77 STEPS in a Southwestern College Education

Richardson Hall

Our President

THE man who has made Southwestern. He came to this college as the youngest president in the United States in the year 1905. In thirteen years of hard work, he built Richardson Hall, raised two hundred thousand dollars endowment, and placed the college out of debt. He left S. C. to become president of Morningside College in Sioux City, Iowa, in 1918. Returned in 1931 to clear the college here of another four hundred thousand debt. Has reduced it to one hundred and ninety thousand, and hopes to balance the books by 1940. He has also asked for and received an extra thirty-five thousand dollars endowment.

Division of Social Science

WITH a view to increasing the efficiency of Southwestern College, the administration introduced the divisional system in the fall of 1935. The successful functioning of an educational institution requires the integration and coordination of its various groups. With this aim the committee in charge grouped into one division those subjects which were similar in nature, method, and content. By such grouping it was found possible to increase the degree of cooperation among departments within a division, and also to provide greater opportunity for correlation among the divisions.

The three divisions established were: Language and Literature; Natural Science; and Social Science.

The Social Science Division, headed by Miss Ada Herr, is composed of the departments of Bible and Religion, Economics and Business Administration, Education and Psychology, History and Political Science, and Sociology.

A study course listed in the catalog for the department of Bible and Religion reveals the purpose of that department to develop an appreciation for Biblical literature and its personal and socio-ethical values; to form habits of careful thinking in the realm of religious problems; to challenge an inspiration that will deepen and broaden personality and make it vital in serving the present age in the light of the highest ideals possible to human kind.

The department of Education not only renders service in helping students to acquire an adequate understanding of the most recent educational processes, but through its placement bureau it performs a most valuable service in fitting prospective teachers in positions where they are enabled to render the maximum of service.

The History, Economics, Business, and Sociology departments have a unified purpose which they are trying to attain from their various angles of approach. They believe the study of human relationships is a matter of strategic importance at the present time. Since this is an age of unprecedented material development, which has put almost unlimited power into the hands of man; and because we have a highly individualistic philosophy, and an ethic of relativity; and because of the uncertainty which always accompanies a highly transitional state of society; we believe that thorough training in a disinterested study of problems of human relationship is a crying need.

The various departments in this division unite in giving special opportunity for a clearer understanding of religious, educational, political, economic and social situations, not only by lectures, special papers and text material, but also by class room discussion and by questionnaire methods.

Every effort is made to interest students in local and world problems through extra-curricular organizations. Of these the most effective are the Social Science Club, The International Relations Club, and the Pi Gamma Mu.

The Social Science Club, in its monthly meetings, emphasizes problems which are primarily national in character, reserving for the International Relations Club, which also meets once each month, the treatment of topics in the field of international relations.

The aim of the clubs is two-fold: Firstly to encourage students to read widely, think deeply, and to express themselves on social questions. To further this end, a period in each meeting is devoted to open forum discussion. On some occasions, special speakers are engaged to address the clubs. At other times, selected students direct the meetings in round table and panel discussions. Secondly, the clubs seek to bring to the campus, whenever possible, speakers whose lectures and personalities will provoke the thought and discussion referred to above.

The International Relations Club is part of a nation-wide organization of clubs, united in a movement for furthering international understanding and peace.

This movement is under the general sponsorship of the Carnegie Endowment of New York.

Officers of the Social Science Club for this year were: Wilbur Ritter, President; Robert Friend, Vice-President; and Ruby Sheldon, Secretary. The International Relations Club was headed this year by Leonard Cowan, President; Roland Elliott, Vice-President; and Viola Hink, Secretary. Professor Walter E. Boles, Jr., is faculty sponsor for the clubs. Each club meets once every month. Meetings were held this year on Friday evenings at seven o'clock in the Student Union.

For the nature and activities of Pi Gamma Mu see page 78 of this book.

MISS ADA HERR

Miss Ada Herr, head of the Social Science Division, and professor of Sociology has served Southwestern College for nineteen years. Students work hard in her department. It is not uncommon for them to write four comprehensive papers during one semester. But even this does not alter the fact that her classes are very popular and usually crowded. No student has yet been able to question the authenticity of her statements in class.

Division of Natural Science

A VITAL division in Southwestern is that of the Natural Sciences. Everyone realizes the importance of science and its contributions to modern civilization, and especially are Southwestern students conscious and appreciative of its importance as a result of the splendid training received in the division.

With Dr. Albright as chairman, the division which includes women's athletics, college athletics, home economics, chemistry, biology, mathematics and geology, is assuming its proper place in training students for future civilian leadership.

The general object has been to teach students about their physical selves and the material world in which they live, and to infuse in them the appreciation of science, its methods, and its effect upon humanity.

Southwestern trains professional scientists who will continue their studies in graduate school toward advanced degrees, such as Doctor of Medicine and Doctor of Philosophy. A large number of former students have become successful physicians, applied scientists, and pure scientists. A vast number have entered high schools to teach science.

Another activity of the division is to provide physical training for able-bodied freshmen and sophomores of the college and the regular varsity teams for inter-collegiate sport.

This division also provides two years of engineering training for those students who wish to continue their training in an engineering school the last two years.

Students are allowed to take part in the advancement of science by the contribution of original research. The plan is to give work to students in the department who wish to take honors in their major field. At present there are four students working for honors.

Professor Lawrence Oncley heads the Chemistry department. His courses are known for their exceptional thoroughness. The course in beginning chemistry is one of the most popular given in the college, as is shown by the large number of students enrolled.

The geology department is under the supervision of Professor R. B. Dunlevy. Each year the members of the geology classes take trips into neighboring states. A 1,600-mile trip, with Carlsbad workers graduated from the college have done their major work in one or both of these departments.

The Home Economics department is headed by Chalcea White and Helen Evers. It is divided into the departments of food and clothing.

The Biology department is headed by Dr. C. E. Burt. Pre-medical students, as well as those who wish to do advanced work in more purely biological fields, receive a large part of their training in this department.

The closely related departments of Physics and Mathematics are directed by Dr. Albright and Dr. Plum, respectively. A large number of the finest scientific

Six years ago five oil wells were drilled on the campus and four were good producers. Not until this spring, when the derricks were torn down, did the huge engines stop their spasmodic coughing. Everything is so silent now that students miss the creaking sound of the walking beams and the half-muffled "pfud" of the engines, as they go to sleep at night.

Division of Language and Literature

HEADED by Dr. T. Reese Marsh, the Division of Language and Literature provides one of the biggest fields for student participation of any department in the college. This division is made up of eight departments, co-ordinated to make a field of study and activity which is chosen by a large per cent of the students as a major.

Assisted by Mr. C. I. Vinsonhaler, Mr. Charles Herring and Miss Mary E. Wood, Dr. Marsh is in charge of the English department. Starting with freshman composition, the required freshman English course, an excellent foundation may be acquired for graduate work in English for those who wish "to follow knowledge like a sinking star". Those who are content with less profound, but nevertheless searching and thought-provoking knowledge, can find more than enough to keep them interested.

The English Club, the membership of which is made up of English majors and others interested, has presented several unusual programs this year, at its monthly meetings. Dr. Kenneth W. Porter, Southwestern history professor and a contemporary poet of note, provided an afternoon of first hand information on poetry writing. Perhaps the most unusual meeting was that held with Dr. Y. Z. Chang, of the University of Michigan, lecturing on the Oriental in English literature. A new feature of English Club work this year was the forming of small groups within the club for the purpose of more carefully studying poetry, drama, novels and creative writing.

Dramatic productions become truly dramatic and are given with a professional touch when presented on the Southwestern stage under the direction of Miss Helen Graham. The Campus Players, made up of the best stage talent in the college, present two plays each year. Among the most popular ones given recently were "Romeo and Juliet", "The Dark Tower", and last fall's production, "The Bishop Misbehaves".

Professor C. I. Vinsonhaler, freshman composition and Latin teacher, has become a means by which Southwestern students enjoy reading the Latin classics. French students are probably the most wide awake in class of any in school. When Miss Emily Ericsson addresses her would-be Frenchmen in class, she often expects them to reply in French, and that keeps one awake. Spanish classes are also taught by Miss Ericsson, and Miss Wood teaches German, in addition to freshman English.

The Romance Language Club, sponsored by Miss Ericsson, furthers interest in the Romance Languages. The membership is small, but the group holds informal, interesting meetings, and presents such unusual features as five-minute speeches in French.

Probably the most industrious people in the library on Monday and Wednesday nights are those seated around the table on which are stacks of reference books. "Procrastination is the thief of time"—the reason for the mad scramble in order to have a prepared library lesson. This course is one of the most useful offered at Southwestern. Assignments in which it is necessary to use the library tools carefully acquaint students with all parts of the library and its equipment.

This year, more than ever before, Southwestern justified its title of "The Debate Capital of the United States," when five debate tournaments were staged here under the direction of Dr. J. Thompson Baker, head of the speech department.

Forensics and speech courses are some of the most popular ones offered, and they provide a wide field for student participation. Evidence of this was the forensic tournament held here in December, in which 57 colleges from 10 states sent speakers. There were over 600 debate people here for the two-day meet.

The College of Music

MUSICAL organizations in Southwestern's fine arts department have won acclaim for the college in many ways. The band, orchestra, choir, string quartet and trio, as well as individuals, have contributed to make the department one of excellence. Dean Luther O. Leavengood, new to Southwestern this year, maintained the standard of work and improved the effectiveness of the department by his successful direction of the "Elijah" and his inauguration of the musical vespers services.

Perhaps the outstanding performance of the year was that given by the chorus of 450, orchestra of 50, and the four soloists in the annual "Elijah" under the direction of Dean Leavengood. Miss Georgia Graves, contralto from New York City, Prof. Melvin H. Geist, tenor, and Miss Ida Clawson Hunt, soprano from Winfield, appeared as soloists with Mr. Paul Oncley from New York, who sang the title role of "Elijah." The oratorio was given as the second number on the artists' course at the time of the Inter-High School music contests in March. This annual contest was the largest this year of any in the history of the event, with more than 2,000 students from Kansas and Oklahoma towns taking part.

Under the direction of Prof. C. O. Brown, the band this year has been an indispensable part of the school. Its concerts, in Winfield and other towns, are well attended, and it is always in demand for student pep rallies and assemblies. It plays at all football and basket ball games, adding pep and enthusiasm to the contests.

Southwestern's A Cappella choir is a group which has become an institution in the school. Since its organization the purple-robed singers have presented the best in unaccompanied choral music. They appear each Wednesday in the regular chapel service and go on tour once each year. Prof. Melvin H. Geist, also new to Southwestern this year, has directed the choir.

Prof. H. H. Loudenback's Annual Piano Music Festival attracts many accomplished pianists who compete for the scholarships of piano lessons offered the winners. The Symphony Orchestra, directed by Dean Leavengood, played two concerts this year in addition to appearances on other programs at commencement and high school senior day. The group of about fifty players has at its disposal the best in musical literature from the college music library.

Three numbers were offered on the artists' course this year, the first being the Mexican Tipica orchestra. These players, dressed in brilliant native costume, provided two hours of music and dancing which was unusual and artistic from every standpoint. Frank Mannheimer, English concert pianist touring in this country, presented a program displaying unusual technique and artistry as the final number on the course.

MOUNDBUILDER ♦

National Music Week was observed by Southwestern with six days of musical programs. The last of the musical vespers series was played on May 3. The following night a concert was presented by the Symphony Orchestra, and the next night Grace Sellers and Frances Ambrose played one of their popular duo-piano programs. James Bock, advanced student, appeared in a violin recital May 6. Under the direction of Prof. C. O. Brown a band concert was presented by the combined bands of Southwestern, St. John's college and Winfield high school. The concluding event of the week was the annual Piano Festival with about 300 pianists playing a program in unison.

My, how times does fly! It seems only yesterday that we first arrived on "Sunset Hill," and oh, what a thrill it was! The rush parties . . . the new teachers . . . the friendliness of old students . . . the football games, and all the joys of college—these were new and exciting to us.

A year slipped by and we were "sophisticated sophomores." We were the most important group on the campus then—we knew everything—to attend college for two more years would be futile, for what more could we learn? But fall came, and we began to wonder if we still couldn't learn something from college. We were hard-working juniors then, and knowledge, not grades, became our objective.

And now, we are seniors! Four short years have taught us how little we really know. We have learned many things. We have seen Southwestern grow and improve, and in our own small way, we have tried to contribute to that growth.

We leave, true Builders, proud of Southwestern and the things it has taught us. Among us will be found doctors, lawyers, housewives, and educators of tomorrow. And as we join youth the world over, we take with us treasured and vivid memories of our pleasant years spent on the campus of the purple!

The Juniors

IN THE fall of nineteen hundred and thirty-four about two hundred "green" freshmen took up the long trek to "heights of knowledge" on College Hill. Some dropped out after a year or so, to go into business or to take special work, but the nucleus of that group, enlarged by students who entered later, has come at last to the final stretch. They are about to become seniors!

The Junior class of the past year has been competently led during the first semester by Bert Keller as president, Dorothy Dieterich as vice-president, and Marguerite Molz as secretary-treasurer; and in the second semester by Dorothy Dieterich as president, Florence McIntire as vice-president, and Bill Ritter as secretary-treasurer.

Members of the class not only have kept up a high standard of scholarship, but have also entered into extra-curricular activities, as well as enjoying an active social life. The chief social function of the class is the annual picnic which was started in the Freshman year at the painting of the "S", and which has been continued as a spring highlight for the past two years. These picnics are always looked forward to with a great deal of anticipation, and they are unusually well attended.

The past three years have been enjoyable ones, but none would go back to former good times when they can envision themselves as the Seniors and leaders of next year.

The Sophomores

AS THE second year is about to be finished, which means that half of our college life is over, the sophomores continue to climb.

The first semester Raymond Broadie was president, Thomas Auner vice-president, and Kathryn Green secretary. Student council members were Alta Rogers and Carl Mettling. The second semester Carl Mettling was president, Robert Youle vice-president, and Elizabeth Little secretary. New student council members were Robert Youle and Gene Speirs.

We started the year's work by beating the freshmen in class day early last fall. This victory has been succeeded by many others during the year, as a brief review of our record will show.

We have made our contribution to the scholastic standing of our Alma Mater with a large number of honor students. We have been well represented in all organizations, pep, religious, literary, and musical.

We have outstanding representation in dramatics with the election of Marjorie Parsons and J. D. Krell to the Campus Players. One of our group, Virginia Moore, was elected 1937 Moundbuilder Queen and also president of her society the second semester.

It is in athletics that we are especially proud of our achievements. Woodward, Whitesell, and Daugherty played important positions on the football team and deserve due recognition. We think no one will deny our ability in basket ball and we are glad to say that the only two S. C. players to make the all-conference team were Harold Bratches and Lloyd Tucker, both sophomores. Most of the members of the winning intramural basket ball teams were sophomores.

This is only the score at the half, we hope to double it at the end of the game.

—EULA VAN NATTA

The Freshmen

Two hundred strong, we Freshmen thronged the halls of Richardson and North that memorable day, our first on Sunset Hill. And though we mustered all the worldliness at our command, crude inexperience stood out like a gravy spot on one's Sunday vest. But Time heals as many wounds as upperclassmen inflict polishing away the rough edges. Now they are history—the day the Sophomores dunked our lads like so many doughnuts in the Lagoon, the painstaking white-washing of the "S", the sting of the paddle, the humbling of every cocksure Freshman.

We emerged true Builders to carry on the duties of a new class at Southwestern. The first semester Marvin Tucker was elected president; Earl McFaddin, vice-president; and Dorothy Stevick, secretary-treasurer of the class. These offices were filled the succeeding semester by Ted Dieterich, Mary Ellen Brownlee, and Wendell Hays. During the course of the year members of our class have distinguished themselves by noteworthy achievements in athletics, music, debate, scholarship, dramatics, and social activities. They have made their contribution to campus life in all its varied phases. We as a class are striving to live up to the standards set before us by our predecessors, to entrust to those who follow us an even richer tradition of Southwestern, our Alma Mater.

—MARCIA HUBENETT.

Dear Tom,
You have been my best friend in college. I hope we can have many more experiences in which we can settle the world affairs and discuss "hot topics".
Love,
Wendell.

Southwestern's Society System

THE incoming freshman often asks the question, "Why are there no Greek letter fraternities and sororities on the campus of Southwestern?" Before answering that question it is necessary to delve into the history of the college itself to find the objections to such a system.

The first fraternity, the Sigma Nu, organized in 1889, was disbanded by the trustees of the college because they found it incompatible with the college system. No specific reason was given by them, except that they had investigated the situation and had decided against it. The members of the fraternity were given the privilege of renouncing the organization or leaving school. They left school, and as a result, the college had no graduating class in 1897.

From that time on there has been a constant demand on the part of the trustees that no fraternity or sorority be allowed to exist upon this campus. The students of that day, wishing to organize socially, were much in favor of literary and debate clubs. They were allowed to organize Literary Societies, which in a small way duplicated the social system of the Greek letter organizations on larger campuses.

There has been a long list of Literary Societies. Many changed their name from year to year by disbanding and reorganizing. But the four oldest organizations, the Belles Lettres, the Athenians, the Sigma Pi Phis and the Delphians have been active for over forty years.

There has been some question, of late, as to whether the societies are really literary or social in nature, and whether it is wise to continue with a limited membership chosen by the rush week activities.

Many think that a drastic change is necessary to put new life and power into the old societies. Others say that the societies are as strong as ever, and will continue to serve the students of Southwestern with a cultural, social and literary program of activities throughout the year.

Pi Sigma Phi

PISIGMA PHI is the Campus organization of lettermen. Membership is limited to those men who have earned letters in some major sport, football, basketball, tennis or track. To receive letters men must participate in a specified number of games, usually a majority of the halves.

It is a fraternity to promote among athletes high standards of citizenship, scholarship and sportsmanship. An award is given annually to the athlete with the highest scholastic standing. Each year the fraternity selects from among its members one who best exemplifies the ideals of the fraternity.

An important event each year is the initiation of the new pledges. This initiation is very rigid, having the distinction of being the most difficult on the campus. The pledges are tested as to their many attributes of courage, valor and ability to encounter danger.

Another highlight of the year is the annual spring banquet for members, pledges and the lucky ladies. This is probably the most elaborate banquet of the season. Favors, which are held in high esteem by the invited ladies, are exceptionally splendid.

Officers are elected at the annual spring election, their tenure of office being one year. Present officers are: Archon, Vernon Clark; Vice-Archon, Ray Henry; Sec.-Treas., Percy Traugott. The sponsors are Monypeny, Cooper, Poundstone and Brown.

Student Council

MOST important of all campus organizations is the Student Council, a representative group, the members of which are chosen in class elections. Its purpose is to initiate constructive student enterprise, to assist in maintaining a harmonious relationship between the student body and the administration, and to act with the administration in the regulation of various organizations and activities.

Such duties as the direction of student assemblies, all-school parties, pep rallies, student elections, and the giving of awards for scholastic achievement, belong to the Student Council.

This year, the group, under the efficient leadership of William Porter, student president, has enacted some very constructive legislation, and has been responsible for the inauguration of much-needed reform in the administration of funds allocated to the various activities.

Personnel Council

THE Personnel Council, first organized in 1933, consists of the Dean of Men, Dean of Women, director of women's athletics, head of the department of language and literature, and President of the college, assisted by twenty-four upper-class students. These students, selected because of their interest, good character, and personalities, help the Deans of Men and Women keep in close touch with freshmen by directing council groups of ten freshmen each to become orientated to the campus.

It is the counselor's duty to cultivate the friendship of each freshman in his group, introduce him to fellow students, direct him about the campus during the first week of school, encourage him to attend church and Sunday school, help him with his personal problems, and acquaint him with all college activities.

All records and communications are of a secret nature and are subject to the inspection of the counselors only. Any problems which arise are handled directly through the council and are not allowed to be talked about among students as idle gossip.

From a statement in the Southwestern Collegian for March 10:

Four years ago Mr. Reese assumed the duties of dean of men and has since developed a personnel department which is unique in personality development and guidance. The personnel work of this department has attracted the attention of a number of administrative officers of colleges of Kansas and other states, some of which have visited the Southwestern campus to learn more of the details of the work.

The Moundbuilder

Radical change made in size and content of the Student Body Publication

DIRECTED by Lowell Miller, the Moundbuilder took on new size and shape for 1937. A flash camera was used for months to provide the necessary pictures found in it. The whole plan was revolutionary, clear down to the celluloid cover. M. D. Holmes, the business manager, placed a copy in the hands of every student on the campus, a new high in yearbook production! It's different—how do you like it?

1. Here are Moundbuilder builders at work. A laboring crew of journalistic minded students who didn't know any better than to apply for staff duty.

2. M. D. keeps the books balanced, and wires Wilbur Clark in Kansas City for more rubber cement to mount the pictures.

3. Editorial writers and a photographer pose for a picture in the cluttered office. Their duty is to write copy which tells you why Southwestern is what it is!

4. Assistant Business Managers Keith Franks and Leonard Johnston. Keith will be business manager of the yearbook next year, and Leonard will manage the Collegian.

5. Dunbar was almost cut out of this picture (see his nose left), but he did his share of the work. It's lots of fun! (Sure, look who is sitting on the editor's desk).

6. Schwint got a screwy picture of the editor actually at work. He is working on the panel which appears on page 101 of this book. Check for yourself.

UNDER the direction of Miss Marjorie Thompson, editor, a permanent record of the school year's work is reviewed in the pages of this publication. Established 42 years ago, the paper is the official student publication of the student body. Eula Van Natta is business manager and Charles Herring is faculty advisor.

1. It's a week-end job to write copy and set up the type for the four-page issue. Thompson (right) doesn't rest until the presses start grinding out six hundred copies.

2. The editorial staff, hard at work, (a good pose anyway), getting out the features and departmental subjects under their management.

3. Assistant J. D. Krell and business manager Eula Van Natta look over the layout of ads with the "job man" at the Courier Press.

4. Editor Thompson hands over the last sheet of copy to the linotype operator Tuesday noon.

5. Van Natta and assistants map out plans for collecting ads and balancing the books.

6. Every ad has to be checked and recorded, and payment collected under contract agreements signed at the first of the year.

Pi Gamma Mu

Pi GAMMA MU, National Social Science Honor Society, was founded in 1924 by Dr. Leroy Allen, Dean of Southwestern College. The Southwestern College chapter, known as Kansas Alpha was the first chapter organized. Since that time the organization has grown until it now has one hundred and twenty active chapters in universities of the United States and its territories.

Membership in Pi Gamma Mu is limited to juniors, seniors, graduate students, alumni, and instructors, men and women who have attained a high degree of scholarship and have distinguished themselves in the study of social science. Requirements for student membership in the local chapter are twenty hours of social science with average grade of "B".

Dean Allen is now national executive secretary, and editor of the quarterly magazine, "Social Science". Dr. Charles A. Elwood of Duke University is National president. Mildred Pike is president of the local organization.

English Club

THE English Club exists for the benefit of those students who are definitely interested in the various fields of literature and composition. The programs for the monthly meetings are planned with chief emphasis on cultural and educational values.

This year, for the first time, the Club was divided into four discussion groups, which dealt with the fields of poetry, the novel, the drama, and creative writing, respectively. Each group was directed by a chairman, and met for study and discussion at the convenience of the members, these meetings being held in addition to the monthly general meetings.

Dr. T. Reese Marsh, head of the department of language and literature, is the sponsor of the English Club, and his work has been a very important factor in the service which the organization has rendered during recent years.

Dear Dr. Marsh
I think I first

Grace Church Choir

GRACE CHURCH CHOIR is made up entirely of college students who have been especially trained for the better choral work. Members of the college A Cappella Choir are required to sing in a church choir in addition to their regular practice, and most of them are found in the choir pictured above. Their work is of a superior quality, far above the ability of most church choirs, and the qualified members are active singers throughout their college career.

Under the direction of Luther O. Leavengood, former member of the Kansas City Philharmonic Orchestra, and dean of the College of Music at Southwestern, the choir has reached new levels of perfection. The organist for the choir is Miss Grace Sellers, outstanding young pianist and organist of the college faculty.

Special concerts are given for Christmas, Easter and at various times during the year.

Numbers by the string choir, women's trio, men's quartette and speaking choir have been used in connection with special services.

College Epworth League

THE Epworth League of Grace Church provides a Sunday evening worship hour for the young people of College Hill. Throughout the year, under the leadership of Robert Davidson and Darrell Peter as presidents, the League has taken a definite interest in the building of a better religious life for the students of Southwestern.

The outstanding feature of the whole year's program was the Quest Week services conducted by Rev. A. E. Henry of College Hill Methodist Church, Wichita, just before the Easter vacation season. These services gave the young people, and the older people as well, a reviving religious influence in their personal lives.

The Rev. Alvin W. Murray, with the assistance of Lloyd Harp, has always promoted the religious services at Grace Church in a manner which makes one feel that he is "at home with God." The attendance at church services and the Sunday School services has not declined during the year.

A Cappella Choir

ONE of the most popular musical organizations, nationally recognized in many musical centers, is the A Cappella Choir of Southwestern College. During eleven years the choir has traveled over twenty thousand miles, in cities the size of Kansas City, Chicago, New York, Little Rock, Tulsa, Wichita, and Denver, and in scores of other minor towns in the east, south and middle-west.

The group is characterized by excellent work at all times and has received enthusiastic praise by all who have heard it. Religious music is chiefly used in its program, but Negro spirituals and works of modern composers are included in the repertoire of this versatile organization directed by Professor Melvin H. Geist.

Membership to the choir is limited and is allowed only after students have passed qualifying examinations and have retained a good scholastic standing. Freshmen who enter at the first of the year are subject to immediate rejection if their work is not satisfactory. Usually a choir member is a member for four years.

The spring tour for the 1937 season was the short tour. Long tours and short tours alternate every year, allowing the communities in the near vicinity of Winfield to appreciate the work of the organization as do the other larger cities. The trip covered southern Kansas, and northern Oklahoma, during the ten days commencing with the Easter vacation.

Darrel Peter acted as president of the group, and Robert Ames directed the tour as business manager. Milton Stocking was student director.

Symphony Orchestra

THE Southwestern College Symphony Orchestra stands for the best in instrumental music the college offers to the public. Composed of fifty of the most advanced students of the College of Music, under the direction of Dean Luther O. Leavengood, the orchestra reached its climax with the rendition of the "Elijah," the annual presentation of the Winfield Oratorio Society. This big event is attracting state-wide attention as a community musical project. Just as other centers have become the authoritative producers of the "Messiah," the city of Winfield and the Southwestern Symphony Orchestra is making the "Elijah" the official presentation of Southwest Kansas.

The repertoire of the orchestra includes major symphonies, difficult minor works, and music by modern composers. During the winter a duo-piano concert accompanied by the orchestra, was given in Richardson Hall.

The competition for ranking chairs in the orchestra is keenly felt by students. It is the ambition of every violinist to occupy the place of concert-master. Mr. James Bock, student instructor in the college, has held that position capably the past season. Other principal chairs are prized by students who have studied long and faithfully with their major instruments.

The work of the orchestra is not to be measured in one season. Many graduate students, former members of the orchestra, are now teaching other students the style and technique or symphonic arrangements they were taught in Southwestern College.

The Leneans

STRIVING to present religious drama in professional manner, the Leneans have probably succeeded better than most of the college organizations in advertising Southwestern to the Southwest Kansas Conference. Since its organization in 1927 at the suggestion of President Kirk, this group has gained in popularity throughout this section of Kansas.

Beginning in late January the players present their play every Sunday until late in March, the season ending with an annual tour through Kansas towns.

Each fall try-outs are held to select new members in the cast that will present the play on the average of thirty times a season. Unique among college groups in that it is entirely self-supporting, the players consider it a distinction to belong to this dramatic group directed by Miss Edith Dielmann.

This year the play presented was "The Rose On the Dial" by Irving W. Arnold. It deals with the early church in the fourth century and according to reports from towns where the play was given it is one of the best ever presented.

The Campus Players - Best wishes you were swell Ruth O.

"THE Campus Players," honorary dramatic organization of Southwestern College, has, for seventeen years, done its best to present vital and interesting drama to its loyal audiences, who have considered the two yearly productions of the organization the "best in college dramatics."

The members of the organization, varying in number from eight to twelve, are chosen for their histrionic ability as shown in society and dramatics class plays. Membership is tentative for one semester, and the suitability of the probationer's talents to the needs of the group must be demonstrated by his participation in one Campus Players play, as actor and in some staff position. Acting ability, love of the drama, enthusiasm and faithfulness are the requirements for full membership.

The 1936-37 Campus Players are especially enthusiastic as they face the future—for the hope of a new stage with adequate lighting equipment gives them a glow that only those members who have struggled with the small and primitively lighted cubby of Richardson Hall can appreciate. They have done well in the past; may they attain tremendous success in the future.

Band

THE Southwestern College Band, under the direction of Professor Charles O. Brown, is a musical pep organization devoting its time and talent to the student body.

Supported by the student activity fund, its chief duty is to present an assembly program at a moment's notice, and strike up lively tunes for all pep rallies and pep meetings whenever called out by the Student President.

It's a familiar sight to see the students congregate on the sidewalk in front of the "O" and give a demonstration of what they would like to do to the enemy on the morrow.

Early in the winter, an All-School Carnival was held in connection with the student body, including all students in St. John's College, the Winfield High School, and the residents of Winfield to participate in the Halloween revelry. The profit of 125 dollars raised in this way was donated to the Band to buy new uniforms.

The Band always takes several trips with the football team during the season and makes one extended trip through Kansas towns, playing concerts for high school audiences.

Several times a year the radio station KFH in Wichita has invited the band to play a program over the air. This is usually done the evening before the final basketball game of the season with Wichita University.

Jinx Janes

THE Jinx Janes endeavor to keep alive the "spirit of the Jinx" at all the college games. They have their special reserved section near the center of the lower bleachers during the basket ball season. There you can hear them every game giving vocal encouragement to the boys in purple.

They have some snappy drills worked out for a parade at the half, and they certainly do look chic in their white sweaters, skirts, caps, and gloves. They are especially proud of a huge purple "kitty" they often display at the game. It is a painted portrait of the Jinx that hovers near to aid in a Southwestern victory.

There is a rush week every year, and a huge banquet in the spring. The job of keeping people cheering at the games is the work of Peggy Wright, Elsie Keimig, and Emavee Wright. Presidents were Lucille Robbins and Betty Caffrey.

K K Club

KK is the insignia of a small and select group of girls on Southwestern's campus who form one of the most remarkable pep clubs on the hill. Each year the number of places vacated by old members is filled with new girls chosen by unanimous vote. Within this group are the outstanding leaders in society, scholarship and organizations on the campus. It is the purpose of this club to foster a spirit of pep and loyalty to all athletic traditions of the college. It is up to each girl to make her contribution to a successful Southwestern year. Glee Young and Josephine Wilmer were presidents.

Builderettes

Only girls who have won 300 or more A. A. A. points are entitled to membership in Builderettes. The club was organized in 1927 by Miss Lillian Cloud and has consistently carried out a program for better athletic enthusiasm and friendliness among the women athletes of Southwestern. Virginia Benson was president for the year.

Student Christian Movement

WHOLESOME fellowship and the practical study of vital problems confronting the Christian youth of today are the outstanding features of the Student Christian Movement, an organization on the campus completing its second year. The Student Christian Movement is a merging of the Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A., and was accomplished by a group of delegates to Estes Park conference in June, 1935. Co-chairmen were Freda Nurse, Leonard Cowan, Dorothy Dieterich, and Keith Franks.

Pi Kappa Delta

Pi Kappa Delta is a national organization for the outstanding students of debate, oratory, declamation and extemporaneous speaking. Southwestern has a very active group under the direction of J. Thompson Baker. Miss Maxine Gilmore won first in the state in extemporaneous speaking. The annual national debate tournament held at Southwestern attracted fifty-seven colleges and Universities from ten states. It is Dr. Baker's plan to make Southwestern the debate capital of the United States.

ALTHOUGH there are no foreign students in the Cosmopolitan club this year, there has been a genuine interest expressed in the entertaining of such guests as Moni Sen and John Alexander at a dinner held in the Brettun Hotel. Arthur Chen also presided at a very interesting informal discussion. "Cosmo" was sponsored by Miss Emily Ericsson before her resignation in favor of Miss Mary Wood. Ruth Stewart was president.

Oxford Fellowship

Practical methods of reaching and interpreting Christian ideals have been studied by the Oxford Fellowship as the theme for the year. In accordance with this plan, a new form of meeting was adopted by the organization made up of student ministers and religious workers, whereby short talks and group discussions were given. Several members of the club held church worship services during the year. Frank Ebright was president, Martha McWilliams, secretary, and Ruth Stewart, program chairman during the year.

To act as mediator in case of good society arguments, and to promote friendship between them, to control the habit of personal rushing, and to regulate rush week itself, is the duty of the Inter-society Council. Dr. Marsh is chief umpire. This year they were faced with the problem of deciding the important issues of the struggle to change the literary societies to social societies, and the movement to include all students in school in the rush program of the six organizations.

Phi Epsilon Pi

Forty of the peppiest men in school form the nucleus of the male students' enthusiasm at the intercollegiate games. Organized in 1935, this club has kept the fans alive with their chatter, their pranks, and their flashy sweaters during the games at Stewart Field House. A good stiff paddle session is the best way to get into the club, and that bit of initiation is done in public for the delight of the gallery. ## Winfield Bus Service

AMONG the organizations on the campus, none affect the students more than does the Winfield Bus Service, operated by a former student, Elmer Z. Reeve. Two years ago Mr. Reeve introduced a complete new service with up-to-date motorized streamlined buses.

It is no disgrace to take a date on the 5c bus instead of the 15c taxi. In fact, when a student wishes to take his date for a ride, he boards a bus and keeps on riding for an hour or so. It doesn't make money for Mr. Reeve, but no one has ever heard him complain of the practice.

Most of "Speed's" drivers are students at the college. In this way he is helping put eight young men through college, by providing them with steady employment. For this and for many other reasons we wish to acknowledge the service Mr. Reeve is rendering to the college young people.

So, if you ever get to Winfield, be sure to ride the Twin Coaches to the College.

Popular Underclassmen

THIS year, for the first time, five members of the freshmen and sophomore classes were chosen by the student body as the most popular underclassmen of 1937.

Story of a Snap-shooter

A SNAP-SHOOTER once thought it would be fun to catch people in his little glass lens and hold them there forever.

Around he went, getting students in class, in showers, and under the basket. He saw the girls' dorm through the derrick, left Jane forever drinking tea (the "Three Cornered Moon" way). The President only smiled when the privacy of the girls' fitting room was exploited.

Snap-shooter left Jean Glenn with the wrong man, and Lee Hamm taking a picture that will never be finished. Oldroyd was nonchalant but Hubenett said a plenty. Studies didn't bother Tucker, he made high scores and ate apples. The girls had their fingers in the pie.

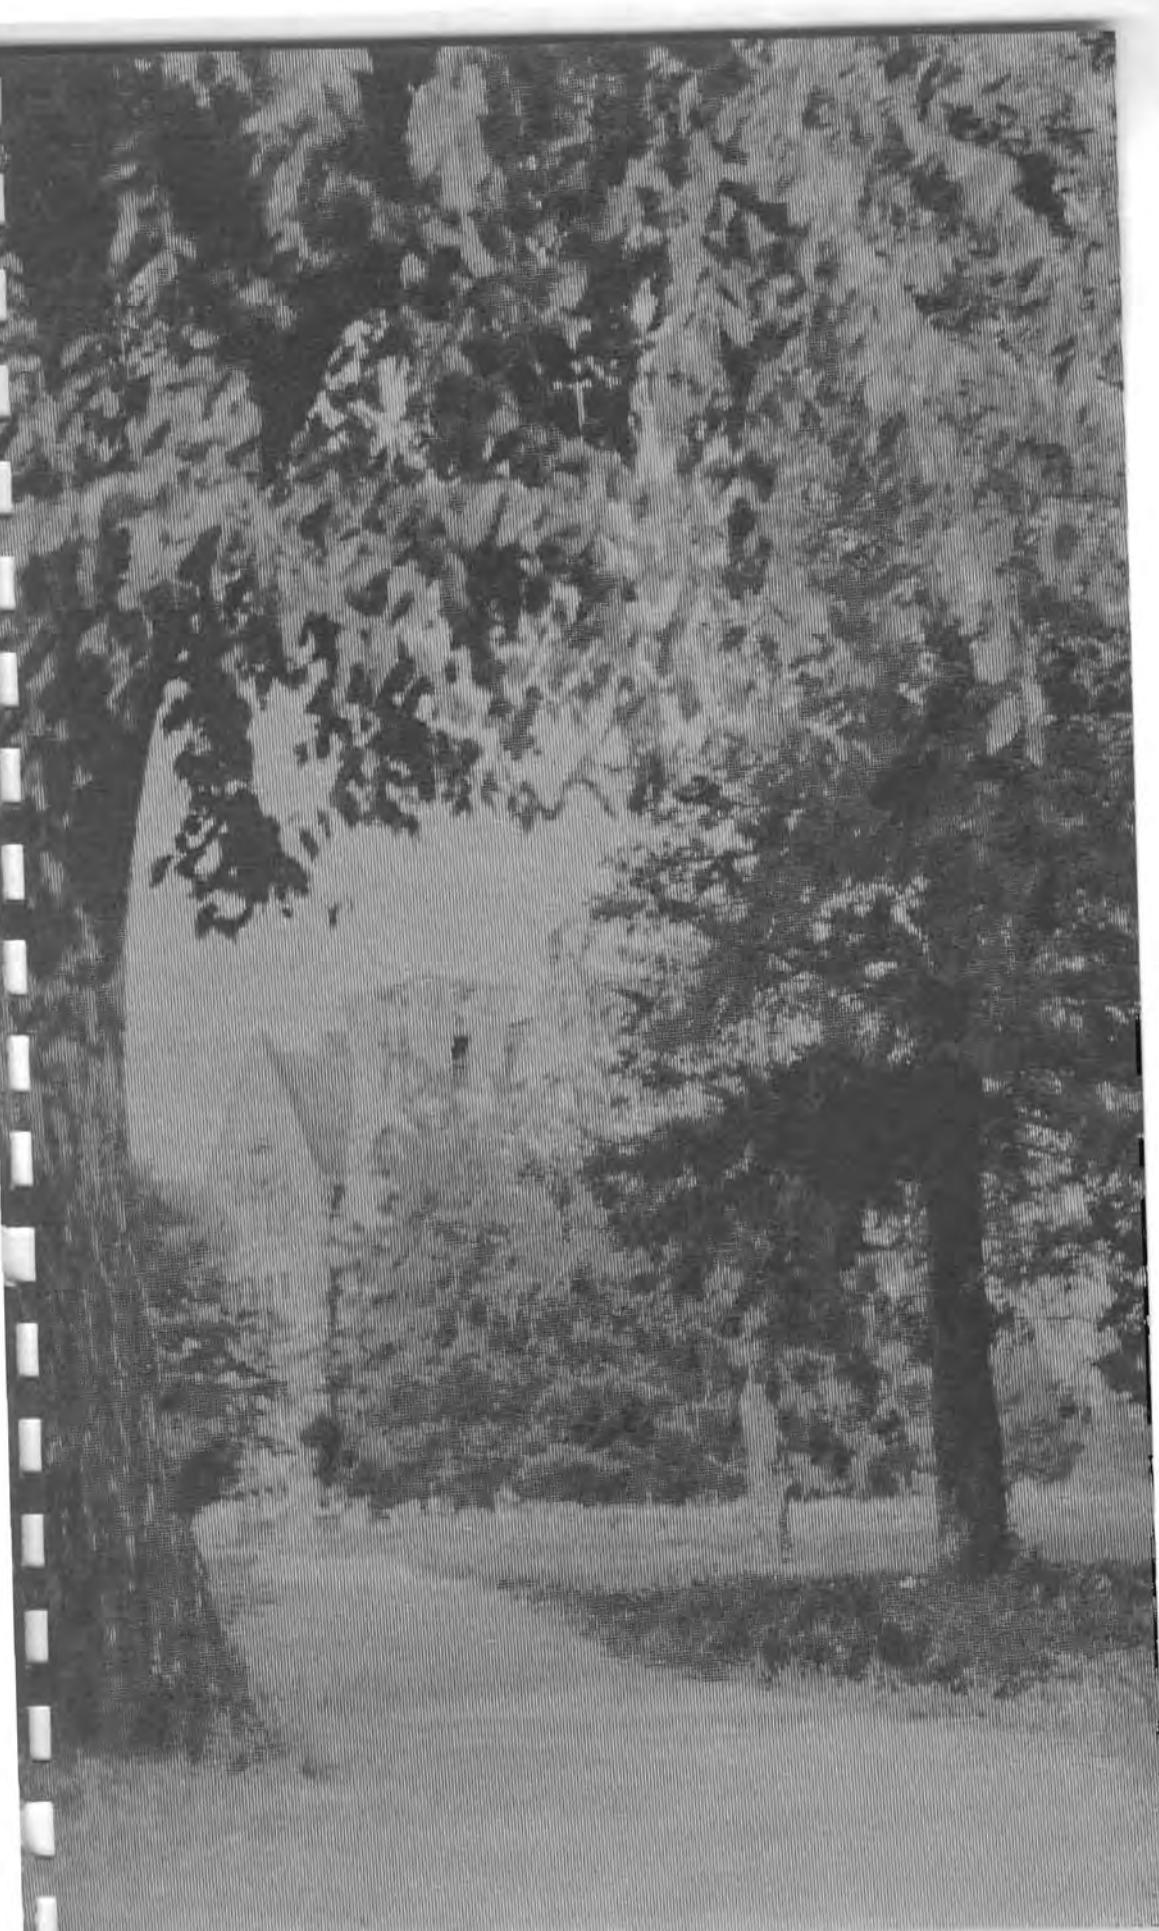

It's bad for Krell to be without clothes, but it's all right for the girls to ride away. The Hendersons will stay that way forever. The iron-jawed roommate will always need a shave. Opening night will never come. But the sad story is the girl who is off her feet and will always stay that way because of a mean snappy man. He ought to be punished, so make him walk up 77 every day to a one o'clock class.

Athletic Directors

THE intercollegiate sports of Southwestern have been directed by Coach William Monypeny, aided by Assistant Coach Cooper. Southwestern, as a member of the Central conference, takes part in basket ball, football, and track. Coach Monypeny has instilled in his men a spirit and an attitude which makes them ever a factor to be reckoned with in conference races. He has been especially successful in basket ball, having made Southwestern attractive to graduating high school cage stars. Then, having secured the material, he has proved, by producing championship teams, that he knew what to do with it.

COACH WM. MONYPENY

The resignation of Coach Monypeny as the head of Builder athletics was announced at the close of the 1937 basket ball season. To the deep satisfaction of the administration and student body, who regretted his resignation, he will continue with Southwestern in other capacities. Don Cooper has been selected to direct football, but a basket ball coach has yet to be chosen.

Under the leadership of Miss Lillian Cloud, director of physical education for women, intramural sports for women have been organized. All the women's athletics are sponsored by the W. A. A. During the year, tournaments have been held in volley ball, basket ball, baseball, badminton, tennis, and ring tennis. Points are awarded for participating in these activities and for hiking, keeping health rules, perfect attendance in gym classes as well as for scholastic achievement. When 300 points have been earned, the woman is entitled to membership in Builderettes, the W. A. A. pep club. The white "S" sweater is given for 1500 points and the Southwestern blanket for 2000 points.

The men's intramural program is under the direction of Coach Don Cooper. Tournaments are held in basket ball, tennis, wrestling, and boxing. This year a new point system is being used in the tournaments. Points are given the teams for the number of men competing in each game, and for the number of games won. Points are deducted for games forfeited. The winning organizations and individuals are presented with trophies and medals.

Southwestern is a member of the Central Intercollegiate Conference.

Football

SOUTHWESTERN'S 1936 football season was far less rosy than the basketball season which followed, the purple gridmen turning in but one victory in nine games.

Despite her lack of victories, Southwestern succeeded in completing 53 passes, while her opponents completed only 26. The local team held the yardage gained in scrimmage by her opponents to 1995, gaining 1,120 itself. While the visitors were earning 106 first downs, Southwestern slipped around and through the line for 75.

When the all-Central team was announced, Southwestern's captain, Bob Baltzell, was listed as captain, playing the guard position.

The Baker University gridsters defeated the Builders in their opening game, 6-0. On October 1 the Builders journeyed to Emporia where the College of Emporia took a hard-fought battle, 7-0. A week later Southwestern gave Fort Hays a hard fight on Alumni field before going down to defeat, 25-0. Southwestern's only threat at the goal was ruined when the team became over anxious and was handed a penalty.

The next game was with the Emporia Teachers, played on the Hornets' gridiron. The Teachers built up a margin in the first half that was sufficient to withstand a Builder rally early in the last half. The sensational play of the game was a 26-yard pass from Woodard to Washington for a touchdown. The other scoring play of the game was made by Mayse in a short line plunge. The final score was 31-13.

Football

October 23, Southwestern won its sole victory of the season, defeating Ottawa University, 6-3, at Ottawa. With the Purple gridsters on Ottawa's 30-yard line, and only fifteen seconds to play, Woodard threw a pass to Gillespie, who snatched it and dashed across the line for the winning touchdown.

Pittsburg won from the Builders at Winfield, 31-0. The Gorillas showed their best form, and broke through the Purple line for two touchdowns late in the second period, added another in the third, and scored twice again in the fourth period.

A touchdown in the fourth period spelled disaster for the Builders in their annual homecoming game, played this year against the Bacone Indians. The local team was badly crippled, several of the better players being out of the game. The final score was 6-0.

An intercepted pass started a drive for Southwestern State Teachers' College that the Southwestern Builders were unable to stop until the scoring stripe had been crossed. A second score for the Teachers was made off a bad punt, soon after the first score. The game ended at 13-0.

The outstanding game of the season was with Wichita University, at Wichita. The Builders held the Golden grids to a scoreless tie for the first half, but the extra weight of the Shockers had its effects, and late in the third quarter the Wichitans broke through for their first touchdown, then soon crossed the goal again, leaving the score 13-0 at the end of the period. In the fourth period a Builder drive carried over the goal line. Brown took a neat pass and Kaufman placed the kick. The game ended 19-7.

Builders in Triple tie for C. I. C. Championship

UNDER the expert guidance of Coach "Bill" Monypeny, efficiently assisted by Don Cooper, basket ball squads have been developed at Southwestern which have succeeded, for the last three years, in holding a place at the top of the Central conference. Two years ago Pittsburg was tied for first place, last year the Builders were undisputed champions, and this year Southwestern overcame a mid-season slump, the result of sickness and injuries, in time to tie with Hays and Pittsburg for conference honors.

Although Southwestern has had some of the finest individual players in the Central conference, her chief strength has been based on an unfailing supply of capable reserves. Coach Monypeny, an expert in the use of substitutes, has been able to take out first-string men, when he saw fit, without serious doubts as to whether or not the subs could cope with the situation on the court.

This year the Builder cagers have exhibited power and technique in variety. The speed and deceptive playing of such men as Hinshaw and Marvin Tucker, the basket-shooting ability of Lloyd Tucker and Bratches, and the consistent, effective offense and defense of Traugott and Bill Porter, not to mention the often brilliant playing of other squad members, accounts for the team's standing and reputation.

The Builders started this season at home by winning over the University of Kansas in a real thriller, 26-22. The Jayhawkers had revenge on their own court a week later.

At this point the Purple squad entered into the early part of a slump which threatened, a bit later, to eliminate it from serious consideration as a contender for Central conference honors. After losing several non-conference games it did manage to defeat the Wichita Shockers, in the Builders' first conference game. Hays, the next conference foe, got away with a one-point victory at Hays. The second encounter with Wichita followed, and the Shockers were again subdued. Thus far, the race within the conference hadn't been so bad, for it is no disgrace at all to lose a game by one point to Hays.

At about the first of February, however, the Builders really slumped, with several important men injured, or in the hospital with flu. Emporia, unable to defeat any other Central conference team, gave the Purple team a walloping at Emporia. Southwestern came back enough to defeat a not too impressive St. Louis University team at home, but lost two conference battles to Pittsburg on the Gorillas' floor. With four defeats and two victories, and the season half over, it looked as if Southwestern's stars might as well start training for track. They seemed, however, to think and feel differently. Having recovered from divers illnesses and injuries, they started a comeback, at home, by cleaning the dangerous Hays team twice on successive evenings. Pittsburg next came to Southwestern, and received similar treatment. Then the Emporia squad motored to Winfield for a couple of games, and motored back to Emporia with two more defeats marked against it.

With Hays and Pittsburg through with their schedules, and tied at eight victories and four losses each, it remained for the Builders to defeat Wichita on the Shockers' court, in order to share first place with the Tigers and Gorillas. This, after trailing dangerously in the first half, they succeeded in accomplishing with a sensational burst of brilliant playing.

Basket Ball

On March 9th, the Southwestern team went to Kansas City to participate in the Missouri Valley Amateur Athletic Association tournament. South Dakota was defeated in the first game, but the powerful Warrensburg Teachers won a four-point victory from the Builders in the semi-finals, then won the tournament. Southwestern came back to finish third by defeating the Arkansas State Teachers.

Thus ended a spectacular comeback from the cellar position at the beginning of the season to the triple tie for the Central Inter-collegiate Championship of Kansas.

THE 1937 track team turned in a fair season's record. Winning several dual meets with local rivals and universities in Oklahoma, the boys showed more power in the field events than in the dashes. A majority of the lettermen were underclassmen, giving promise of a better future.

Intramural Sports

SEVEN sports were included in the men's intramural program: touch football, basket ball, ping pong, track, tennis, wrestling and boxing. Every man in school may enter any one of these divisions for the training in the sport he desires. Practically half of the student body takes part in these body building sports.

The basket ball league was again the most popular. More than 100 boys signified their desire to play. These boys were divided into seven teams of almost equal ability. Points were given for winning games and for men participating. Twenty points were given for winning a game and one point for each man participating in the game.

The Ping Pong tournament, a new event this year, was a major attraction. Gunckel and Moore, Bratches and Tucker, Gillespie and Hinshaw, and Traugott and Baltzell were strong doubles teams.

Jack Forrester won the finals in the singles by defeating Charles Curtiss. Paul Branine and Ed Warner were outstanding players also. The singles tournament was the largest in the Intramural program. It takes a pretty fast athlete to whip the little pellet across the net.

Notice Staff Members

Go home! Relax. The book is completed. No confounded editor can call you on the phone demanding more copy. Your 1937 staff duty is over. Now you can honestly say, "Wasn't it a lot of fun", or can you?

Well, anyway, I want to thank you for your good work. All of you who stuck with me through the year should have a just reward. How about a nice Moundbuilder dinner?

Dunbar McLaurin was the chief object of my frustrated temper. Whenever things went wrong I usually jumped on Dunbar. But he only grinned and took it good naturedly. He christened himself the official "de-copperizer." Meaning the lad who tore the old copper cuts from their wooden base so we could sell them for junk. He did nice work on page 25, don't you think?

Eula Van Natta was a main cog in the production this year. She helped me faithfully and well. After her work was completed no one thanked her but me, but then, perhaps they didn't realize how good a worker she really was.

Al Schwint started from scratch in the photography department, but say, how that boy improved before the year was over. During the month of March, when I had to turn my attention from photography to copy writing, Al took complete charge of the darkroom and turned out some mighty fine pictures.

Winifred Jones did a neat job with the Senior class section. It is no easy task to find all the data on the high-and-mighty seniors. And the same is true of Mattie Grace Trumbull who wrote the copy for the junior section. The juniors aren't quite as proud of their record and don't get in all the material needed.

Marcia Hubenett and Lena Anderson are two freshmen wonders! They are an editor's dream of perfect help. Always ready, always capable of doing the job, and always on time. Marcia typed page after page of copy, and Lena interviewed and wrote it for the editor. Good work, girls!

Marjorie Thompson found time from her duties as editor of the Collegian to give a number of interesting write-ups for organizations. Vic Sponenberg kept an accurate record of all games won and lost, and wrote the stories for the athletic section.

Bob Boles managed the publicity. Dean Settles wrote copy. Charles Curtiss did a fine job as re-write man at the last minute, and Miss Mary Wood proofread all copy. Her red pencil corrected thousands of minor errors that the staff had overlooked.

I thank you all for your splendid work.

LOWELL MILLER, Editor.

P. S. M. D. Holmes said to thank Keith Franks and Leonard Johnson for their brilliant work as assistant business managers.
