sixteen charter members, was organized in 1934. It was agreed it would be primarily a study club, with only those studying organ eligible for membership. The founder, Mrs. Redic, was chosen president and has served in that capacity since its organization. Meetings occur on the second Monday of the month and are held at the home of the president in order to have access to an instrument.

The club adopted the following resolutions to raise the standard of organ playing: to intensify interest in the organ as a church and concert instrument, study and present representative works from the literature of organ music, acquaint the organist with hymns and services of all churches, and promote a harmonious feeling among organists.

Every club program has been intensely interesting, and four have been open to the public. In February of 1938 the club was privileged to bring G. Criss Simpson of K. U. to Winfield for an organ recital.

Lectures by guest speakers have made up each January program when ministers and choir leaders are guests. By this means the club learned of the choirs and cathedral schools of England, great hymns of the churches, the Catholic, Episcopal, and Lutheran service and music.

A program of folk music was given, and two programs featuring organ and piano duets. In honor of the 250th anniversary of Bach and Handel, an evening was devoted to their works.

Easter has been the theme for each April, as has Christmas for December, with those holding church positions furnishing the programs. Also through these members the club has endeavored to aid in commemoration of St. Cecilia's Day, November 25, by sponsoring special services of hymns in their churches. Many American composers have been studied, including Rogers, Buck, Nevin, Shure, Edmundson, Skilton, Brase, Gaul, Diggle, and Clokey. "Moonlight over Nazareth", an Easter composition, was dedicated to the club and president by the composer, Roland Diggle. Another, "Winter Sunset", came in manuscript form from the composer, Garth Edmundson.

With a membership of twenty-three students, each trying to promote the aims of the organization, the Southwestern Organ Club has completed another profitable year of study and fellowship.
Kappa Rho

Displaying signs of "vigor, vim, and vitality" seldom emitted by a group of college students is the distinction won by Kappa Rho Pep Club in their first year on the campus at Southwestern.

This club was organized in the spring of 1937 by a group of enterprising young men who felt that another year of school life should not pass without an organized men's pep club to add the needed harmony to the two girls' clubs already formed. It was agreed that there should never be more than twenty-four members chosen from the four classes, and that these members would endeavor to stimulate pep at rallies and games to the best of their ability. Social functions were to be held from time to time to foster interest in the organization.

From the first of the year Kappa Rho has been very much in evidence. Arrayed in snappy, white sweaters with a purple Greek insignia, the club met in a body at all athletic games. In addition, several parties were held where the members and their guests, in an informal way, struck up enthusiasm among themselves. A "Sweetheart Banquet" held near the close of school is the final activity of the club.

Officers for this year were: First semester president, Al Schwint; second semester president, Clark Owens. Bob Fleener was in charge of all activities, and Morrison Foster was club cheerleader.
The Leneans

Going on the road, setting up a stage in all sorts of places, doubling in different roles, all these familiar things in the life of a traveling actor are part of the life of several Southwestern students.

Southwestern's traveling actors and actresses are the Leneans, the dramatic religious organization formed in 1927 at the suggestion of President Kirk. Each year the players present their drama on the average of thirty times in churches throughout the Conference. They began the past season early in December and ended with the annual long tour during the Easter vacation.

Each fall try-outs are held to select new members in the cast. The group is unique among the college organizations in that it is entirely self-supporting. For this year's production several new costumes and pieces of scenery were added.

"The Slave Maid of Israel", a play based upon the story of Naaman and his being healed by the help of a slave girl, was presented this year. It is a long dramatic play which proved one of the most popular the group has given.

Miss Edith Dielmann of the college faculty directs the Leneans. The following are members this year: Herbert Hendricks, Paul Boles, Harold Herd, Elizabeth Little, Gene Speirs, Evan McCall, Kathryn Shuster, Edith Niles, Enla VanNatta, Robert Green, and Richard Leftwich.
Membership in Campus Players, honorary dramatic organization, is one of the most sought after attainments that any student in school can accomplish. This society has been functioning regularly twice a year for the past eighteen years, giving its contribution of the best in Southwestern stage productions.

Under the capable leadership of Miss Helen Graham, head of the dramatics department, the players always plan a balanced program, offering a tragedy and a comedy and alternating modern and classic drama in their two yearly productions. The fall play is offered on Homecoming Day, and in the spring the play is given on May Day. This year the players gave “Flowers of the Forest” and “Captain Applejack”.

Campus Players operates with no idea of profit, and is entirely self-supporting; but it strives with each production to add something of real value to stage equipment and costumes. This year they contributed new spot-lights, which have helped the stage by giving a much larger variation of lighting.

Members of the group are chosen from promising dramatic students, who have taken part in society and Little Theatre plays. Membership is subject to a probation period of one semester, during which time the prospective actor must appear in a Campus Player production and serve in some staff position.

On stage the members of this group simulate personalities ranging from a gifted and cynical young genius, to an English vicar with a mind as narrow and uncompromising as a one-way alley, and back to a roister-doistering pirate complete with nautical jargon and gold earrings. But off stage, roles are dropped, and each Campus Player becomes just himself, a genuinely “good trouper” playing and working for the good of the company.

“The play is the thing”, and each member, whether he is stage manager, a principal character, or an off-stage noise, does his part so that it contributes to the artistic effect of the show as a whole.
Physical Science Club
Pi Sigma Gamma

A reorganization of the Science Seminar which had become inactive during the previous year was carried out last fall by a group of science students whose desire it was to increase the interest of students in scientific papers and to give the members practice in presenting those papers.

Open meetings were held to all those interested during the first semester. After drawing up a new constitution with the start of the spring semester, membership was limited only to those with certain qualifications. There are two groups of members, fellows and members. The former group is made up of juniors or seniors who have a B average in all their studies. Members are those whose average is not lower than a C. Offices in the organization can be held only by the ranking fellows.

Meetings are held every Saturday afternoon at three. At that time business of the club is discussed and a scientific paper is presented by a member upon a subject of his own choosing.

Tea is served after each meeting by the club members with all the formality of the old English custom. Social benefits are noted "when everything stops for tea", and the members gather round for informal discussion of the latest events in science, cinema, news, government, society and whatever the conversation should happen to be.

Officers for the year were: president, Charles Hadley; vice-president, Fay Greene; and secretary-treasurer, Arthur Stauffacher.
Cosmopolitan Club

Interest was fostered in Cosmopolitan Club this year with the enrollment in school of foreign students and students who had lived in foreign countries.

Several interesting speakers were obtained from outside the school. The remainder of the programs were in charge of members, who told of their experience in other lands. Kenneth Strother of Winfield who has spent several years in the army was secured to speak on one program, and also gave a talk in chapel.

Ruthie Sheldon is president of the club.

Social Science Club

To keep abreast of current affairs in the social science field, fifty interested students in that department make up the Social Science-International Relations Club.

The Social Science-International Relations Club is the merger of two clubs by those names. The combined group was headed second semester by Norbert Mahnken. Social Science elected Wilbur Ritter president the first semester, and International Relations Club had Ivan Chatham as president.
Gamma Omicron

Twelve hours' credit in home economics and an average grade of C are the requirements for membership in this home economics departmental club. Programs at the bi-monthly meetings are on topics of special interest to those in the field of home economics. Lela Lippoldt and Marlys King were presidents.

Kappa Omicron Phi

The climax of a busy year for members of Kappa will be the National Conclave in Santa Barbara, California, June 10-11, which all the members and Miss Chalcro White are planning to attend. Members are selected on the basis of leadership, initiative, and scholarship from the upper 20 per cent of the home economics majors. Marguerite Molz served as president for the past year.
Inter-Society Council

Inasmuch as the societies on the hill form a major portion of its social life, the Inter-Society Council is one of the most important student administrative groups. Through this group the rivalry between societies is directed into that sort of friendly emulation which provides an incentive to higher standards and attainments through intersociety competition. During the year this council regulates rush week activities, and sponsors the inter-society play contest, two of the most important activities of the year.

Builderettes

The ideal co-ed is an all-around personality—one striving for perfection of mind and body. Through the program of this energetic group who have taken their name from the proud tradition of Southwestern, these ideals are furthered among the women on this campus. Theirs is a code of comraderie, fair play and good sportsmanship which is instilled in their activities in sports and elsewhere. With Miss Lillian Cloud as sponsor and Marlys King as president, the Builderettes have added another year of achievement to their record at Southwestern.
Pi Kappa Delta

The Delta chapter of Pi Kappa Delta, National Honorary Forensic Fraternity, is very active under the direction of Dr. J. Thompson Baker and his assistant, Clark Owens. Membership in the fraternity is based on active participation in debate, oratory, and extemporaneous speaking. The group this year attended the national tournament, as well as the state and local tournaments. Several hundred debaters from ten states were on the Southwestern campus for the large tournament sponsored by Dr. Baker. Officers for the year were Robert Youle, president, and Lucille Robbins, secretary.

K. K. Pep Club

Besides displaying the pep and enthusiasm which make their club one of the best known on the Southwestern campus, K. K. members are leaders in all of the varied phases of college life. Marked by its unusual unity of purpose and action, this social club endeavors to keep high the standards of the college. Each year the new members are chosen by unanimous vote to fill the places vacated by graduates and old members. Presidents were Earline Cooper and Florence McIntyre.

Student Christian Movement

The Student Christian Movement is an organization of students interested in promoting the spiritual as well as the social life on the campus. Three commissions form the nucleus of this movement: The Creative Leisure Commission, whose purpose it is to promote the use of leisure time creatively; the World Cooperation Commission, which studies world affairs; and the Personal Relations Commission, which studies the individual affairs of the students and attempts to answer them.

Pi Sigma Phi

Pi Sigma Phi is composed of athletes who have earned letters in any of the major Builder sports. Membership may be attained by competition in football, basketball, tennis, or track.

The purpose of the Pi Sigs is to promote high standards of citizenship, scholarship and sportsmanship among Builder athletes. Each year an award is given to the member who has succeeded in winning the highest scholastic average of the group. Honor is also paid to the person selected from the membership who best exemplifies the ideals of the fraternity.

Included in its activities are two events which stand out above all others. The first is the informal initiation of new members who have won their “S” in competition during the seasons preceding the initiation. This informal admittance to participate in the activities of the Pi Sigs is anxiously awaited by the members and dreaded by the pledges. This initiation is very rigid, having the distinction of being the most difficult on the campus. This year there were seven lettermen admitted to the fraternity, four from football, two from basketball and one from tennis.

The second event is the annual spring banquet for members and pledges, and their guests. With its elaborate favors, and decorations, this formal affair is one of the most popular of the spring banquets.

Officers are elected each spring to serve through the following year. The officers for the past year were: Chairman Woodard, Archon; Bob Whitsell, Vice-Archon; and Jack Daugherty, Secretary-Treasurer.
Development
A distinct change in the coaching staff opened the 1937-38 Builder athletic seasons, but in no way was the quality of cleanliness and sportsmanship in Southwestern athletics lessened. Don Cooper succeeded Wm. Moxney as director of athletics and head football coach. George Gardner, a former Builder athlete and for many years a successful coach, was secured to coach basketball. George Parker, a graduate of Washburn, was chosen to coach track and intramurals and assist in football.

With this staff Southwestern, although not as victorious in football as in basketball, kept up its name for clean play, and in basketball developed one of the best teams in the nation. A new cinder track is in the making, which promises to renovate the track prowess once held by Southwestern. A full intramural program is maintained, open to every student in school.

Under the direction of Miss Lillian Cloud, director of women's athletics, Southwestern girls have the privilege to join in a well-planned intramural program. The Women's Athletic Association is in charge of all the sports participated in by women. Points are given to each student participating in volleyball, basketball, baseball, tennis, badminton and ring tennis tournaments, as well as for hiking, keeping health rules, gym class attendance, and scholastic achievement. Membership in the W. A. A. pep club, Builderettes, is given to the winners of 300 points in this system. A white "S" sweater is given for 1500 points and a purple blanket for 2000 points.

A complete program has been arranged in men's intramural sports under Coach Parker. This includes basketball, boxing, wrestling, and tennis. Teams from opposing organizations compete for the Mossman intramural trophy, which goes to the team winning the most points in intramural competition. The three-time winner of the cup receives permanent possession.
Football

With Coach Don Cooper serving his first season as director of Builder athletics and head football coach, Southwestern succeeded in winning three of its nine scheduled games. Coach Cooper put forth the theory that freshmen cannot learn to play without experience, so at the expense of a low score, and maybe a game, he would insert his freshmen in the lineup in order that they might gain playing experience for next year’s team.

Southwestern started its season with a 7-6 win over Baker at Baldwin. The next game was also a victorious one for the Builders, who won a night game from the College of Emporia, 13-0. The next three games were reversed as far as the outcome was concerned. These were with Central Conference opponents and were lost: one to Hays, 28 to 0; Wichita, 26 to 0; and Emporia Teachers, 34 to 0.

Several hundred homecomers were on hand to see their Alma Mater win from the Haskell Indians 19-6; but this victory was short-lived as the team traveled to Russellville, Ark., and found out how football was played in “the sticks” to the tune of 54 to 0. The final conference game of the season was played at Pittsburg with Southwestern coming out at the short end of a 26 to 6 score.

Meredith Mayse and Ray Henry captained the team during the past season and Chalmers Woodard was chosen to lead next year’s team. Only two lettermen will be lost to the squad by graduation.
Basket Ball

Coach George Gardner opened his first season as coach of his Alma Mater with one of the best basketball teams that Southwestern has ever had. Among the prizes of the last few seasons of basketball, the team this year added a Central Conference championship, a Pan-American tournament championship, and a second-place cup in the strong Oklahoma City Intercollegiate Tournament to its trophy case, besides gaining recognition throughout the country as one of the outstanding teams of the season.

With three of the starting five of the previous season to build the team around, Gardner soon found the necessary men to fill in the vacancies. A freshman was developed to fill in at center, and a former letterman from Southwestern won the guard berth left open by the graduation of two men from last year. The reserves that Southwestern depended upon in recent years were for the most part lacking, leaving the brunt of the attack to be carried by the starting five.

These players, although losing their first two games, soon made it known that they were to be reckoned with. Hinshaw, at one forward, was "knits in the hair" of everyone he opposed. At the other forward, Lloyd Tucker, all-conference forward and leading scorer, was classed as one of the best players in the country. The center position was held down by Russell Briar, a freshman, who was chosen on the all-conference second team. Co-captain Harold Bratches, and Leonard Schiefelbine, both played outstanding ball, Bratches earning all-conference honors. Schiefelbine was exceptionally good on defense and rebounds.

The Builder season was opened by successive defeats at the hands of Oklahoma A. and M. and Kansas University, both games of which were played away from home. A short rest after the K. U. game gave Southwestern the needed strength to give Warrenburg the first defeat they had suffered in several seasons on their home court. Warrenburg later won the National Collegiate Tournament at Kansas City, and went to the semi-finals of the National A. A. U. Tournament at Denver, losing to the championship team by four points.

On returning to Winfield the Builders engaged in a return game with K. U. and lost a thriller by four points. Entering the Oklahoma City Tournament, in which they were given little chance of placing, the team made an excellent showing. They won consecutively from Durant Teachers, Oklahoma City U., Tulsa, Arkansas University, and lost in the finals to Oklahoma A. & M. In this tournament Southwestern was given publicity that caused experts to rank it as one of the nation's top teams. Lloyd Tucker was unanimously awarded the most valuable player's trophy, and he and Hinshaw were selected on the tournament first team.
Basket Ball

With but little rest, the Builders' eagers opened the Central Conference with a decisive win over Wichita University, followed by three wins each from Pittsburg and Hays, two more from Wichita, and one from Emporia.

Not until only three games remained on the C. I. A. C. schedule for the Builders did they taste defeat in conference competition, and then, not until they had won the title. Playing at Emporia soon after the victories over Hays, the tired champs lost two games on successive nights. To close the home season the team won its tenth straight victory in three years from Wichita.

After receiving invitations to play in two post-season tournaments, and being considered for a third, the Builders accepted a bid from Mexico City to play in a Pan-American tournament being held there for the first time. At this contest Southwestern won all four games and a large trophy.

As the final statistics for the Central Conference season were compiled it was found that Southwestern had two players among the first five in scoring—Tucker and Briar, and that the Builders were at or near the top in team defense and offense. Fewer fouls, both in home games and away from home, were committed by Southwestern than any other team in the conference.

Track

Interest in track reached a higher peak this year than it has in several years at Southwestern. Effort has been made to raise funds to build a new track around the football field and although it is not likely that this will be successful for this year, the cinder track is almost assured for the near future.

With the advent of the new running course come several promising freshmen, along with upperclassmen with from one to three years' experience, to make up the most promising track squad that the Builders have had in several seasons. Several dual meets have been won with schools in Kansas and Oklahoma, and the team always garners a good number of points wherever it goes. George Parker coached the team for the first time this year.

Intramurals

Tournaments in basketball, boxing, wrestling, and tennis were the main features in the intramural program this year. Interest was exceptionally high in every division, but basketball again proved itself the most popular sport in the curriculum. Coach George Parker had charge of all the intramural tournaments.

Eight teams were entered in the basketball tournament, making a total of over 100 boys participating. According to the system used this year, the championship was awarded the team obtaining the most points. In addition to the points given for winning a game, each team, win or lose, was given one point for each man participating in each game. This system stimulated interest, since it was to a team's advantage to play all the men it could.

Delphi succeeded in winning the Mossman Intramural Trophy for the third consecutive year, thereby gaining permanent possession of it. The Delphi Aggies exhibited a good brand of ball playing, and have the honor of being one of the few undefeated teams in intramural competition. During the season a team picked from three competitive Southwestern teams played a home-and-home series with an intramural fraternity team from Wichita University. Each team managed to win on the visiting court, Southwestern winning at Wichita by a 26 to 11 score and losing on their own court 28 to 20.

President

To the vision and foresight of President Frank E. Mossman, does Southwestern owe the major part of her success. Ever looking forward to the continued success of the school that he “made”, and earnestly believing that in her, youth will find a way, he has devoted much of his life to making a better Southwestern.

Each student is unknowingly influenced by the part played in his life by the character of President Mossman.

Dean

The educational philosophy of Leroy Allen has extended the progress and influence of Southwestern until it fulfills the dreams of the denominational college educators.

This knowledge is surpassed only by his interest in the students he serves.
Ever increasing efficiency and an outlook to future development caused the administration at Southwestern to introduce the present divisional system at the school. The system permits the closer relationship of the departments within a division, and a more compact association between the students of the different classes.

The Division of Social Science under the direction of Miss Ada Herr includes the departments of history, business administration, sociology, education and economics. Functioning in connection with the social science department are several organizations, the most notable being the Pi Gamma Mu, a national social science fraternity, and the Social Science-International Relations Club.

Membership in Pi Gamma Mu is limited to students who have an average of B or more in their social science studies. The Social Science-International Relations Club is open to all students interested in that phase of study.

Headed by Dr. Penrose Albright, the Division of Natural Science is providing excellent training for students in physical science. Included in this category are the departments of physics, under Dr. Albright; geology under R. B. Dunlevy; biology under Dr. Charles Burt; home economics under Chalcea White and Helen Evers; and mathematics headed by Dr. Plum; and chemistry under Professor Oneley.

Many men and women have graduated, who after advanced study, have gone out and succeeded in all phases of scientific study.

A science club was formed this year which makes it possible for the members to become acquainted with the work of students in the other departments. At each meeting one student would tell of his work in science.

The field of concentration which is open to the largest number of students is the Division of Language and Literature. This division under the direction of Dr. T. Reese Marsh, includes all English, dramatics, speech and language classes. Student organizations play a prominent part in this division. The English Club, with over forty English majors, holds monthly meetings which have unusual interest. Among its projects are a poetry contest, and a publication, "The Fledgling", which contains the creative writing work of the members.

The main dramatic organization is the Campus Players which presents two plays annually. Membership is limited to the best dramatic artists in school.

The Romance Language Club, sponsored by Miss Emily Ericson, has for its membership, students enrolled in courses in the romance languages.

Southwestern ranks with the first ten colleges in the country in forensic ability. This year several debate meets were held here under the direction of J. Thompson Baker, and the debate and oratory members participated in a number of other contests, including the National Pi Kappa Delta tournament in Topeka.
School of Fine Arts

Supplying musical talent for both local and out of town programs, members of the Fine Arts Department have completed a year of outstanding work. Under the direction of Dean Luther O. Leavengood, interesting concerts, and group and individual recitals have been carried out. The high standard of this department has been maintained throughout the year, and much credit is due the student musicians and their instructors.

Among the year's musical activities, the twelfth annual performance of Mendelssohn's "Elijah" by the Winfield Oratorio Society in April was the most eagerly anticipated and perhaps the most successful. Many of the members of the chorus are college students, and the orchestral background is provided by the Southwestern Symphony Orchestra. Dean Leavengood was director and Professor Melvin H. Geist was one of the soloists. Special guests of the concert were the 2,000 high school students taking part in the annual Inter-High School Music Contest Festival sponsored by the fine arts department.

Besides giving numerous programs in surrounding towns during the year, the A Cappella Choir, under the direction of Professor Geist, toured three states. The choir was especially honored to be one of a limited number throughout the country to be invited to participate in the National College Choir Festival at St. Louis. This festival was sponsored by the National Conference of Music Educators in session there at that time.

Included in the schedule of concerts given by the band this year were engagements in Pittsburg, Coffeyville, Cedarvale, and other towns throughout Southern Kansas. Pep rallies and athletic games are always a part of the band's repertoire.

The Artist Course brought to Winfield the nationally famous Vienna Boys' Choir, which was received with tremendous enthusiasm. The Piano Music Festival, instituted as an annual event by Professor H. H. Loudenback, was opened with an orchestra concert the first evening, with Darrell Peter and Mrs. Alberta Buhrman, pianists, as soloists. The winners of the contest were granted piano scholarships with Mr. Loudenback.

One of the most interesting musical organizations is the Organ Club. Founded by Mrs. Cora Conn-Redic in 1934, the club has grown each year and this year was one of its best. The club meets monthly at the home of Mrs. Redic, where the members study organ composition and playing.

Climaxing the year's activities was the observance of National Music Week, May 1 to 8, and the joint Orchestra-A Cappella concert the latter part of the month.

Thanks for the Memories

In the year of 1938, into a world filled with wars, deflated dollars, Charlie McCarthy, and a predominance of books on "How to Win Friends," and then "How to Live Alone and Like It," a confident group of senior students will leave "Sunset Hill", the home of the royal purple.

Members of this class have been active leaders in sports, fine arts, scholarship, church work, and campus organizations, and they leave only one bit of unfinished business for the juniors; that of furnishing pillows for the spoonholder.

These Builders carry with them, not only high ideals, but also knowledge and skill in the arts, personalites from college associations, and memories of: . . . the 77 in its varying roles . . . the aroma of the pine trees sifting down across the campus . . . successive years of freshmen whitewashing the "S" . . . taking, then giving: Initiations, roommate-ical attacks . . . old North's annual battle between chemists and musicians, gone forever after this year . . . pep clubs, societies, band, geology, and A Cappella, tripping the light fantastic . . . cramming (knowledge and food) . . . flare of torches against lofty columns at Mound building ceremonies . . . pep rallies . . . games . . . victories . . . hull sessions . . . Hazel Podunk . . . serenades . . . homecoming . . .

Homecomings when the class of '38 will return to the familiar and friendly campus where venerable Old North muses over the ever-changing pattern of successive classes. And may they carry away with them then, as now, the inspiration and challenge of the Southwestern tradition!

Junior Class

"All the world's a stage" . . . and with the approach of spring, 1938, we find the third portion of the four-act comedy-drama enacted by the junior class of Southwestern drawing to a close. The setting is traditional: the scene is graced by the picturesque decay of "Old North", the arduous ascent of the "seventy-seven", and the startling contrast of dark cedars against the rich warmth of Richardson's walls of native stone. The performance, which at the very beginning evidenced definite dramatic possibilities, has thus far been a delightful and amusing one to all participants, as well as to spectators.

In the initial act we witnessed the metamorphosis of each verdant newcomer into a veteran Builder. This was accomplished through a rapid succession of humiliations, including the process of society "rushing" and "pledging", following which the frosh's sensation of elevated social standing was speedily reduced to one of extremely painful sitting.

In act two, we marvelled at the enthusiasm—and apparent forgetfulness of their recent plebeian state—with which our sophomores inflicted said woes upon the subsequent crop of freshmen. During this act, a superlatively dramatic success is assured the performance, through the leadership of members of the cast in diverse divisions of college interests. Scholarship, athletics, and all organizations, whether pep, literary, religious, musical, or dramatic were among the fields enriched by the contributions of this versatile class. Spectacular high lights of this division of the play were the election of Virginia Moore as Moundbuilder Queen and Lloyd Tucker and Harold Bratches as members of the all-conference basket ball team.

Now, in the third act, we find the "dramatis personae" appreciably reduced in numbers, but by no means in prominence. Indeed, we find Kathryn Green reigning as Homecoming Queen, and another member, Bob Youle, head of the entire student body. Not to be forgotten, the aforementioned basket ball players captained a very successful team throughout the season.

The theatrical performance which we now watch with interest is all too swiftly moving toward the climax, one year hence when the presentation of deserved diplomas will ring down the final curtain on our comedy-drama.

Those three words carry a great load of significance. They not only indicate that the finished product is correct in form, lastingly beautiful and perfect in detail; but they also signify a vast background of intensive, intelligent service, based upon long experience. In the Midland office and plant largely the same youngish personnel which serves 1938 yearbook staffs served the staffs of twenty years ago. Rich in experience, they keep abreast of the times.

MIDLAND PRINTING COMPANY
Jefferson City, Missouri
To Don Coe and Keith Franks, who have served Southwestern well in a major way this year by their good work in building the 1938 Mound-builder.

It has been a pleasure to work for and with Don and Keith, and we wish them even greater success in the future.
