Kansas has always been at the center of environmental issues in the United States. From the Dust Bowl of the 1930s and the constant threat of tornado damage in the spring and summer, to the importance of the Ogallala Aquifer to Kansas's agriculture and the state's potential to harness wind power, Kansas is situated at the nexus of the powerful natural, environmental, and economic forces, making it the ideal location to host The World We Have Imagined: Literature, Nature, and the Environment conference.

The World We Have Imagined Conference provides an opportunity for US and international scholars to exchange ideas on the relationship between Literature, Nature, and the Environment. The conference papers will focus on the idea of the environmental imagination, imaginary worlds, and imagined futures.

Some of the areas that are going to be explored include:

- Ecocritical approaches to literature
- Nature Writing and other representation of the Environment
- The Picturesque
- Animals and Wildlife
- The Environment Reimagined
- Utopias and Dystopias
- Urban Landscapes and the Environment
- Climate and Weather
- Environmental justice
- Environmental issues in the Mid-West
- Local environmental Narratives
