This worksheet is provided for you as a way to help you think about the costs you will experience during your study abroad. While completing the worksheet, begin with the costs that you know (airfare, housing, tuition). Then, think about what you will need additional money for (local and regional transportation, meals outside of home, books, sightseeing and entertainment, laundry and clothing purchases, souvenirs, phone calls, snacks, newspapers, airport taxes, medical expenses and emergency money). Finally, make a list of things you want to purchase before you leave.

Finally, make an appointment with your personal banker to discuss your plans to travel abroad. This person can talk with you about conversion and exchange rates, traveler's checks, using your ATM card abroad, credit card use, wiring funds, and amenities provided by credit cards and various traveler's checks. They may even be able to assist you with setting up a plan of action for a financial emergency. If something does happen, one long distance call to your banker could set the plan into motion.
