BY THE STUDENTS OF SOUTHWESTERN COLLEGE

WINFIELD, KANSAS

September 1952

F O R E W O R D

● Sunsets in colorful splendor over the Walnut Valley—winter nights that cover the hills with a soft blanket of snow—classes—rush parties—pep rallies 'round roaring fires that light up the black of the night—.

These and many other precious memories will become an integral part of any student privileged to obtain his college education on the Campus of the Purple. But, as the drip of water will wear away the hardest rock, time will blur the most vivid memories.

If, after many years, a glance at the pages of this yearbook will bring back memories, long since forgotten, then we feel, no matter what the aim of the '39 staff, the ultimate purpose of a yearbook has been accomplished.

This MOUNDBUILDER, we hope will be your book of memories.

DR. PENROSE S. ALBRIGHT

● Whose work in the department of physical science has attracted nationwide attention to Southwestern College. His quiet, unassuming manner belies the depth of his personality and the important part he plays in the policies of the college.

An amazing amount of frankness and honesty characterizes his relations with all his students. Many a student owes his college success to the simple, but sound, guidance of this truly great person.

VIEWS

● Between two ragged cedars Old North stands with seamed, kindly face, despite the inner turmoil of sciences and music.

● And Richardson, in calm serenity, muses upon the endless procession passing before her.

C A M P U S

● Cool shadows pause by the rustic well or loiter down an aisle of trees in the Mossman and Baker gardens. And who would deny that at evening the shadows stroll in pairs along the paths of "Prexy's Garden."

T O W E R S

● Richardson Hall—silver-crowned matriarch who patterns those towers piercing the dreams of each of us.

● To support our towers, here, in quiet strength, rise pillars symbolic of integrity and knowledge.

● The austere towers of Stewart Field House belie the exultant victory chants surging through this home of Builder teams.

D O O R S

● Opening onto the long corridor leading to a door marked "Success", are other doors like those of North Hall, through which many have passed to achievement.

● With what warm welcome these doors of Richardson open for each new student, never to close upon the genuine Builder.

● And with what delighted squeaks the doors of Smith Hall burst open to let youth sally forth; with what reluctance they yawn shut when lights blink sleepily.

STORY OF THE YEAR

September: Matriculation Morn.
A haze of Joe College shirts hangs over
Richardson, and the rigors of registra-

Sudeten Blood Shed SWING MUSICK INTO LIMELIGHT

Musick, McCaffree, Foster and Womeldorf grab class presidential honors and Prof. C. V. (Vicey Versey) Bertsch looms on the campus horizon.

The hill is caught in the most agonizing throes of rush week, and the Aurora-Laconian hall becomes a madhouse of melody as the A Cappella choir goes into action. There are occasional vain attempts to concentrate (on a textbook) with the croon of Crosby to soothe the fretted nerves.

*Tonight I musn't think of him

The football eleven panics the stands by snatching a 14-0 win in the first season game. And verily the old gridiron waxeth sizzling under the flying cleats of Hinshaw and Hotton.

Installation of the new three-manual organ is marked by much enthusiasm, despite the general stupefaction attributable to the appearance of a six-page Collegian.

The Builders get a bad break and the pigskin parade continues. The Jinx Janes Jive after the O. B. U. game keeps half the stags at bay—100 Men to the Girl.

Basso Douglas Beattie stirs the rafters of the auditorium and the hearts of feminine listeners with a glorious concert. S. C. is host at a state-wide collegiate peace parley.

The geology class goes on an Ozark expedition and the entire student body goes into a huddle over six week's tests.

QUEENS STEAL CAMPUS SCENE

The new month bursts in with a fanfare and the Jinx Janes shove off in assembly with all hands on deck of the S. S. School Spirit. Speaking of decks—November pulls three queens out of the pack: Whitesell the Homecoming queen, Alley the Moundbuilder queen, and "Elizabeth the Queen".

Homecoming is marked by reunions and rallies, parades, pomp and pep. Bands blare, the queen is crowned, but the Hays Tiger kitty mauls the faithful Jinx for a big nasty win.

Stewart Gym sports new score board, and the Fledgling flutters its wings for its fifth flight. S. C. wins in volley ball, while "Eagerheart" and Christmas Vespers add seasonal dignity and charm.

Builder basketeters star in the East during vacation, and students return with minds full of New Year's resolutions and suitcases full of Christmas ties.

ADELAIDE BADEN

This charming co-ed has contributed greatly to the college with her delightful ability in playing a most difficult instrument, the harp.

Adelaide started her harp work with Louise Friedenburg, and later took work under Lois Craft, Harpist for the Kansas City Philharmonic Orchestra. Last summer she studied under Vojmir Attl, Harpist with the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music.

As a member of this year's junior class, Adelaide has done much to add to the achievement of her class, and her pleasant personality has certainly been a definite asset to the Builder Campus.

FRANK E. MOSSMAN, Ph. B., M. A., D. D., LL. D.

PRESIDENT MOSSMAN

The silver hair sweeping up from a broad forehead, the arrogant hawk-like profile, the sensitive mouth and fine, dark eyes—all bespeak a "gentleman of the old school." It is one of the costs of his position that many students know him only as such. He is to be admired the more because he accepted the grave responsibilities of a debt-shackled college, knowing that official duties would build a barrier between students and himself. But to those privileged to know the individual man, he is a friend of rare warmth and understanding, whose sly humor glints from facets of the rocky surface. They have learned that the heavy brows know a trick of lifting inquiringly over keen eyes, that the stern mouth has a whimsical quirk, and that the president has a great, good heart and a deep understanding of men. We pay tribute to him who has given Southwestern a contribution of executive service and personal influence which none other could have given.

Soc. Sci. D.; Professor of Bible
and Religion.

DEAN OF THE COLLEGE

The kindly, philosophical personality of Leroy Allen has permeated into the hearts of each of us, and to us he will always be "The Dean".

His broadminded educational principles are an upbuilding influence in church school education, and one cannot attend his classes in religion without receiving a decidedly practical knowledge of religious principles.

We feel that the friendly, sincere character of "Our Dean" and advisor is of fundamental importance to the educational system of Southwestern College.

DEAN OF WOMEN

Miss White is Greek-Classic in stature, but modern in thought and interpretation of her position. In neither teaching nor Dean's work does she barricade herself behind the authority of her desk, but meets students as a friend, tolerant and stimulating. That is why we give confidence and respect to our Dean of the low chuckle and crinkling smile.

DEAN OF MEN

Sincerity in ideals, modernity of social thought, constant endeavour to assist the student to adapt himself to college situations are traits which bespeak William B. Plum. As Professor of Physics he is practical and thorough in every phase of class and laboratory work. In his second year as Dean of Men, improvements effected and standards set on the campus witness his capabilities.

THE SCHOOL OF LIBERAL ARTS

DR. PENROSE S. ALBRIGHT

It is really quite an old idea, this thing of "dividing by three"—Gaul knew it long before it was put into practice at Southwestern. We have found the division of the liberal arts school into three groups, those of Social Science, Natural Science, and Language and Literature, a great aid to progressive education. Miss Ada M. Herr, Dr. Penrose S. Albright, and Dr. T. Reese Marsh, the respective heads of these divisions, with their departmental professors, have established a program of genuine merit. By this plan a better organized curriculum is possible, and concentration in definite fields is open to students.

MISS ADA HERR

This concentration has developed into an honors system whereby students majoring in a certain subject can do research work equivalent to one phase of graduate study. These "honor students," as they are known, perform valuable experiments in the chemistry and physics departments, and many of them receive graduate fellowships and scholarships on the merits of their "honors" work. During the past year the aim of the social sciences to keep abreast of the rapidly progressing natural sciences has introduced the same plan into the sociology and English departments. The system has proved a great incentive to outstanding achievement and an invaluable form of practical education.

T. REESE MARSH

The balance of interests and activities in the life of a student is as delicate and as important as that of a fine instrument. Therefore, even the acid-bitten chemists have their Saturday afternoon testimonial teas, where students report on projects. The Social Science division provides opportunity for discussion of vital current problems in the meetings of the International Relations Club and Pi Gamma Mu, national honorary social fraternity founded on this campus by Dean Leroy Allen. Likewise, the Language and Literature division, which encompasses the Speech Department, makes definite contributions to the school through its organizations. The English Club annually publishes a volume of poems chosen from those submitted in the student poetry contest; the Romance Language Club, in its meetings, adapts the manners and customs of the people whose languages are studied. And the entire college shares in the enjoyment of the Campus Players' dramatic productions. This group of talented young actors and actresses embodies not just one interest, but universal sympathies in its theatrical world.

Which all proves that a house divided within itself does stand—our School of Liberal Arts, sister school of

THE SCHOOL OF FINE ARTS

The fine arts are often referred to as the higher things of life. Surely that statement has a literal interpretation at Southwestern where pianos, bassoons, and piccolos wail above floors inhabited by test tubes, prehistoric tusks and electric ranges. Although next year will see some of these neighbors removed to new quarters, the height of accomplishment in the School of Fine Arts will in no wise be affected.

Under the able direction of Luther O. Leavengood, Dean of the school, an extensive program is sponsored each year. The fact that Southwestern is a small school enables students to get individual training from an exceptional and noteworthy faculty. Yet this same fact does not affect the opportunity for hearing renowned concert artists. This year the Artist Course has brought such celebrities as Douglass Beattie, the Gordon Spring Quartet, and Josef Lehvinne to our campus.

LUTHER O. LEAVENGOOD

The new three-manual pipe organ, a gift of Mr. H. E. Kibbee, is a distinct addition to the school. The famous Riemenschneider, who dedicated the instrument, brought deep pleasure and inspiration to all music lovers and students present at the ceremony.

Another outstanding event in the musical calendar of the department was the meeting here of the Kansas State Music Teachers Association, combined with the Kansas Guild of Organists and the Kansas Federation of Music Clubs. The convention was memorable as the scene of the first Kansas All-State Piano Festival, featuring thirty pianos and more than 300 professional and student pianists.

Yet it is our own students who give to the School of Fine Arts its high repute. The Southwestern Band and the A Cappella Choir make extended concert tours each year, and individual artists have been accorded high recognition, making this a school of achievement and promise.

The fall of 1936 finds a class of 153 enthusiastic, ready-for-action-
sophomores ever ready to help
the green freshmen. Many changes have taken place during the vacation months. A summer love or two, a new faculty member, and the superior feeling of being an
"upperclassman". Our foundation
(class talents) with which we work are of the best: athletics, scholarship, pep, religious interests, social activities, literary qualities and dramatics. The Moundbuilder
Queen, Virginia Moore; Lloyd
Tucker and Harold Bratches of the all-conference basketball team;
and the organizing of Kappa Rho
Pep Club feature the year.

Close behind the college band,
the junior class, with its "ninety
and nine" representatives, follow
the seniors; by the light of flicker-

ing torches, to again cast their stones to boost the mound to greater heights. Kathryn Green reigns over the Homecoming activities, and Bob Youle is student president. As maytime draws nearer we come to realize that the framework of our college is nearly finished and what we are to accomplish in years to come will depend upon the kind of materials we chose for the foundation and framework.

An outstanding senior class graduates in '39, from the college of the "Builders". Memories of activities such as: welcoming the heroes home—"Kack and Eddie" in their glory—the band carnival—. As all loyal S. C.'ers, we too have tried to reach the heights and be true "Builders". With the final counting we are, in all, 81 happy, yet sorrowful seniors.

Just three years ago the suave shades of sunset hill were temporarily tinted with the garish green glow of another group of freshmen. How fond are the memories of that day which seems scarce passed—new friendships and personalities that have become an intimate part of us like the stones so ceremoniously cast into the mound. But this day was soon to be over, and others have rapidly followed it until now we are forced to realize that our venture here is three-fourths complete.

Particular prominence was attained this year by one of our vivacious members, Alta Whitesell, who reigned as Homecoming Queen. Also, we can't forget the school organist Gordon Young, whose nimble, agile digits brought forth vast quantities of pleasing tones from the new organ.

Looking back over the year, we see how a drop in the sock market has shortened hosiery—how the English students took their tea with cup and Chaucer—how Charlie McCarthy's heart pulpitated when he visited a paper factory—how Winfield was "balled" up with so many championships—and how.

The final quarter is ready and so is the junior class of '39. Like the attractive secretary, we are sure to succeed when we come to the last lap.

Those swingin' sophomores began their activities class day in the same victorious vein as established last year by defeating the "Flat Foot Floogie" freshmen in the same manner they disposed of this year's junior jitterbugs. They climaxed the day's events by pulling the freshmen through the lagoon to prove for all time that as freshmen, the members of the class of '42 were all wet.

The class of '41 will long remember this year. It has been a grand year, full of fun, and during which the members of the class have really caught the spirit of the Jinx and become Builders.

Who says being a freshman isn't a bed of roses?

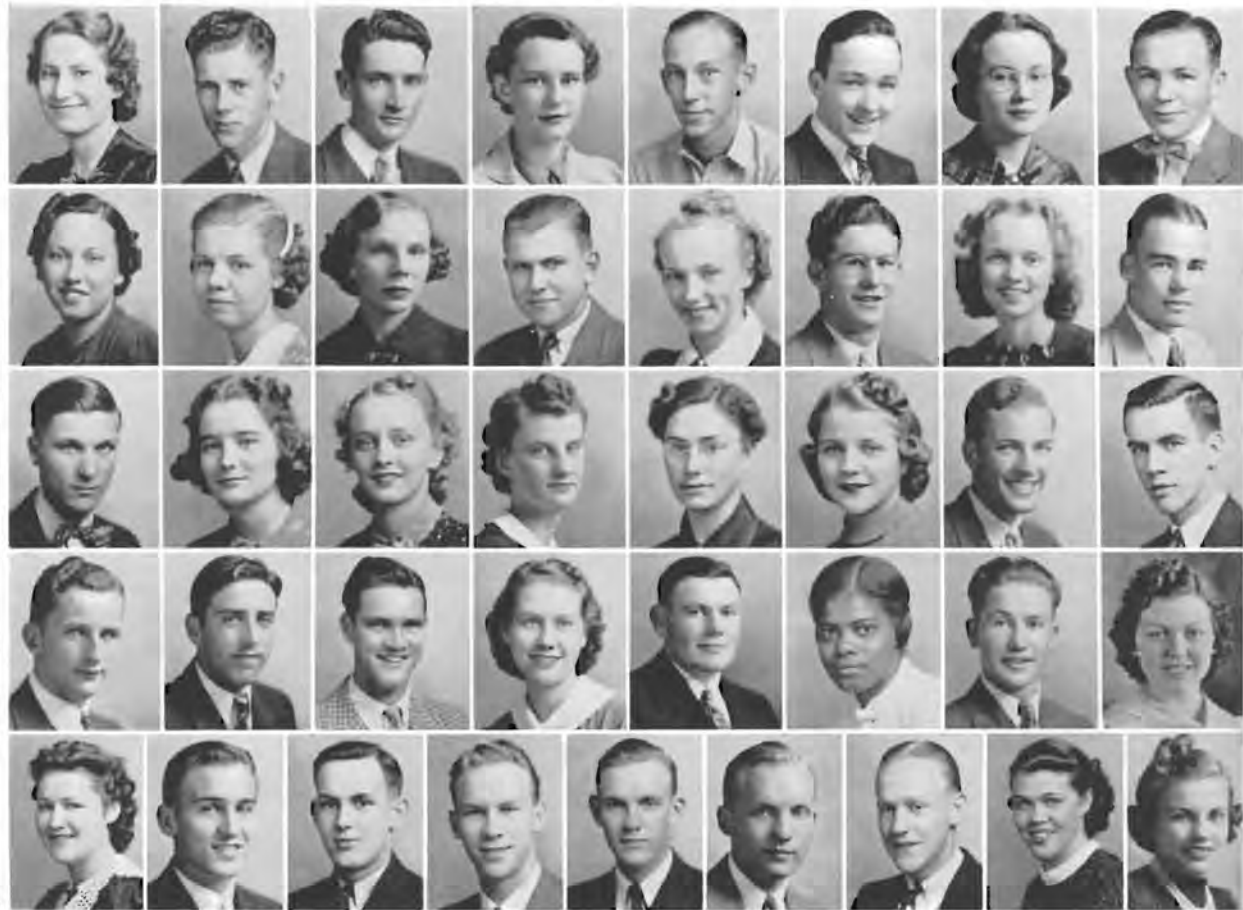

Like roses, freshmen are carefully cultivated and nurtured in the beginning. The freshman entering college feels the "rosy" atmosphere from the day he is given the once-over to the night he spends cramming for his first six weeks' test. (Every bed of roses must have its thorns.)

Among memorable experiences of this year's freshmen will be the traditional class day tug-of-war with the sophomores coming out on the high end (the dry end, incidentally). The carefree frosh boys declared the ducking was a good way to begin the year with a clean slate.

Thus, like fragrant roses (more flowery talk) this year's freshmen have acquired an air. It is an air of pride and intense loyalty for the school that has given them these rich experiences—their new Alma Mater—Southwestern College.

WHO'S WHO IN AMERICA

At the end of his four years' pursuit of knowledge, friendships, financial "coups", and what-have-you-done, the senior stands before an august body composed of members of the faculty and Student Council. And in solemn file the activities and accomplishments of his life at Southwestern pass before judicious eyes. From the upper one-third of this graduating class nine persons were selected on the basis of leadership, scholarship, personality, and potentialities. With due honor the names of these seniors take their place in the current edition of Who's Who, in student publications, and in the traditions of the school.

(Due to an unintentional error, discovered too late for correction, Miss Sheldon's picture was omitted. For such a grave error, we offer apology.)

Intercollegiate competition in various sports is an integral part of the life of any modern college. Of primary value for those who are privileged through ability to participate under the school's colors, sports hold great interest for every member of the student body. Perhaps the greatest single factor in building such an intercollegiate program, teaching the rules of the game and instilling the ideals of sportsmanship and fair play, is the coaching staff.

Southwestern engages in a full program of intercollegiate sports as a member of the Central Intercollegiate Conference. Competition in the six school circuit, "toughest league in the nation," consists of football, basketball, track and tennis. Don Cooper, director of athletics at Southwestern for the second year, created a well-knit, interesting and eventful program.

Don Cooper also filled the important function of head football coach. In spite of a humdrum football season, Southwestern looked with pride upon the fine spirit and mettle exhibited by the team. Second in command of Southwestern's football army was George Parker, also serving his second year in his present capacity of assistant football coach, physical education instructor and director of the men's intramural program. Parker also is behind the destiny of the track squad, to which increasing emphasis is being accorded at the hill school. Ray Henry, former Builder athlete, joined the football coaching staff in a subordinate capacity this year.

Basketball enjoyed one of its most successful years at Southwestern under George Gardner, the best basketball coach "in captivity". Under his guidance the cage team netted twenty-one victories out of twenty-three starts. The imperturbable coach who never raises his voice in explaining those smooth plays, garnered his second conference championship in two years at S. C. Not content with this crown, George took his boys to the thirty-two-team meet at Kansas City and sat on the bench, completely undisturbed, while the purple wrapped up the national honors.

No woman should be last, and Lillian Cloud is far from being least in the affections of those who know her. Under her watchful eye and cheery smile, the women of the college participate in intramural sports.

August dog-days faded, faded away into memory and September arrived with its quiet charm. College portals swung wide, students trooped to college towns. Gallant young swains walked their best girls about the campus or sipped a "coke" in the campus drugstore. Incidentally some students attended classes and listened vacantly to learned discourses. But out behind the campus buildings, on a smooth turf-covered field, strange sights were seen. Huge, fierce, burly-looking fellows, dressed in outlandish armor, ran about wildly, lined up facing each other and crashed bruisingly together. Football season had arrived again.

Campus "huskies" said good-bye to pie, malts and late dates for the next three months. They turned from the "life of Riley" to bruised muscles, aching bodies, splintered bones and daily practices. The god of competition always is able to recruit numerous devotees from the ranks of those "pursuing" a higher education. These sweaty warriors neglect their studies and uphold the honor of their school. So the first call of coaches Don Cooper, George Parker and Ray Henry brought some forty hopefuls to the gridiron. Later the lettermen, showing their obvious "superiority", appeared.

Southwestern's 1938 gridiron menace was built about a score of lettermen and veterans. Freshmen and reserves contested hotly the doubtful positions. Familiar names were listed on the roster: Captain Chalmer Woodard, "Bill" Musick the great, Edgar Hinshaw of basketball fame, and others too numerous to mention. So the work of whipping a team into shape for conference competition went ahead under the able direction of head coach, Don Cooper.

Cool September nights, with a threat of fall in the air; sunny afternoons and colorful shrubbery. So onto the white-striped field the Builders trotted for their first game of the year. Scheduled under the brilliant lights, it was an inter-squad game. Veterans were arrayed on one side, reserves and freshmen on the other with some seasoned men to give them guidance. The freshmen unleashed an attack that netted them a touchdown in the first quarter. Then the varsity came back and while holding the freshmen during the remainder of the game, themselves scored five touchdowns for a score of 32-6.

"Hope springs eternal in the human heart." Martin at fullback gave weight and speed and Edgar Hinshaw, Webb and Hotton supplied ball-carriers of the featherweight order, for the Cooper boys. But there was a strong Wichita team which bowed only before mighty Army, 32-0, and a good Fort Hays squad on the horizon. Playing alert ball, S. C. opened the 1938 season by defeating its old rival, College of Emporia 14-0. Stevens and Hinshaw did nice passing and Hotton and Martin gained on the ground.

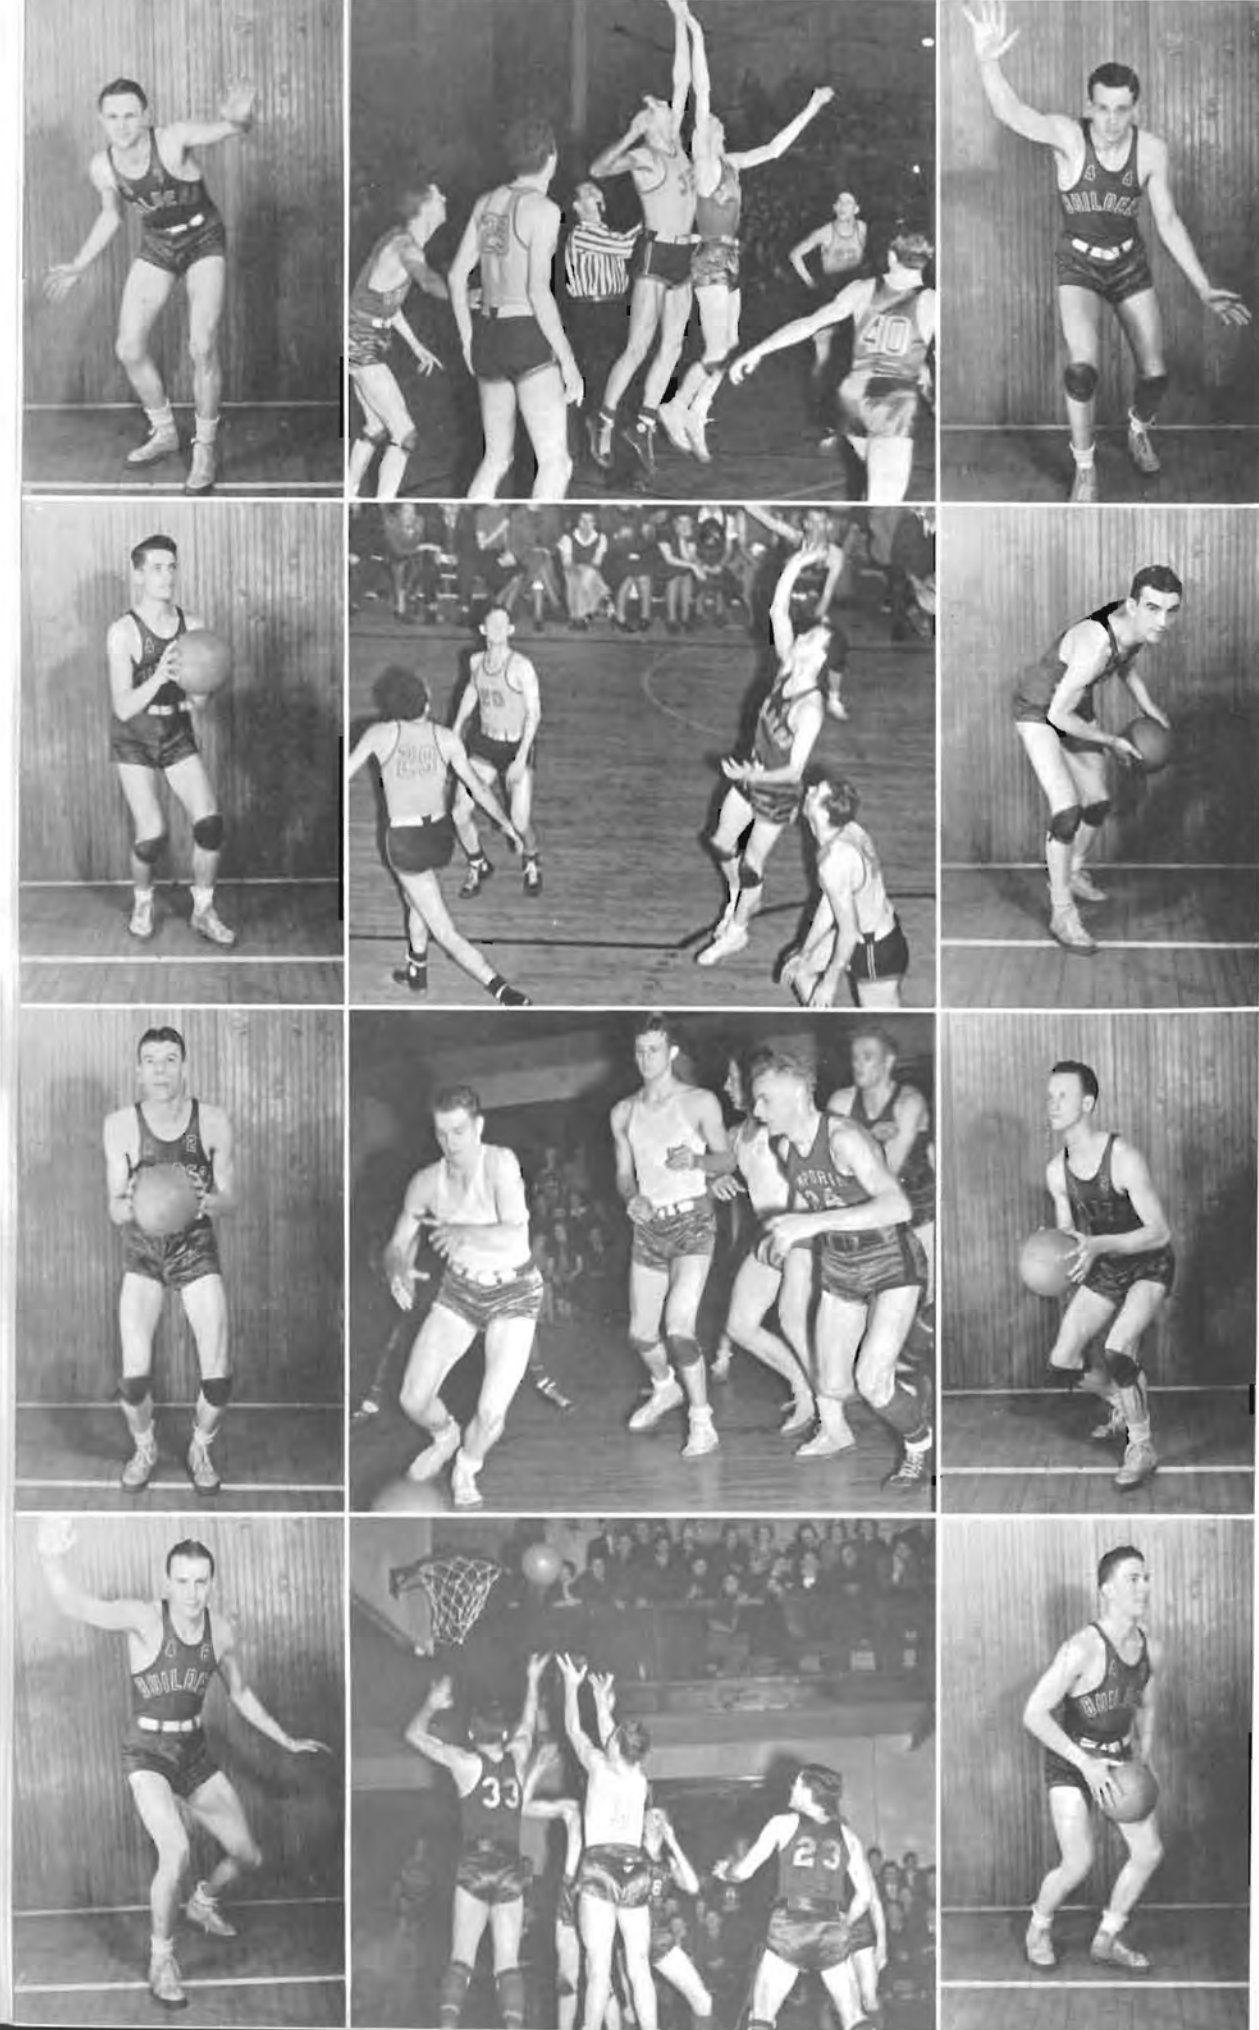

Unscored upon in conference play the year before, Wichita was doped to an overwhelming victory over S. C. Earnest young Builder warriors were no match for the smooth Shocker team. The final score was 66-0, largest in the history of grid relations between the two schools. Hinshaw and Hotton played well but no gains could be made through an impregnable line. Stevens to Webb added many yards through the air.

From the beginning of the season, injuries dogged the purple team. Captain Woodard's knee was injured in the first work-out and bothered all season. Forgetting the Wichita unpleasantness, Cooper's men took on the Oklahoma Baptist "Bison". They put on a big second period to win 27-0 in a nonconference game. Emporia Teachers found S. C. in bad shape and took the victory 33-0. The Builder passing combination of Hinshaw to Baker was effective during much of the game. Pittsburg also was highly favored over the Builders. The Gorrillas won 25-0 but S. C. showed flashy work in the air, Stevens and Hinshaw completing 14 passes for 152 yards.

A hard-smashing, smooth-functioning Sterling College team emerged victorious over the Builders 33-14, with Malone making one S. C. touchdown and Jones racing 45 yards with a recovered fumble for the other. A veteran Hays team was the opponent on Homecoming Day, winning 28-0. The Builders went 165 yards through the air to 45 for Hays, and Emerson MacDonald intercepted a pass near his own goal, running it back 68 yards. In the final game the purple team journeyed to Southwest Missouri Teachers College to suffer a 20-0 setback. Captain Woodard led the way for the Builders, starring on offense and Daugherty played fine ball on defense.

Final standings in the conference found Wichita at the top, undefeated. Hays, Pittsburg and Emporia followed, with Southwestern in the cellar. Willis Musick, Builder center, was placed on the second all-conference team and received honorable mention on the all-state team.

Only praise and eulogistic adjectives can describe basketball as played by the Southwestern team. It was tops, in the nation as well as in Kansas. It is no exaggeration to say that this year's team stands conspicuously high in the roll of many great Southwestern teams. The team was built about a nucleus of four veterans, Lloyd Tucker, Bratches, Hinshaw, and Briar. Price Fugit and Carle Dix alternated at the other guard post.

For five years Southwestern has either held or shared the Central Intercollegiate Conference basketball championship. Five years ago Southwestern and Pittsburg shared honors; the next year the Builders were alone. Three years ago Southwestern, Hays and Pittsburg cut the cake equally and for the last two years, Southwestern has held the undisputed championship. Three undisputed championships out of four for the three seniors on the team! Here's to Harold Bratches, Lloyd Tucker and Edgar Hinshaw who never have played on a losing team.

Captained by little "Eddie" Hinshaw, Southwestern played a swell brand of basketball to gain twenty-one victories out of twenty-three games played. Nonconference victories were won over teams from eight states. In the Kansas City tournament some twenty states, ranging from West Virginia to California, from Minnesota to Louisiana, were represented. The Builders also received a tentative invitation to participate in play at Madison Square Garden in New York, but were finally ruled out on the basis of freshmen playing at the hill school.

The situation looked hopeless for the Builders mid-way in conference play. With five games played, Southwestern had suffered a stunning defeat by St. Benedicts, the new conference member. Then Pittsburg also toppled the Gardner boys. But a fighting S. C. team began to turn on the power and was not again headed during the season. From then on basketball fever at Southwestern remained at a high point, subsiding only after a special assembly welcoming the boys home from Kansas City, and a huge dinner in the gymnasium honoring the Builders.

Southwestern took on St. Benedicts, an unknown quantity, in the first game of the conference season. The victory went to the Builders, 42-33. Then came a decisive defeat of Wichita; and in the return game with St. Benedicts, a sluggish purple team was defeated 30 to 25. Southwestern prestige rose after a 37-30 victory over Emporia, doped to be the "toughest" opposition in the conference. Then Pittsburg came to town and after the gun was fired, had given Southwestern its only other defeat of the year, 37-32.

But the Builders pulled up their "pants" and won their remaining games from Emporia, Hays, Wichita, Pittsburg and Hays. The Fort Hays team threw a real scare into the Builders and it was only the long-range shooting of Marvin Tucker that gave Southwestern a one-point victory in the final seconds. Cooperation by Wichita and Emporia in defeating Pittsburg aided the Builders to an undisputed championship.

Coach Gardner and Captain Hinshaw say, "We won, so why get excited." Tucker, Bratches and Cooper, however, seem vitally interested in the details of that last conference game with Hays.

BASKETBALL

On the basis of successful conference play, Southwestern was invited to Kansas City's Intercollegiate meet, one of thirty-two championship teams. In the first game of the tournament Eau Claire State Normal of Wisconsin was defeated 39 to 30. Next came Westminster of Fulton, Mo., which went down 37 to 31 before the purple attack. Southwestern's "Mutt and Jeff" set of forwards, together with a superb team, were instrumental in eliminating the Maryville Teachers of Missouri 53 to 37. Throughout the tournament Hinshaw's floor-play and Tucker's scoring spearheaded the Builder attack. In the finals of the meet S. C. clashed with San Diego State of California. In a breath-taking finish during which a Builder twelve-point lead was whittled down, Southwestern continued its deliberate, careful ball-playing. The purple-clad boys emerged the victors, 32 to 31. Southwestern ranks with Long Island University and Oregon State, winners of similar tournaments as the top teams of the nation.

Southwestern's "point a minute" team has its star players in Hinshaw, Tucker and Bratches. But it is not a "star" team, rather featuring smooth, co-ordinated teamwork. The team was impressive in averaging 41.5 points per game during its 23-game season, while holding its opponents to an average of 32 points per game. In conference play S. C. scored 390 points to its opponent's 338, being second in offense and second in defensive play.

Once again Lloyd Tucker, Builder star forward, walked off with top scoring honors in the conference. His average was 13.4 points per game. Bratches, Briar and Hinshaw also ranked high. Able assistance was lent in crucial moments by other members of the varsity. "From the acorn grows the oak." Much of Southwestern's success is built upon reserve strength and a schedule of games for the "B" team was arranged. Future strength was foretold by victories over El Dorado, Arkansas City and Dodge City junior colleges. A series of home and home games with the Wichita yearlings was divided.

Southwestern was liberally represented in the choosing of all-star conference teams. The Associated Press placed Harold Bratches and Lloyd Tucker on its first team and Edgar Hinshaw on the second team. "Sticker" Briar and Marvin Tucker were given honorable mention. Bratches, Tucker and Hinshaw were general choices for all-conference berths, placing also on the all-tournament teams at Kansas City.

The "bucket" trio, Holy, Holy and Unholy pose with the trophies won in four years of college competition. They are: four C. I. C. crowns, Southwestern Invitational third, Okla. Invitational second, Mexico City first and NATIONAL INTERCOLLEGIATE CHAMPIONS. In the words of Lloyd Tucker, "We didn't mean to win all these; somebody pushed us." INTRAMURAL SPORTS

Featuring a program designed to interest as many boys as possible in participation, intramurals this year were bigger and better than ever before. Under the genial and interested direction of George Parker, physical education instructor, more than 120 boys participated in basketball alone. Emphasis throughout the program was on good sportsmanship, clean playing and physical activity.

Milton Thorne emerged winner of the table tennis division over forty-four competitors. Second place went to Harold Stevens, and third place to Marvin Tucker and William Swartz. Plans have been made for a single elimination bracket in tennis singles. Next year it is hoped to have intramural touch-football and softball.

Eighteen exponents of the manly art of self-defense participated in the boxing tournament. Winners were, first and second places: under 125 lbs.—Harold Tredway and Darrell Marvel; 125-35 lbs.—Al Schwint, Douglass Moore; 135-45 lbs.—Jimmie Webber, Jack Welfelt; 145-55 lbs.—Jack Daugherty, Craig Tetirick; 155-65 lbs.—William Dotson, Elmer Johnson; 175 lbs. and over—Dale Marine, Ben Hicks.

A number of grunt and groan boys also appeared. Winners of first and second places were: Under 125 lbs.—Ronald Brown, Leonard Warren; 125-35 lbs.—Edgar Hinshaw, Douglass Moore; 135-45 lbs.—Cecil Porter, Charles Hinshaw; 145-55 lbs.—Craig Tetirick, Jack Daugherty; 165-75—Paul Williams, Neal Dillman; heavyweight—George Morford, Dale Marine.

Seven teams participated in the basketball round-robin, with twenty-one games being run off. The championship was decided on a point basis. Fifty points were given for entering a team, one point a player up to ten in each game and ten points for winning a game. Pi Sigs, lettermen's society, took first; second went to "House of David" team; and third to the "Terrible Turks". Other teams participating were: Kappa Rho, Athens, Delphi and Holland Hall.

SIGMA DELPHI HONOR

A year packed full of good times, good programs and good kids has come to an end. Winnie Brown and Jim Phillippi led things off first semester as the heads of Sigma and Delphi, and were ably followed during the second term by Ruth Meeker and Harlan Lenander. Many society members attended their last society meeting this spring and many freshman having served a year of apprenticeship are ready to step in and get to work. How could we ever forget this year in Sigma-Delphi marked by such unprecedented acts as truckin' in the society hall (as a part of the initiation, of course), males and females seated on opposite sides of the hall with a few daring couples in the center section, and that never-to-be-forgotten rush party in the gym with everyone joining in a gala Virginia Reel to the tune of The Dipsy Doodle.

Pledge week, previously known to the undignified as a week of hell for the pledges, has come to be a big always-to-be-remembered part of a college career. Eight dates in one week, wow! If we could only keep a pace like that! Fun for the old members, but for the pledges it is something different—questionable at the time but deep and meaningful when it's said and done. This is the week of dashing acquaintances, flattery and mud slinging, to say nothing of the three rush parties and the spirited yelling of the We! Wy! Wo! The rush theme this year was "Down the Mississippi". The informal "Down on the Levee" was rained in to the plantation mansion, but the remaining parties went as scheduled without external difficulties. Stewart Gym was never more gay than when the society and rushees ate, played and were merry at the huge "Mardi Gras". Rush week is really the big week for the societies; studies aren't forgotten, but they are undoubtedly placed in the background, for a few days. This year's rush week was as successful as any society has ever experienced. And why not, with genial "Joe-College" Al Schwint and "personality plus" Marcia Hubenett as captains of the big busy period preceding formal initiation.

How could one forget seeing those humble, bewhiskered Delphian pledges and those meek Sigma beginners with the three-inch green hair ribbons and the shining make-up-less facial extremities bowing graciously before their elders and quakingly uttering, "Sir, I am but an obnoxious troglodyte", and with but a moment's pause continuing with "A troglodyte, is one who

The pledges weren't the only ones talking during that memorable week. Remember the too-familiar scene—an old member gripping a blue printed pledge-made paddle vigorously and boldly suggesting to his respective victim, "Assume an angle, pledge." or "Oh, yes, I have a pair of shoes that need shining. Not an order, mind you, just a suggestion—but remember, there comes a day of reckoning." But cheer up, pledge—vengeance is sweet and next year you, too, will be making rapid acquaintances and proudly wearing that ribbon identifying you as a Sigma-Delphi member.

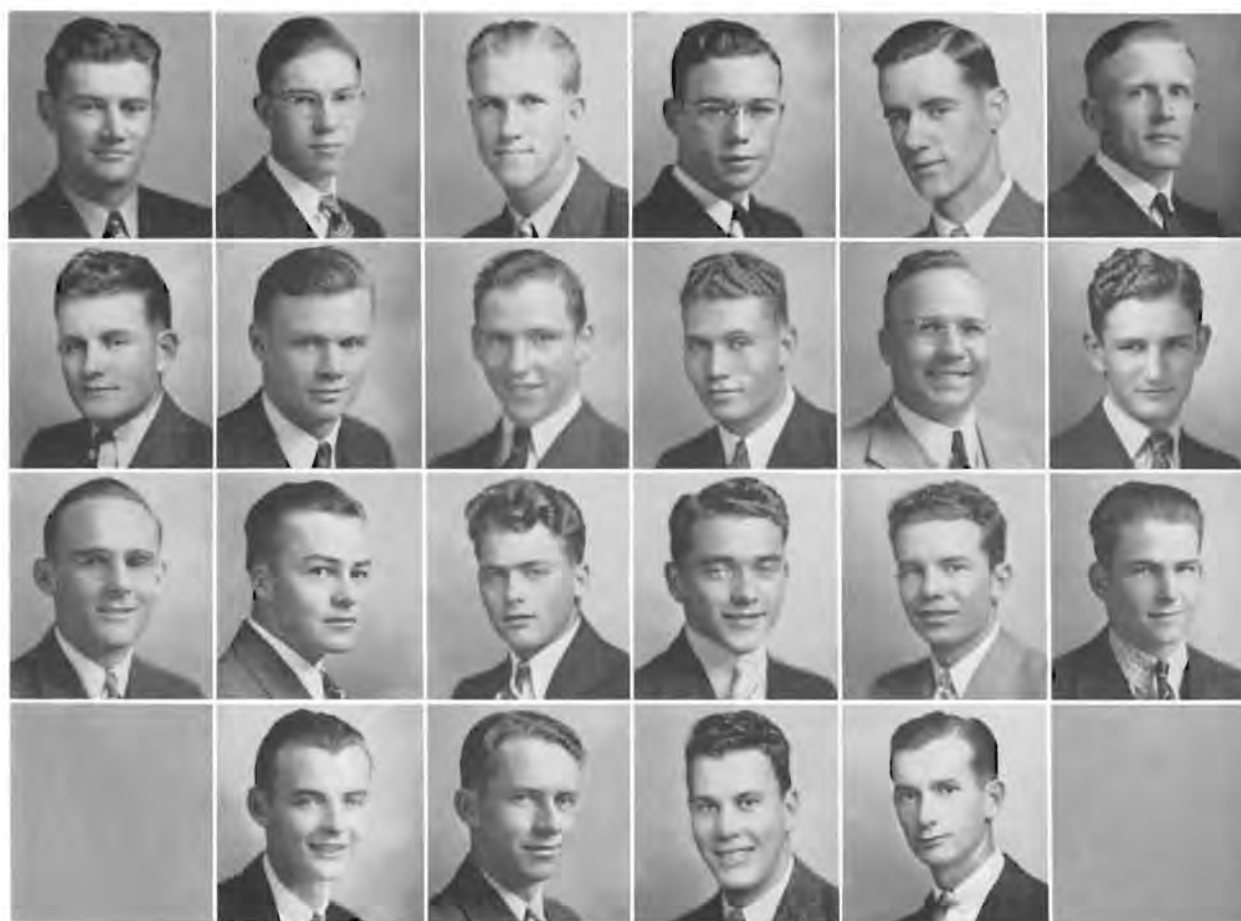

DELPHI

There have been some serious times, too, for no Sigma can forget the thrill of seeing all the pledges with their lighted candles taking the oath of loyalty to the society and receiving the gracious welcome of Winnie Brown. These attractive girls with their eager, serious expression symbolized better than any words what Sigma meant to them. Such moments as this will ever be a part of our memory book.

Remember that hayrack ride and big bonfire in October when weiner skins were used to add atmosphere and make Strader's glen kinda "hollow-weenie"? Ghost and other stories were the order of the evening with a few songs and special features added.

the usual relay races, but some novel stunts by the groups of toys, animals, and famous people who were really society members playing make-believe. The Christmas tree presided over by Santa Phillippi and Mrs. Santa Dieterich was a thrill to all of us kiddies; for we all got balloons, toys, cigars, candy, paper dolls, books, pencils and everything to delight the heart of a college student.

Another outstanding annual event in the criterion of the society is the presentation of the "Fakelty" program, where the truth portrayed is stranger than the friction resulting from it. This specialty gives all interested an opportunity to view the 'profs' as they are from raincoats to artificial bald heads. This year's plot really came to a heated climax with the plight of Drs. Marsh and Baker.

DELPHI

Concluding the social events is the annual spring formal banquet. This is the event that calls for both the fellow's reserve courage to ask for that date he's been wanting all year and his reserve change to purchase that corsage which plays such an important part in making the evening a success. A good program, good food, and a good time are always enjoyed by all.

Now it's all over—Sigma-Delphi, we bow reverently to you in appreciation for what you have done. Here's to more years with equal success.

BELLE ATHENS HONOR

. . . "So let us give our love to you, dear Belle Athenians." Combining the spirit of the familiar Belle-Athenian song with comradeship, good-fellowship, gaiety, and worthwhile achievement, the brother-sister societies of Belles and Athens continue their campus activities this year. Realizing as their responsibility the creation of an interesting social life, giving students an opportunity to appear in society programs and in dramatic productions, the societies filled an important niche in student life at Southwestern.

The peak of activity and interest for new students at Southwestern was reached during the society rush week, with good-natured rivalry raging between the campus organizations. Rush week activities were held early in September after arduous work in preparation for the parties during the summer and early days of school. Belle president Lois May Wright and Athenian president Robert Youle, with the rush captains, Frances Robinson and Eugene Graham, were in charge of activities.

Rush events consisted of two parties, one an informal affair held in the garden at the home of Adelaide Baden in Winfield. Amid beautiful fall surroundings and under soft lights, a musical program was presented by society members. For additional entertainment, several comic motion picture reels were shown and the party concluded with light refreshments. The formal rush party was held at the Country Club in the nature of a Casino Party. Games were played, a program presented and refreshments served during the course of a delightful evening.

Pledge week followed with excitement and suspense as rushees made their choices. Having pledged the cream of the freshman crop to Belle-Athenians, activities continued with informal initiation. There was an impromptu program held in the society hall where great and varied talent was displayed. Then came stunts in the business district of town, featuring an ancient buggy drawn by teams of husky Athenian pledges. Pledge week miseries delighted old members who demanded free shines, seats in the crowded bus and other privileges. Then it was comical to see a "dignified" but nervous freshman carrying an alarm clock and a pillow, or a suitcase and a glass of water to classes.

Soon the societies settled down to more normal activities. But remember the hay-rack ride on Hallowe'en, ending at an old wreck of a haunted house? Of course there was cider and doughnuts to redeem the situation, with ghost stories to give the proper atmosphere The "sporty" party in the gymnasium featuring boxing and wrestling matches. . . . Gaiety and humor at the Christmas party in the basement of the La Gonda hotel where everyone got his fill of Christmas candy. . . . The "bingo" game which ended with some having a monopoly of prizes. . . . The delightful Valentine party in the student union, with games, stunts and entertainment. . . . The former Belle program, with Miss Eleanor Hays, one of the first Belle presidents, present. . . . Finally the selection of Kathryn Green to reign as May Queen.

Among the most interesting events of the year was the annual three-act play, "The Noble Outcast". The Belles-Athenian Stock Co. presented this typical, old fashioned melodrama, complete with hero, heroine and wily villain. But the main character was the "noble outcast", an old tramp who turned out to be an escaped convict and the father of the beautiful heroine. The heroine was played by Betty Miller, the hero by Robert Youle, the Colonel and his wife by Evan McCall and Phyllis Shook, the villain by Gale Shields, the tramp by Ronald Brown, the Irish maid by Frances Robinson and the officer by Jack Gorsuch.

Necessary for the efficient continuation of any organization are hard-working and conscientious officers. Society presidents the first semester were Lois May Wright and Robert Youle. Other officers were: vice-presidents, Frances Robinson and

PI SIGMA PHI

Pi Sigma Phi, or "Pi Sig" as it is generally known is the campus organization of lettermen. Membership is limited to those men who have earned letters in some major sport: football, basketball, track or tennis. The letters are awarded to the men who have participated in a specified number of games or earned a specified number of points.

Pi Sig is a fraternity which represents the athletes in organized functions on the campus and promotes scholarship and sportsmanship among the men of muscle. An honor award is given annually to the athlete who attains the highest scholastic standing.

Initiation and the spring banquet are the outstanding events of the year for those men who have earned an "S" in inter-collegiate competition. During this year's pledge-week a new member was required to address old members with a click of the heels and salute. Each pledge was requested to bring a long list of rare items to the initiation proper, also several paddles of specified size and strength. As a result of the "swat parade" several of the boys ate their meals standing up, for a week. The spring banquet, with its elaborate favors and formality, is an affair to which most co-eds would "mortgage the old farm" for a bid.

Bob Whitesell, Archon; James Phillippi, Vice-Archon; Bill Musick, Secretary-treasurer, were the officers for this year.

FEATURES AND ORGANIZATIONS

THE STUDENT COUNCIL

"Government of the people, by the people, for the people . . . may it never perish from the face of the earth." As "a cross section of life", Southwestern College has her own student government, organized for the purpose of performing functions which the student body must do as a whole. In this respect the student council, composed of four members and two alternates from each class, serving for two semesters, is the most executive group on the hill.

Having as its duties the initiation of constructive student enterprise and regulation of organizations, the council operates under officers chosen annually by the student body. Under the capable leadership of Student President Chalmer Woodard, the council has completed a very successful year. Virginia Moore, one of the few girls ever elevated to high student office at S. C. served as vice-president.

Other officers serving the council this year were: secretary, first semester, Kathryn Green; second semester, Lois May Wright; finance chairman, Clark Moots; activities chairman, Robert Youle. The council again had Dr. Penrose Albright as its congenial and helpful faculty sponsor.

The cordial atmosphere so prevalent on Southwestern's campus is magnified through the activities of this group of upper-class men and women. The work of the council is under the supervision of Dr. William Plum, dean of men, and Miss Chalcea White, dean of women. Each year a number of freshman students are assigned to each counselor whose duty and pleasure it is to assist in blending the counselee's school life and school work. The counselor devotes himself, not only to his own group, but to the welfare of all student activities, as shown by the all-school party sponsored by the counselors.

The charm school sponsored by the women's counselor group was repeated this year, achieving still greater heights. The "sessions" were held at Smith Hall, but the effects were felt far beyond the serenity of its stuccoed walls.

Another new venture this season was the Mother-Daughter tea which was presented for all mothers of girls attending Southwestern. The novel venture proved quite successful as a means of acquainting the parents with the pleasing atmosphere of Southwestern's curricula.

Elizabeth Little and Harlan Lenander were selected as presidents for the year.

THE A CAPPELLA CHOIR

The Southwestern A Cappella Choir is in its thirteenth year of organization, and since its appearance in New York in 1931, this group has been granted an unquestioned national prominence.

Last spring the Choir toured to St. Louis, where they participated in the First National College Choir Festival, which was an outstanding feature of the Music Educators National Conference.

The Choir is under the direction of Professor Melvin H. Geist, who is having his third successful season with this choral group. The keenness of the instruction and the spirited interpretation are vividly displayed in the choir's performances. The tour this year extended through Central and Western Kansas, with concerts in practically every city in this section.

The program included both sacred and secular selections, ranging from liturgical motets in the original Latin to modern works by contemporary composers. In addition to the regular concerts, three radio broadcasts were made over stations KFH in Wichita, KWBG in Hutchinson, and KVBG in Great Bend.

SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA

The Southwestern Symphony Orchestra, Dean Luther O. Leavengood, conductor, was this year acclaimed to be among the best in the state. The first concert was given November 27. The featured soloist of the performance was Miss Frances Ambrose, Instructor in Piano.

Mozart's "Eine Kleine Nachtmusic" for string orchestra opened the concert, followed by the rhapsodic strains of Liszt's "Concerto Pathetique in E minor" for piano and orchestra. Here the technical and sympathetic qualities of Miss Ambrose's artistry appeared to distinct advantage in the contrasting moods of the selection.

Brahms' "Symphony No. 2 in D major" won enthusiastic applause, as did also Wagner's brilliant overture to "Die Meistersinger von Nuremberg."

The orchestra made an appearance before the student assembly for the first time in recent years, playing the last two movements of the Brahms' "Symphony No. 2 in D major" and Moussorgsky's "A Night on Bald Mountain," a concert fantasy.

Earl Dungan was student manager, Dwight Benton, librarian, and Glenn Matthews was in charge of property.

SOUTHWESTERN COLLEGE BAND

The Southwestern College Band, under the direction of Professor C. O. Brown, Head of the Department of Instrumental Music, is the official promoter of any campus activity devoted to pep, enthusiasm, and Ye Olde Schule Spirite.

The Band this year enjoyed an unusually eventful year in which two major trips were made over the state. In addition several one-day trips were made with the football team. Most outstanding was the trip to Wichita where the band was featured in a 30-minute broadcast over KFH with Dean Allen as announcer and interpolator, and where also the feminine hearts received a thrill when famous Herby Kay led the band in several marches.

Various solo specialities were used, and proved popular with the audiences everywhere. Masterful cornet technique was displayed by the "Corn Quartet". La Jeune Dieterich, Margaret Tobias, Earl Dungan, and Joe Keyes were vocalists for the season. Bob Black, national champion drummer, demonstrated virtuosity in controlling the elusive drum sticks in numerous performances. Delmar Seevers and Maxine Dieterich capably majored the marchers.

In commenting on the work of the year, Mr. Brown said, "It is the best band of my entire 18 years at Southwestern," and that is saying a mouthful.

SOUTHWESTERN ORGAN CLUB

Pictured above is the console of the Kibbe Memorial organ which was dedicated on October 9, 1938, by Mr. Albert Riemenschneider. It has been an essential factor in another successful year for the Southwestern College Organ Club.

This organization is a study club for organists and students interested in raising the standard of organ playing and intensifying the interest of music lovers in the organ, as a church and concert instrument. They strive to become acquainted with the hymns and services of all churches as well as to become familiar with contemporary secular works.

This year's study has been confined to American composers and their compositions. One public recital was given on the Kibbe Memorial organ, and a good will recital was presented at Friends University in Wichita, Kansas.

Mr. Arthur Poister, one of America's foremost organists was presented in recital on the Kibbe Memorial organ March 9, 1939. Mr. Riemenschneider was also the guest of the club after his dedicatory recital in October. He gave an informal lecture on Bach for the club and guests at the home of the club president, Mrs. Redic.

The club has again been honored by one of America's outstanding organists and composers. Mr. Robert Bidell of Brooklyn, N. Y., dedicated one of his compositions to the club. The club has had two similar dedications in the past.

THE CAMPUS PLAYERS

Long hours of practicing "ah, ay, ee, oo", of trying for graceful gestures until muscles scream, of mumbling lines feverishly even in sleep, that's what is behind the itching layers of grease paint masking an actor's face. And yet, what Campus Player would give up the long, tedious hours, the suspense and exhilaration of the night of the show, the gay camaraderie between scenes, the rollicking, unforgettable anecdotes which take a curtain call at each reunion? Who would forego the furious verbal lashing of "the indomitable Graham", salved a moment later by her swift smile, or who will forget her as the tragic, brilliant Queen Elizabeth?

Her tireless energy and ingenuity transform stubborn bolts of fabric into rich costumes, wooden robots with dramatic aspirations into skilled actors, and even instill in weak-kneed flats the courage to present a united front for another show.

Under the direction of this ardent guardian angel, the Campus Players presentation of "Elizabeth, the Queen", featuring the return of former stars, highlighted a memorable dramatic season.

Twelve years ago Dr. A. E. Kirk, then president of Southwestern, asked Miss Edith Dielmann to be responsible for a new organization to be called the Leneans. This group was to choose a Biblical play each year and present it over the Southwest Kansas Conference as many times as possible. Through the years this group has not ceased to be a responsibility. Let us present this year's officers: Richard Leftwich, who fills the enviable position of stage manager, enviable because a stage manager is one who spends his time watching his helpers help; "Herbie" Hendricks, who reaches down in his hip pocket, pulls out a big money bag and says: "A second W. T., yep, that's me"; Eula Van Natta, who sends out the advertising; and Elizabeth Little, president of the organization.

The play chosen this year was "Judith", the story of which revolved around Judith, a crippled slave girl of Pontius Pilate who was healed and converted to the new faith by Jesus. Pilate, horrified and conscience-stricken at the thought of the part he played in the crucifixion of Christ, exclaims, "My hands will never be clean again. Never again!" and the play ends with the uniting of Ctesiphon and Judith and his avowal that he will follow Christ.

From February 5 to April 9, the play was presented 22 times.

THE ENGLISH CLUB

Though it is called the "English Club" and though everything stops for tea at four o'clock, monocles and broad "a's" do not prevail at the monthly Sunday afternoon meetings of the Southwestern English Club.

Rather, one may expect to hear muted music and the review of a book, play or poem. The club is divided into three study groups dealing separately with the novel, the drama, and poetry. Each group, with its faculty sponsor, meets to discuss pertinent problems in its specific field.

One of the major projects of the year was the publication of the fifth edition of The Fledgling. This small volume of poetry, notable for its diversity of subject matter and skill of execution, was edited by Betty Miller.

Another highlight of the year was the dinner of March 24, when Dr. J. Duncan Spaeth addressed the group.

Dr. T. Reese-Marsh, head of the department, with Dr. Annette Andersen and Miss Margaret Miller, was responsible for a great measure of the success of the club during the past year.

"Where's Johnny?" "Oh, he'll be here after a while; he's only half an hour late now." Such chatter usually opens a Moundbuilder staff meeting. "Johnny" is none other than Clark Moots, who got the name of Johnny-on-the-Spot by being about an hour and a half late at a staff meeting last fall.

Such jokes and friendliness have made working a little easier for the staff. The waffle supper in the fall served to get all members acquainted with the plans for the book, and from then on informal meetings were held at various times. There have been times, of course, which were not so much fun—writing copy and trying to get it in on time (see A1), reading proof, or trying to get groups together for pictures. Then there was the big surprise the editor got when he opened a package of proof only to find an inset had not been placed over a certain section of a locker room scene and there was barely time to make it over.

And so with a lot of work and a little fun on the side, the staff presents the 1939 Moundbuilder. Thus far it has been ours; now it belongs to you—we hope you like it.

KAPPA RHO PEP CLUB

Original with everything except Southwestern Spirit and always carrying an old time dose of that is one of the common characteristics of the snappiest gang of fellows on the hill. Whenever a group of classy looking white sweaters with a Greek insignia on the outside of them and a smiling chunk of live wire on the inside of them get together, you can expect a mass generation of enthusiasm.

Since its organization, it has functioned as a fanfare of fun and frolic, a fruitful filtration of far-fetched felicity, and a fascinating fulfillment of furious feverish flirtations. In other words Kappa Rho is synonymous with anything pertaining to school pep and school spirit.

Radio sponsors were green with envy when Rod Brown and his Kappa Rho swing band presented their assembly program. Yes, and the stunt at the game when lovely Aida, the hero, the villain and the entire cast presented the musical entitled "Who Spit?"

A limited membership of twenty-four is maintained. The pledges each year are carefully rushed, but not so carefully initiated. The yearly calender of events is climaxed each year with the spring "Sweetheart" banquet.

Harlan Lenander was first semester president for the group, and Bob Youle ascended to the throne for the second semester.

Like the riddle of the Sphinx—who was a woman, too—stands the query as to the meaning of those twin K's. It seems to have debunked the old theory of women and secrets. But whatever KK's initial meaning, the one it has for Southwestern, to put it in black and white, is pep and enthusiasm.

For these girls stand behind everything labeled "S. C." except purple cats—to which they are allergic—and they insist they won't be behind them. KK loyalty and spirit have made their contribution to the activity and interest of the school year—a prize-winning Homecoming float, Rush Week activities and the traditional fishmonger and perambulator of Pledge Week, the Toytown Parade with Dopey and Donald Duck, as well as individual service and recognition.

Within the club there is a code of personal sportsmanship and achievement, binding each girl to Southwestern and to KK and the traditions of both.

JINX JANE PEP CLUB

Noted for their personality and pep and their loyalty to S. C., the Jinx Janes lead the student body in general enthusiasm for all athletic events of the year.

Symbolizing their loyalty are their purple and white uniforms bearing the insignia of the Jinx, that spirit of the Builders which leads "our valiant heroes" to victory. Not only do these thirty-five girls lead in backing up the Builders, but they are outstanding in society, scholarship and campus leadership.

This year's activities began with the imbuing of every freshman with the true Southwestern spirit when the Jinx was unveiled with appropriate ceremony at a special pep assembly. Stunts at games and assemblies and cooperation with the band and students were climaxed with the ceremonial crowning of the Builder C. I. C. champions at the final home game of the season.

At every game, in their special section behind the team, these pepsters were "up and at 'em" from the starting whistle 'till the final strains of Alma Mater. Numerous social events were highlighted by rush week, when ten pledges were voted into membership, and the annual spring banquet.

PI GAMMA MU

Southwestern has acquired national prominence and recognition as the headquarters of the National Social Science Honor Society, Pi Gamma Mu, which has now one hundred twenty-five chapters in colleges and universities all over the United States, in Hawaii, the Phillippines, and one in a foreign country—at the University of Toronto—with a total membership of 25,000.

Pi Gamma Mu was founded by our dean, Dr. Leroy Allen, in 1924 when he was head of the department of Economics. He saw the need for more cooperation between students of the several branches of social science, all of which must make contributions of knowledge if our social problems are to be solved. Dean Allen, therefore, suggested that a general social science honor society be established here and that one college in each of the forty-eight states receive an invitation to form one of the Charter chapters of the new society patterned after the one at Southwestern. The plan met with great enthusiasm, and today Pi Gamma Mu is an organization of national importance and influence.

The president of the Kansas Alpha chapter is Virginia Allen.

After the presentation of some notable scientific paper to the members of the club on Saturday afternoons, tea must be served, presumably to help consume the mass of scientific material placed in their reach, but perhaps it is just to relieve the drouth.

The members of this very active club do not, however, limit their thoughts to problems of scientific nature. The meetings are definitely social in nature and the informal discussions following the formal meeting are extremely beneficial. Arthur Stauffacher and T. D. Morgan were the "chief tea toppers" during the year.

PI KAPPA DELTA

Southwestern College illumination has filtered into a great many of the leading forensic circles during the past years. Climaxing the annual functions of this group is the annual invitation debate tournament which brings together the outstanding orators and debaters of the entire Middle West.

This year has been a good one for the Builder persuasive speakers. Southwestern made high rankings all year and concluded the season by placing in debate, oratory, and extemp at the state meet.

A trip to Pineville, Louisiana, started off a year of hard work for the Mu Chapter of Kappa Omicron. Miss Chalcea White and Thelma Nurse, with the national president, went to Pineville to pledge and initiate the Sigma Chapter of Kappa Omicron.

During the year, Kappa Omicron prepares and serves numerous teas, luncheons, formal and informal dinners. Such activities help support the organization.

Members are selected on a basis of initiative, leadership, and scholarship from the upper twenty per cent of the home economics department. Winifred Brown is president.

GAMMA OMICRON

The bi-monthly meetings of Gamma Omicron, home economics organization, combine fun with instructive materials that cannot be presented in regular class meetings.

The height of activity for the past year was Gamma's Christmas "Kid" party. After short discussions of important topics given by specialists in the home economics field, members spent the rest of the evening playing kid games. Toys used at the party were then distributed to the underprivileged children of Winfield.

Ruth Baty and Geraldine Gee were the first and second semester presidents.

Three members of the Social Science-International Relations club distinguished the local club as well as themselves and Southwestern this year when they were elected to offices of national importance at the Mississippi Valley Convention of the club at Omaha. Betty Miller was elected president at the convention, Clarence Borger, treasurer, and Virginia Allen, corresponding secretary. The S. C. club brought further laurels to Southwestern when it was awarded the honor of being host to the 1940 Mississippi Valley Convention.

Meeting every two weeks, the local group studies social problems of today and hears speakers who make a study of such problems.

THE COSMOPOLITAN CLUB

"The melting pot of S. C." perhaps best describes the Cosmopolitan club. Although there are ten Americans to every foreigner, foreign students are accepted for membership before the native students. A member of the national organization, the local chapter meets bi-weekly with programs typical of all foreign nations. This theme is also carried out at the fall and spring banquets. An exchange club with Manhattan was carried on this year. Each school attended a banquet at the other school. Two members attended the regular Cosmopolitan meeting at Boulder at Christmas time.

In the words of Frank Countryman, president, the club "just tries to carry out the cosmopolitan spirit."

THE COLLEGIAN

The publication of the Southwestern "Collegian" has about it the delicious flavor of the unexpected, since after the appearance of each issue necessity allots just enough time that the collegiate public concludes that said issue was, apparently, the last. But suddenly the business manager finds ad-selling not an utter impossibility and lo! there is a "Collegian".

Its small size and infrequency of publication make it difficult to keep the sheet from turning into a wet blanket. However, with a little cooperation, a lot of effort, and the epic news of the 1938-39 Southwestern year, the staff has tried to give its public "a newspaper, not a publication".

The Epworth League functions as a phase of Grace Methodist Church and plays an important part in the lives of the students. Programs are especially designed to meet both the spiritual and social needs of the college group, and leadership is chosen from outstanding personalities in the community and on the campus.

At the opening of school, there is the long-remembered ghost walk, where first introductions are often made. The League completes its year with an outdoor meeting around a campfire with all participating in games, songs, and a few moments of meditative thinking.

THE GRACE CHURCH CHOIR

The Grace Church Choir, composed of more than sixty college students, was under the direction of Professor C. O. Brown this year. "The Holy City", by Gaul, presented at the close of the first semester, featured the following soloists: Wava Bachman Allbaugh, Wichita; Joe E. Hume, Wichita; Mrs. George T. McNeish, Winfield; and Warren Allen, Cunningham.

The choir received much favorable comment for its presentation on Palm Sunday of "The Messiah". Both oratorios were accompanied by the church orchestra, with Miss Grace Sellers at the organ.

In September the leaves and our social calendar become lined with red, Rush Week tweaks old Father Time's beard, and Pledge Week treads hard on his heels. Freshmen are on needles and pins, and societies on good behavior—or at swords points. Then the Inter-Society Council, a melting-pot wherein simmer the representatives and conflicts of the societies, comes to the aid of the party. Thus throughout the year, they handle any "pretty kettle of fish" which may be stirred up between societies and apportion the contents thereof accordingly. Which all proves that eleven cooks spoil neither the broth nor the brotherhood in this case.

STUDENT CHRISTIAN MOVEMENT

Because all work and no play make Jack a dull boy, the Student Christian Movement of Southwestern does not confine its activities to study alone. Meetings where students are free to attend the program befitting their mood of the day intercept the serious meetings of religious training. Three commissions, creative living, personal relations and creative leisure, are under the leadership of active S. C. M. members. At the state training conference at Wichita in March, attended by a number of Southwestern students, Phyllis Shook and Harold Rickard were co-chairman of the regional creative leisure commission.

EDITORIAL

It's complete—the job is done and another Moundbuilder will take its place along with the various yearbooks of '39 and all the preceding Moundbuilders. The success of any yearbook is largely due to the loyal efforts of the staff who contribute their work to the hands of the editor who, in return, offers them little thanks.

For this reason I have devoted this space to recognize each staff member and offer my personal thanks to: Marcia Hubenett, assistant editor, for the artwork in the opening section and division pages; the four class editors; Marian Basore, senior class; Clark Moots, junior class; Betty Dulaney, sophomore class; Geraldine Van Laningham, freshman class; for their efficient handling of the class sections; Rex Huff and Harry Womeldorf, assistant photographers; Bob Youle, sports editor; Wesley Woodson, artist, for the sketches in the class sections; Earle Volkland, artist, for the portrait sketches in the feature section; Earl Dungan, for his copy writing; Peggy Wright, Collegian editor, for her Story of the Year; Marlin Wallace, for his permission to use his Collegian column in the Piff—t section; Miss Miller, faculty advisor, for her guidance over the rough spots and last but not least Virgil Bayne, my laboratory partner, for so nobly carrying on during my frequent absences.

And so—here it is. Throughout the year it has haunted my thoughts and dragged my steps; I've loved it and I've hated it, but now it's yours to criticize, if you so desire, or to cherish as a good record of the events of '38 and '39 on the Campus of Southwestern College.

The Editor.

BUYING A CAMERA

these days is more than just purchasing something to "take pictures."

Instruments of Musical Merit

Whether a magnificent pipe organ such as recently installed in Southwestern College or a small piano such as you may desire for your home, the same quality of beautiful tone and fine workmanship is clearly evident to the critical musician as well as the layman.

Established in 1857, the W. W. Kimball Company has an unequaled and an unbroken record of 82 years in the service of American music lovers. The same family that founded the business owns and operates it today.

The W. W. Kimball Company has during its existence manufactured over half a million pianos and installed thousands of pipe organs not only in the U. S. A., but in Europe, South Africa, China and Japan.

For your musical requirements, consult Kimball—when contemplating the purchase of a pipe organ our technical representative is at your command for advice—when a piano is considered, call on our local dealer.

YEARS

of Building School Yearbooks

- Twenty-five years ago the first college annual of our career was lovingly delivered into the hands of the staff. The co-ed editor's hair-do was reminiscent of a lovely hay-stack, and the business manager wore a high, stiff collar and fancy flaps on his pockets.

- Time has changed many things since then, and our methods with them; but what we learned about thoroughly good quality and unfailing integrity in those twenty-five years goes into every yearbook produced in our plant today.

● Sunsets in colorful splendor over the Walnut Valley—winter nights that cover the hills with a soft blanket of snow—classes—rush parties—pep rallies 'round roaring fires that light up the black of the night—.

These and many other precious memories will become an integral part of any student privileged to obtain his college education on the Campus of the Purple. But, as the drip of water will wear away the hardest rock, time will blur the most vivid memories.

If, after many years, a glance at the pages of this yearbook will bring back memories, long since forgotten, then we feel, no matter what the aim of the '39 staff, the ultimate purpose of a yearbook has been accomplished.

This MOUNDBUILDER, we hope will be your book of memories.

DR. PENROSE S. ALBRIGHT

● Whose work in the department of physical science has attracted nationwide attention to Southwestern College. His quiet, unassuming manner belies the depth of his personality and the important part he plays in the policies of the college.

An amazing amount of frankness and honesty characterizes his relations with all his students. Many a student owes his college success to the simple, but sound, guidance of this truly great person.

VIEWS

● Between two ragged cedars Old North stands with seamed, kindly face, despite the inner turmoil of sciences and music.

● And Richardson, in calm serenity, muses upon the endless procession passing before her.

C A M P U S

● Cool shadows pause by the rustic well or loiter down an aisle of trees in the Mossman and Baker gardens. And who would deny that at evening the shadows stroll in pairs along the paths of "Prexy's Garden."

T O W E R S

● Richardson Hall—silver-crowned matriarch who patterns those towers piercing the dreams of each of us.

● To support our towers, here, in quiet strength, rise pillars symbolic of integrity and knowledge.

● The austere towers of Stewart Field House belie the exultant victory chants surging through this home of Builder teams.

D O O R S

● Opening onto the long corridor leading to a door marked "Success", are other doors like those of North Hall, through which many have passed to achievement.

● With what warm welcome these doors of Richardson open for each new student, never to close upon the genuine Builder.

Musick, McCaffree, Foster and Womeldorf grab class presidential honors and Prof. C. V. (Vicey Versey) Bertsch looms on the campus horizon.

The hill is caught in the most agonizing throes of rush week, and the Aurora-Laconian hall becomes a madhouse of melody as the A Cappella choir goes into action. There are occasional vain attempts to concentrate (on a textbook) with the croon of Crosby to soothe the fretted nerves.

ADELAIDE BADEN

This charming co-ed has contributed greatly to the college with her delightful ability in playing a most difficult instrument, the harp.

Adelaide started her harp work with Louise Friedenburg, and later took work under Lois Craft, Harpist for the Kansas City Philharmonic Orchestra. Last summer she studied under Vojmir Attl, Harpist with the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music.

As a member of this year's junior class, Adelaide has done much to add to the achievement of her class, and her pleasant personality has certainly been a definite asset to the Builder Campus.

FRANK E. MOSSMAN, Ph. B., M. A., D. D., LL. D.

PRESIDENT MOSSMAN

The silver hair sweeping up from a broad forehead, the arrogant hawk-like profile, the sensitive mouth and fine, dark eyes—all bespeak a "gentleman of the old school." It is one of the costs of his position that many students know him only as such. He is to be admired the more because he accepted the grave responsibilities of a debt-shackled college, knowing that official duties would build a barrier between students and himself. But to those privileged to know the individual man, he is a friend of rare warmth and understanding, whose sly humor glints from facets of the rocky surface. They have learned that the heavy brows know a trick of lifting inquiringly over keen eyes, that the stern mouth has a whimsical quirk, and that the president has a great, good heart and a deep understanding of men. We pay tribute to him who has given Southwestern a contribution of executive service and personal influence which none other could have given.

Soc. Sci. D.; Professor of Bible
and Religion.

DEAN OF THE COLLEGE

The kindly, philosophical personality of Leroy Allen has permeated into the hearts of each of us, and to us he will always be "The Dean".

His broadminded educational principles are an upbuilding influence in church school education, and one cannot attend his classes in religion without receiving a decidedly practical knowledge of religious principles.

We feel that the friendly, sincere character of "Our Dean" and advisor is of fundamental importance to the educational system of Southwestern College.

DEAN OF WOMEN

Miss White is Greek-Classic in stature, but modern in thought and interpretation of her position. In neither teaching nor Dean's work does she barricade herself behind the authority of her desk, but meets students as a friend, tolerant and stimulating. That is why we give confidence and respect to our Dean of the low chuckle and crinkling smile.

DEAN OF MEN

Sincerity in ideals, modernity of social thought, constant endeavour to assist the student to adapt himself to college situations are traits which bespeak William B. Plum. As Professor of Physics he is practical and thorough in every phase of class and laboratory work. In his second year as Dean of Men, improvements effected and standards set on the campus witness his capabilities.

THE SCHOOL OF LIBERAL ARTS

DR. PENROSE S. ALBRIGHT

It is really quite an old idea, this thing of "dividing by three"—Gaul knew it long before it was put into practice at Southwestern. We have found the division of the liberal arts school into three groups, those of Social Science, Natural Science, and Language and Literature, a great aid to progressive education. Miss Ada M. Herr, Dr. Penrose S. Albright, and Dr. T. Reese Marsh, the respective heads of these divisions, with their departmental professors, have established a program of genuine merit. By this plan a better organized curriculum is possible, and concentration in definite fields is open to students.

MISS ADA HERR

This concentration has developed into an honors system whereby students majoring in a certain subject can do research work equivalent to one phase of graduate study. These "honor students," as they are known, perform valuable experiments in the chemistry and physics departments, and many of them receive graduate fellowships and scholarships on the merits of their "honors" work. During the past year the aim of the social sciences to keep abreast of the rapidly progressing natural sciences has introduced the same plan into the sociology and English departments. The system has proved a great incentive to outstanding achievement and an invaluable form of practical education.

T. REESE MARSH

The balance of interests and activities in the life of a student is as delicate and as important as that of a fine instrument. Therefore, even the acid-bitten chemists have their Saturday afternoon testimonial teas, where students report on projects. The Social Science division provides opportunity for discussion of vital current problems in the meetings of the International Relations Club and Pi Gamma Mu, national honorary social fraternity founded on this campus by Dean Leroy Allen. Likewise, the Language and Literature division, which encompasses the Speech Department, makes definite contributions to the school through its organizations. The English Club annually publishes a volume of poems chosen from those submitted in the student poetry contest; the Romance Language Club, in its meetings, adapts the manners and customs of the people whose languages are studied. And the entire college shares in the enjoyment of the Campus Players' dramatic productions. This group of talented young actors and actresses embodies not just one interest, but universal sympathies in its theatrical world.

Which all proves that a house divided within itself does stand—our School of Liberal Arts, sister school of

THE SCHOOL OF FINE ARTS

The fine arts are often referred to as the higher things of life. Surely that statement has a literal interpretation at Southwestern where pianos, bassoons, and piccolos wail above floors inhabited by test tubes, prehistoric tusks and electric ranges. Although next year will see some of these neighbors removed to new quarters, the height of accomplishment in the School of Fine Arts will in no wise be affected.

Under the able direction of Luther O. Leavengood, Dean of the school, an extensive program is sponsored each year. The fact that Southwestern is a small school enables students to get individual training from an exceptional and noteworthy faculty. Yet this same fact does not affect the opportunity for hearing renowned concert artists. This year the Artist Course has brought such celebrities as Douglass Beattie, the Gordon Spring Quartet, and Josef Lehvinne to our campus.

LUTHER O. LEAVENGOOD

The new three-manual pipe organ, a gift of Mr. H. E. Kibbee, is a distinct addition to the school. The famous Riemenschneider, who dedicated the instrument, brought deep pleasure and inspiration to all music lovers and students present at the ceremony.

Another outstanding event in the musical calendar of the department was the meeting here of the Kansas State Music Teachers Association, combined with the Kansas Guild of Organists and the Kansas Federation of Music Clubs. The convention was memorable as the scene of the first Kansas All-State Piano Festival, featuring thirty pianos and more than 300 professional and student pianists.

Yet it is our own students who give to the School of Fine Arts its high repute. The Southwestern Band and the A Cappella Choir make extended concert tours each year, and individual artists have been accorded high recognition, making this a school of achievement and promise.

our blueprint near completion.

The fall of 1936 finds a class of 153 enthusiastic, ready-for-action-
sophomores ever ready to help
the green freshmen. Many changes have taken place during the vacation months. A summer love or two, a new faculty member, and the superior feeling of being an
"upperclassman". Our foundation
(class talents) with which we work
are of the best: athletics, scholarship, pep, religious interests, social activities, literary qualities and dramatics. The Moundbuilder
Queen, Virginia Moore; Lloyd
Tucker and Harold Bratches of the all-conference basketball team;
and the organizing of Kappa Rho
Pep Club feature the year.

Close behind the college band,
the junior class, with its "ninety
and nine" representatives, follow

ing torches, to again cast their stones to boost the mound to greater heights. Kathryn Green reigns over the Homecoming activities, and Bob Youle is student president. As maytime draws nearer we come to realize that the framework of our college is nearly finished and what we are to accomplish in years to come will depend upon the kind of materials we chose for the foundation and frame-work.

An outstanding senior class graduates in '39, from the college of the "Builders". Memories of activities such as: welcoming the heroes home—"Kack and Eddie" in their glory—the band carnival—. As all loyal S. C.'ers, we too have tried to reach the heights and be true "Builders". With the final counting we are, in all, 81 happy, yet sorrowful seniors.

Just three years ago the suave shades of sunset hill were temporarily tinted with the garish green glow of another group of freshmen. How fond are the memories of that day which seems scarce passed—new friendships and personalities that have become an intimate part of us like the stones so ceremoniously cast into the mound. But this day was soon to be over, and others have rapidly followed it until now we are forced to realize that our venture here is three-fourths complete.

Particular prominence was attained this year by one of our vivacious members, Alta Whitesell, who reigned as Homecoming Queen. Also, we can't forget the school organist Gordon Young, whose nimble, agile digits brought forth vast quantities of pleasing tones from the new organ.

Looking back over the year, we see how a drop in the sock market has shortened hosiery—how the English students took their tea with cup and Chaucer—how Charlie McCarthy's heart pulpitated when he visited a paper factory—how Winfield was "balled" up with so many championships—and how.

The final quarter is ready and so is the junior class of '39. Like the attractive secretary, we are sure to succeed when we come to the last lap.

Those swingin' sophomores began their activities class day in the same victorious vein as established last year by defeating the "Flat Foot Floogie" freshmen in the same manner they disposed of this year's junior jitterbugs. They climaxed the day's events by pulling the freshmen through the lagoon to prove for all time that as freshmen, the members of the class of '42 were all wet.

The class of '41 will long remember this year. It has been a grand year, full of fun, and during which the members of the class have really caught the spirit of the Jinx and become Builders.

Who says being a freshman isn't a bed of roses?

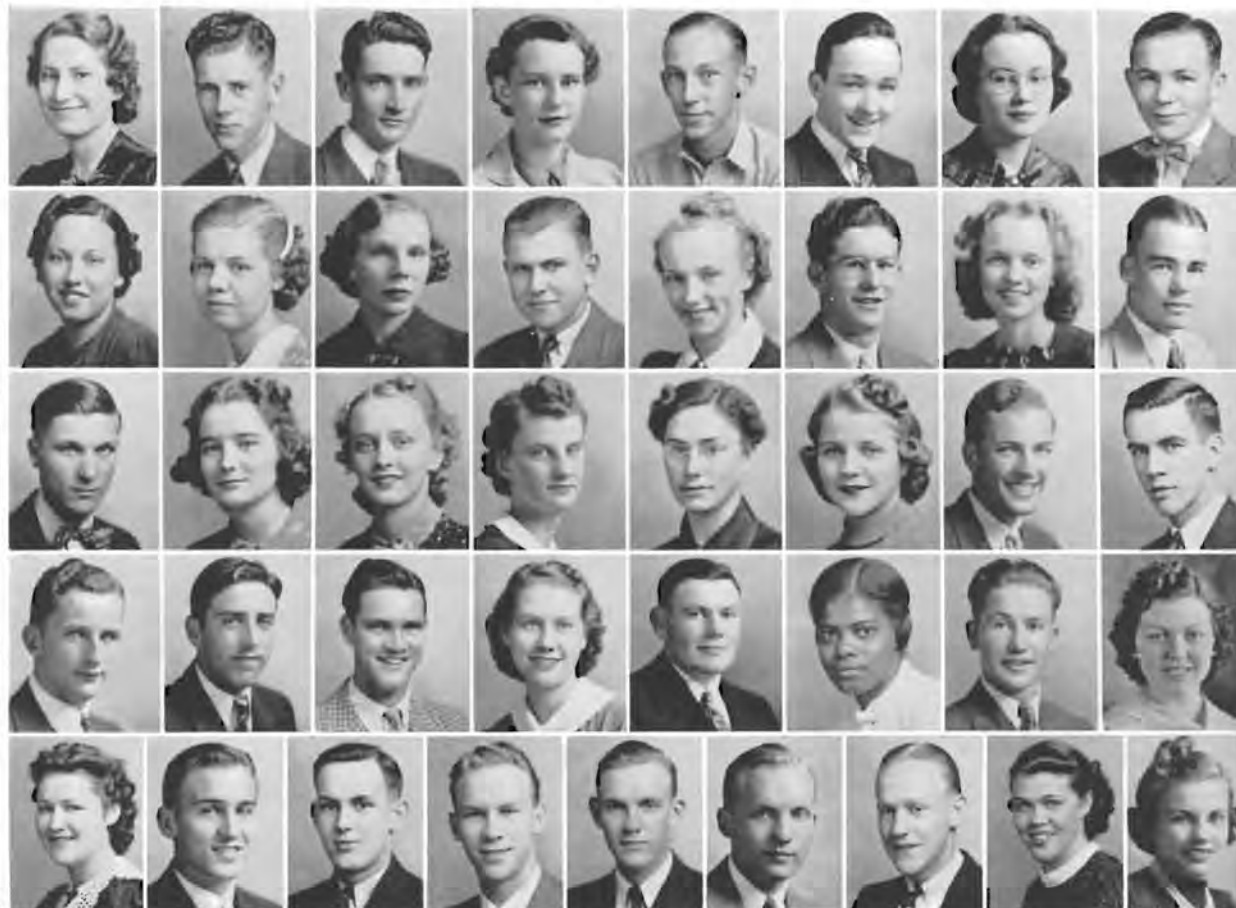

Like roses, freshmen are carefully cultivated and nurtured in the beginning. The freshman entering college feels the "rosy" atmosphere from the day he is given the once-over to the night he spends cramming for his first six weeks' test. (Every bed of roses must have its thorns.)

Among memorable experiences of this year's freshmen will be the traditional class day tug-of-war with the sophomores coming out on the high end (the dry end, incidentally). The carefree frosh boys declared the ducking was a good way to begin the year with a clean slate.

Thus, like fragrant roses (more flowery talk) this year's freshmen have acquired an air. It is an air of pride and intense loyalty for the school that has given them these rich experiences—their new Alma Mater—Southwestern College.

WHO'S WHO IN AMERICA

At the end of his four years' pursuit of knowledge, friendships, financial "coups", and what-have-you-done, the senior stands before an august body composed of members of the faculty and Student Council. And in solemn file the activities and accomplishments of his life at Southwestern pass before judicious eyes. From the upper one-third of this graduating class nine persons were selected on the basis of leadership, scholarship, personality, and potentialities. With due honor the names of these seniors take their place in the current edition of Who's Who, in student publications, and in the traditions of the school.

(Due to an unintentional error, discovered too late for correction, Miss Sheldon's picture was omitted. For such a grave error, we offer apology.)

Intercollegiate competition in various sports is an integral part of the life of any modern college. Of primary value for those who are privileged through ability to participate under the school's colors, sports hold great interest for every member of the student body. Perhaps the greatest single factor in building such an intercollegiate program, teaching the rules of the game and instilling the ideals of sportsmanship and fair play, is the coaching staff.

Southwestern engages in a full program of intercollegiate sports as a member of the Central Intercollegiate Conference. Competition in the six school circuit, "toughest league in the nation," consists of football, basketball, track and tennis. Don Cooper, director of athletics at Southwestern for the second year, created a well-knit, interesting and eventful program.

Don Cooper also filled the important function of head football coach. In spite of a humdrum football season, Southwestern looked with pride upon the fine spirit and mettle exhibited by the team. Second in command of Southwestern's football army was George Parker, also serving his second year in his present capacity of assistant football coach, physical education instructor and director of the men's intramural program. Parker also is behind the destiny of the track squad, to which increasing emphasis is being accorded at the hill school. Ray Henry, former Builder athlete, joined the football coaching staff in a subordinate capacity this year.

Basketball enjoyed one of its most successful years at Southwestern under George Gardner, the best basketball coach "in captivity". Under his guidance the cage team netted twenty-one victories out of twenty-three starts. The imperturbable coach who never raises his voice in explaining those smooth plays, garnered his second conference championship in two years at S. C. Not content with this crown, George took his boys to the thirty-two-team meet at Kansas City and sat on the bench, completely undisturbed, while the purple wrapped up the national honors.

No woman should be last, and Lillian Cloud is far from being least in the affections of those who know her. Under her watchful eye and cheery smile, the women of the college participate in intramural sports.

August dog-days faded, faded away into memory and September arrived with its quiet charm. College portals swung wide, students trooped to college towns. Gallant young swains walked their best girls about the campus or sipped a "coke" in the campus drugstore. Incidentally some students attended classes and listened vacantly to learned discourses. But out behind the campus buildings, on a smooth turf-covered field, strange sights were seen. Huge, fierce, burly-looking fellows, dressed in outlandish armor, ran about wildly, lined up facing each other and crashed bruisingly together. Football season had arrived again.

Campus "huskies" said good-bye to pie, malts and late dates for the next three months. They turned from the "life of Riley" to bruised muscles, aching bodies, splintered bones and daily practices. The god of competition always is able to recruit numerous devotees from the ranks of those "pursuing" a higher education. These sweaty warriors neglect their studies and uphold the honor of their school. So the first call of coaches Don Cooper, George Parker and Ray Henry brought some forty hopefuls to the gridiron. Later the lettermen, showing their obvious "superiority", appeared.

Southwestern's 1938 gridiron menace was built about a score of lettermen and veterans. Freshmen and reserves contested hotly the doubtful positions. Familiar names were listed on the roster: Captain Chalmer Woodard, "Bill" Musick the great, Edgar Hinshaw of basketball fame, and others too numerous to mention. So the work of whipping a team into shape for conference competition went ahead under the able direction of head coach, Don Cooper.

Cool September nights, with a threat of fall in the air; sunny afternoons and colorful shrubbery. So onto the white-striped field the Builders trotted for their first game of the year. Scheduled under the brilliant lights, it was an inter-squad game. Veterans were arrayed on one side, reserves and freshmen on the other with some seasoned men to give them guidance. The freshmen unleashed an attack that netted them a touchdown in the first quarter. Then the varsity came back and while holding the freshmen during the remainder of the game, themselves scored five touchdowns for a score of 32-6.

"Hope springs eternal in the human heart." Martin at fullback gave weight and speed and Edgar Hinshaw, Webb and Hotton supplied ball-carriers of the featherweight order, for the Cooper boys. But there was a strong Wichita team which bowed only before mighty Army, 32-0, and a good Fort Hays squad on the horizon. Playing alert ball, S. C. opened the 1938 season by defeating its old rival, College of Emporia 14-0. Stevens and Hinshaw did nice passing and Hotton and Martin gained on the ground.

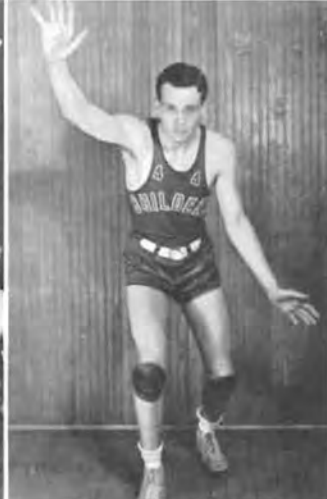

Unscored upon in conference play the year before, Wichita was doped to an overwhelming victory over S. C. Earnest young Builder warriors were no match for the smooth Shocker team. The final score was 66-0, largest in the history of grid relations between the two schools. Hinshaw and Hotton played well but no gains could be made through an impregnable line. Stevens to Webb added many yards through the air.

From the beginning of the season, injuries dogged the purple team. Captain Woodard's knee was injured in the first work-out and bothered all season. Forgetting the Wichita unpleasantness, Cooper's men took on the Oklahoma Baptist "Bison". They put on a big second period to win 27-0 in a nonconference game. Emporia Teachers found S. C. in bad shape and took the victory 33-0. The Builder passing combination of Hinshaw to Baker was effective during much of the game. Pittsburg also was highly favored over the Builders. The Gorrillas won 25-0 but S. C. showed flashy work in the air, Stevens and Hinshaw completing 14 passes for 152 yards.

A hard-smashing, smooth-functioning Sterling College team emerged victorious over the Builders 33-14, with Malone making one S. C. touchdown and Jones racing 45 yards with a recovered fumble for the other. A veteran Hays team was the opponent on Homecoming Day, winning 28-0. The Builders went 165 yards through the air to 45 for Hays, and Emerson MacDonald intercepted a pass near his own goal, running it back 68 yards. In the final game the purple team journeyed to Southwest Missouri Teachers College to suffer a 20-0 setback. Captain Woodard led the way for the Builders, starring on offense and Daugherty played fine ball on defense.

Final standings in the conference found Wichita at the top, undefeated. Hays, Pittsburg and Emporia followed, with Southwestern in the cellar. Willis Musick, Builder center, was placed on the second all-conference team and received honorable mention on the all-state team.

Only praise and eulogistic adjectives can describe basketball as played by the Southwestern team. It was tops, in the nation as well as in Kansas. It is no exaggeration to say that this year's team stands conspicuously high in the roll of many great Southwestern teams. The team was built about a nucleus of four veterans, Lloyd Tucker, Bratches, Hinshaw, and Briar. Price Fugit and Carle Dix alternated at the other guard post.

For five years Southwestern has either held or shared the Central Intercollegiate Conference basketball championship. Five years ago Southwestern and Pittsburg shared honors; the next year the Builders were alone. Three years ago Southwestern, Hays and Pittsburg cut the cake equally and for the last two years, Southwestern has held the undisputed championship. Three undisputed championships out of four for the three seniors on the team! Here's to Harold Bratches, Lloyd Tucker and Edgar Hinshaw who never have played on a losing team.

Captained by little "Eddie" Hinshaw, Southwestern played a swell brand of basketball to gain twenty-one victories out of twenty-three games played. Nonconference victories were won over teams from eight states. In the Kansas City tournament some twenty states, ranging from West Virginia to California, from Minnesota to Louisiana, were represented. The Builders also received a tentative invitation to participate in play at Madison Square Garden in New York, but were finally ruled out on the basis of freshmen playing at the hill school.

The situation looked hopeless for the Builders mid-way in conference play. With five games played, Southwestern had suffered a stunning defeat by St. Benedicts, the new conference member. Then Pittsburg also toppled the Gardner boys. But a fighting S. C. team began to turn on the power and was not again headed during the season. From then on basketball fever at Southwestern remained at a high point, subsiding only after a special assembly welcoming the boys home from Kansas City, and a huge dinner in the gymnasium honoring the Builders.

Southwestern took on St. Benedicts, an unknown quantity, in the first game of the conference season. The victory went to the Builders, 42-33. Then came a decisive defeat of Wichita; and in the return game with St. Benedicts, a sluggish purple team was defeated 30 to 25. Southwestern prestige rose after a 37-30 victory over Emporia, doped to be the "toughest" opposition in the conference. Then Pittsburg came to town and after the gun was fired, had given Southwestern its only other defeat of the year, 37-32.

But the Builders pulled up their "pants" and won their remaining games from Emporia, Hays, Wichita, Pittsburg and Hays. The Fort Hays team threw a real scare into the Builders and it was only the long-range shooting of Marvin Tucker that gave Southwestern a one-point victory in the final seconds. Cooperation by Wichita and Emporia in defeating Pittsburg aided the Builders to an undisputed championship.

Coach Gardner and Captain Hinshaw say, "We won, so why get excited." Tucker, Bratches and Cooper, however, seem vitally interested in the details of that last conference game with Hays.

BASKETBALL

On the basis of successful conference play, Southwestern was invited to Kansas City's Intercollegiate meet, one of thirty-two championship teams. In the first game of the tournament Eau Claire State Normal of Wisconsin was defeated 39 to 30. Next came Westminster of Fulton, Mo., which went down 37 to 31 before the purple attack. Southwestern's "Mutt and Jeff" set of forwards, together with a superb team, were instrumental in eliminating the Maryville Teachers of Missouri 53 to 37. Throughout the tournament Hinshaw's floor-play and Tucker's scoring spearheaded the Builder attack. In the finals of the meet S. C. clashed with San Diego State of California. In a breath-taking finish during which a Builder twelve-point lead was whittled down, Southwestern continued its deliberate, careful ball-playing. The purple-clad boys emerged the victors, 32 to 31. Southwestern ranks with Long Island University and Oregon State, winners of similar tournaments as the top teams of the nation.

Southwestern's "point a minute" team has its star players in Hinshaw, Tucker and Bratches. But it is not a "star" team, rather featuring smooth, co-ordinated teamwork. The team was impressive in averaging 41.5 points per game during its 23-game season, while holding its opponents to an average of 32 points per game. In conference play S. C. scored 390 points to its opponent's 338, being second in offense and second in defensive play.

Once again Lloyd Tucker, Builder star forward, walked off with top scoring honors in the conference. His average was 13.4 points per game. Bratches, Briar and Hinshaw also ranked high. Able assistance was lent in crucial moments by other members of the varsity. "From the acorn grows the oak." Much of Southwestern's success is built upon reserve strength and a schedule of games for the "B" team was arranged. Future strength was foretold by victories over El Dorado, Arkansas City and Dodge City junior colleges. A series of home and home games with the Wichita yearlings was divided.

Southwestern was liberally represented in the choosing of all-star conference teams. The Associated Press placed Harold Bratches and Lloyd Tucker on its first team and Edgar Hinshaw on the second team. "Sticker" Briar and Marvin Tucker were given honorable mention. Bratches, Tucker and Hinshaw were general choices for all-conference berths, placing also on the all-tournament teams at Kansas City.

The "bucket" trio, Holy, Holy and Unholy pose with the trophies won in four years of college competition. They are: four C. I. C. crowns, Southwestern Invitational third, Okla. Invitational second, Mexico City first and NATIONAL INTERCOLLEGIATE CHAMPIONS. In the words of Lloyd Tucker, "We didn't mean to win all these; somebody pushed us." INTRAMURAL SPORTS

Featuring a program designed to interest as many boys as possible in participation, intramurals this year were bigger and better than ever before. Under the genial and interested direction of George Parker, physical education instructor, more than 120 boys participated in basketball alone. Emphasis throughout the program was on good sportsmanship, clean playing and physical activity.

Milton Thorne emerged winner of the table tennis division over forty-four competitors. Second place went to Harold Stevens, and third place to Marvin Tucker and William Swartz. Plans have been made for a single elimination bracket in tennis singles. Next year it is hoped to have intramural touch-football and softball.

Eighteen exponents of the manly art of self-defense participated in the boxing tournament. Winners were, first and second places: under 125 lbs.—Harold Tredway and Darrell Marvel; 125-35 lbs.—Al Schwint, Douglass Moore; 135-45 lbs.—Jimmie Webber, Jack Welfelt; 145-55 lbs.—Jack Daugherty, Craig Tetirick; 155-65 lbs.—William Dotson, Elmer Johnson; 175 lbs. and over—Dale Marine, Ben Hicks.

A number of grunt and groan boys also appeared. Winners of first and second places were: Under 125 lbs.—Ronald Brown, Leonard Warren; 125-35 lbs.—Edgar Hinshaw, Douglass Moore; 135-45 lbs.—Cecil Porter, Charles Hinshaw; 145-55 lbs.—Craig Tetirick, Jack Daugherty; 165-75—Paul Williams, Neal Dillman; heavyweight—George Morford, Dale Marine.

Seven teams participated in the basketball round-robin, with twenty-one games being run off. The championship was decided on a point basis. Fifty points were given for entering a team, one point a player up to ten in each game and ten points for winning a game. Pi Sigs, lettermen's society, took first; second went to "House of David" team; and third to the "Terrible Turks". Other teams participating were: Kappa Rho, Athens, Delphi and Holland Hall.

SIGMA DELPHI HONOR

A year packed full of good times, good programs and good kids has come to an end. Winnie Brown and Jim Phillippi led things off first semester as the heads of Sigma and Delphi, and were ably followed during the second term by Ruth Meeker and Harlan Lenander. Many society members attended their last society meeting this spring and many freshman having served a year of apprenticeship are ready to step in and get to work. How could we ever forget this year in Sigma-Delphi marked by such unprecedented acts as truckin' in the society hall (as a part of the initiation, of course), males and females seated on opposite sides of the hall with a few daring couples in the center section, and that never-to-be-forgotten rush party in the gym with everyone joining in a gala Virginia Reel to the tune of The Dipsy Doodle.

Pledge week, previously known to the undignified as a week of hell for the pledges, has come to be a big always-to-be-remembered part of a college career. Eight dates in one week, wow! If we could only keep a pace like that! Fun for the old members, but for the pledges it is something different—questionable at the time but deep and meaningful when it's said and done. This is the week of dashing acquaintances, flattery and mud slinging, to say nothing of the three rush parties and the spirited yelling of the We! Wy! Wo! The rush theme this year was "Down the Mississippi". The informal "Down on the Levee" was rained in to the plantation mansion, but the remaining parties went as scheduled without external difficulties. Stewart Gym was never more gay than when the society and rushees ate, played and were merry at the huge "Mardi Gras". Rush week is really the big week for the societies; studies aren't forgotten, but they are undoubtedly placed in the background, for a few days. This year's rush week was as successful as any society has ever experienced. And why not, with genial "Joe-College" Al Schwint and "personality plus" Marcia Hubenett as captains of the big busy period preceding formal initiation.

How could one forget seeing those humble, bewhiskered Delphian pledges and those meek Sigma beginners with the three-inch green hair ribbons and the shining make-up-less facial extremities bowing graciously before their elders and quakingly uttering, "Sir, I am but an obnoxious troglodyte", and with but a moment's pause continuing with "A troglodyte, is one who creeps into holes. One of any savage race that dwells in caves; a cave dweller. Hence, any person of primitive or degraded ways of living. An anthropoid ape, as the chimpanzee."

The pledges weren't the only ones talking during that memorable week. Remember the too-familiar scene—an old member gripping a blue printed pledge-made paddle vigorously and boldly suggesting to his respective victim, "Assume an angle, pledge." or "Oh, yes, I have a pair of shoes that need shining. Not an order, mind you, just a suggestion—but remember, there comes a day of reckoning." But cheer up, pledge—vengeance is sweet and next year you, too, will be making rapid acquaintances and proudly wearing that ribbon identifying you as a Sigma-Delphi member.

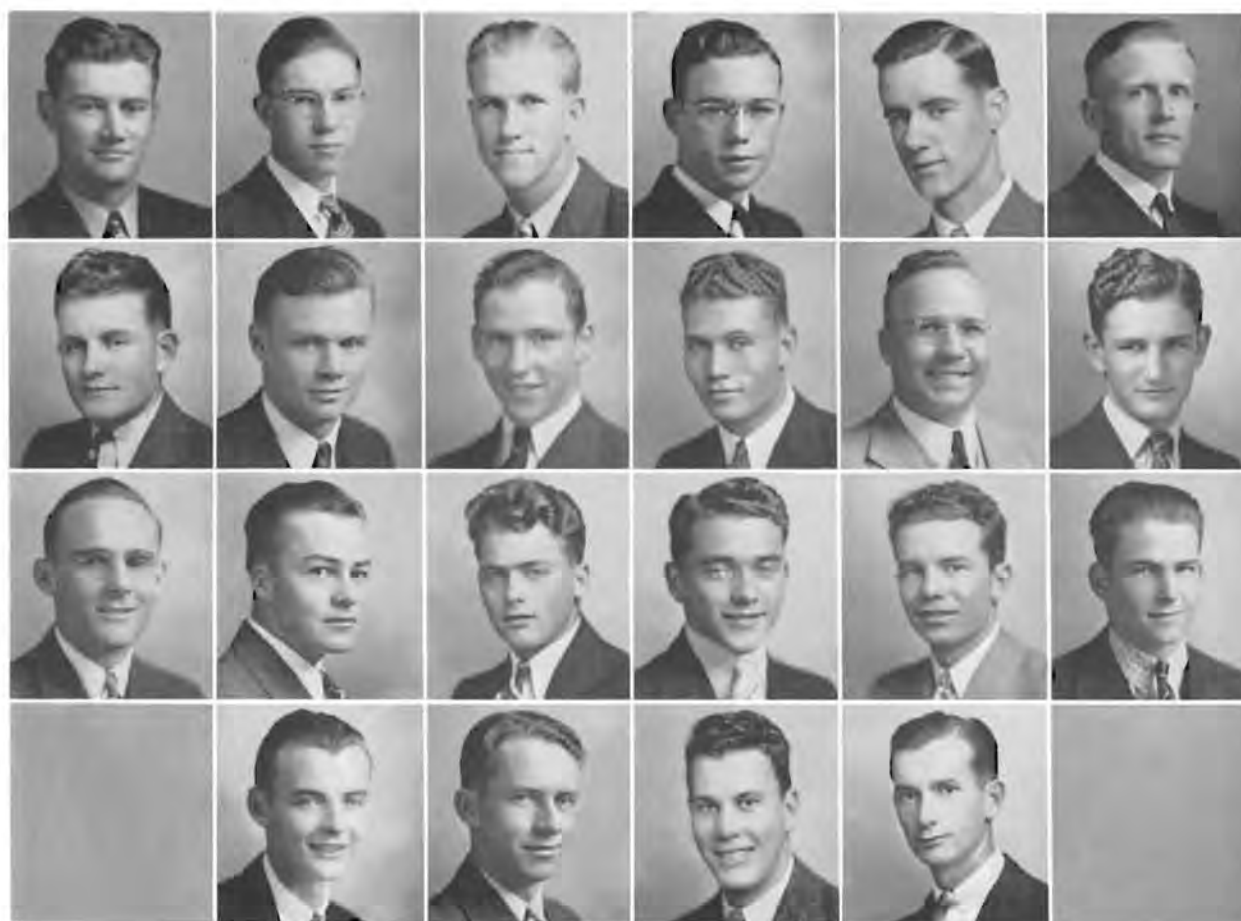

DELPHI

There have been some serious times, too, for no Sigma can forget the thrill of seeing all the pledges with their lighted candles taking the oath of loyalty to the society and receiving the gracious welcome of Winnie Brown. These attractive girls with their eager, serious expression symbolized better than any words what Sigma meant to them. Such moments as this will ever be a part of our memory book.

Remember that hayrack ride and big bonfire in October when weiner skins were used to add atmosphere and make Strader's glen kinda "hollow-weenie"? Ghost and other stories were the order of the evening with a few songs and special features added.

Ferdinand, the Bull (George Reynolds to you) was undoubtedly a hit of the Christmas party which featured not only the usual relay races, but some novel stunts by the groups of toys, animals, and famous people who were really society members playing make-believe. The Christmas tree presided over by Santa Phillippi and Mrs. Santa Dieterich was a thrill to all of us kiddies; for we all got balloons, toys, cigars, candy, paper dolls, books, pencils and everything to delight the heart of a college student.

Another outstanding annual event in the criterion of the society is the presentation of the "Fakelty" program, where the truth portrayed is stranger than the friction resulting from it. This specialty gives all interested an opportunity to view the 'profs' as they are from raincoats to artificial bald heads. This year's plot really came to a heated climax with the plight of Drs. Marsh and Baker.

DELPHI

Concluding the social events is the annual spring formal banquet. This is the event that calls for both the fellow's reserve courage to ask for that date he's been wanting all year and his reserve change to purchase that corsage which plays such an important part in making the evening a success. A good program, good food, and a good time are always enjoyed by all.

Now it's all over—Sigma-Delphi, we bow reverently to you in appreciation for what you have done. Here's to more years with equal success.

BELLE ATHENS HONOR

. . . "So let us give our love to you, dear Belle Athenians." Combining the spirit of the familiar Belle-Athenian song with comradeship, good-fellowship, gaiety, and worthwhile achievement, the brother-sister societies of Belles and Athens continue their campus activities this year. Realizing as their responsibility the creation of an interesting social life, giving students an opportunity to appear in society programs and in dramatic productions, the societies filled an important niche in student life at Southwestern.

The peak of activity and interest for new students at Southwestern was reached during the society rush week, with good-natured rivalry raging between the campus organizations. Rush week activities were held early in September after arduous work in preparation for the parties during the summer and early days of school. Belle president Lois May Wright and Athenian president Robert Youle, with the rush captains, Frances Robinson and Eugene Graham, were in charge of activities.

Rush events consisted of two parties, one an informal affair held in the garden at the home of Adelaide Baden in Winfield. Amid beautiful fall surroundings and under soft lights, a musical program was presented by society members. For additional entertainment, several comic motion picture reels were shown and the party concluded with light refreshments. The formal rush party was held at the Country Club in the nature of a Casino Party. Games were played, a program presented and refreshments served during the course of a delightful evening.

Pledge week followed with excitement and suspense as rushees made their choices. Having pledged the cream of the freshman crop to Belle-Athenians, activities continued with informal initiation. There was an impromptu program held in the society hall where great and varied talent was displayed. Then came stunts in the business district of town, featuring an ancient buggy drawn by teams of husky Athenian pledges. Pledge week miseries delighted old members who demanded free shines, seats in the crowded bus and other privileges. Then it was comical to see a "dignified" but nervous freshman carrying an alarm clock and a pillow, or a suitcase and a glass of water to classes.

Soon the societies settled down to more normal activities. But remember the hay-rack ride on Hallowe'en, ending at an old wreck of a haunted house? Of course there was cider and doughnuts to redeem the situation, with ghost stories to give the proper atmosphere The "sporty" party in the gymnasium featuring boxing and wrestling matches. . . . Gaiety and humor at the Christmas party in the basement of the La Gonda hotel where everyone got his fill of Christmas candy. . . . The "bingo" game which ended with some having a monopoly of prizes. . . . The delightful Valentine party in the student union, with games, stunts and entertainment. . . . The former Belle program, with Miss Eleanor Hays, one of the first Belle presidents, present. . . . Finally the selection of Kathryn Green to reign as May Queen.

Among the most interesting events of the year was the annual three-act play, "The Noble Outcast". The Belles-Athenian Stock Co. presented this typical, old fashioned melodrama, complete with hero, heroine and wily villain. But the main character was the "noble outcast", an old tramp who turned out to be an escaped convict and the father of the beautiful heroine. The heroine was played by Betty Miller, the hero by Robert Youle, the Colonel and his wife by Evan McCall and Phyllis Shook, the villain by Gale Shields, the tramp by Ronald Brown, the Irish maid by Frances Robinson and the officer by Jack Gorsuch.

Necessary for the efficient continuation of any organization are hard-working and conscientious officers. Society presidents the first semester were Lois May Wright and Robert Youle. Other officers were: vice-presidents, Frances Robinson and

Pi Sigma Phi, or "Pi Sig" as it is generally known is the campus organization of lettermen. Membership is limited to those men who have earned letters in some major sport: football, basketball, track or tennis. The letters are awarded to the men who have participated in a specified number of games or earned a specified number of points.

Pi Sig is a fraternity which represents the athletes in organized functions on the campus and promotes scholarship and sportsmanship among the men of muscle. An honor award is given annually to the athlete who attains the highest scholastic standing.

Initiation and the spring banquet are the outstanding events of the year for those men who have earned an "S" in inter-collegiate competition. During this year's pledge-week a new member was required to address old members with a click of the heels and salute. Each pledge was requested to bring a long list of rare items to the initiation proper, also several paddles of specified size and strength. As a result of the "swat parade" several of the boys ate their meals standing up, for a week. The spring banquet, with its elaborate favors and formality, is an affair to which most co-eds would "mortgage the old farm" for a bid.

Bob Whitesell, Archon; James Phillippi, Vice-Archon; Bill Musick, Secretary-treasurer, were the officers for this year.

FEATURES AND ORGANIZATIONS

"Government of the people, by the people, for the people . . . may it never perish from the face of the earth." As "a cross section of life", Southwestern College has her own student government, organized for the purpose of performing functions which the student body must do as a whole. In this respect the student council, composed of four members and two alternates from each class, serving for two semesters, is the most executive group on the hill.

Having as its duties the initiation of constructive student enterprise and regulation of organizations, the council operates under officers chosen annually by the student body. Under the capable leadership of Student President Chalmer Woodard, the council has completed a very successful year. Virginia Moore, one of the few girls ever elevated to high student office at S. C. served as vice-president.

Other officers serving the council this year were: secretary, first semester, Kathryn Green; second semester, Lois May Wright; finance chairman, Clark Moots; activities chairman, Robert Youle. The council again had Dr. Penrose Albright as its congenial and helpful faculty sponsor.

The cordial atmosphere so prevalent on Southwestern's campus is magnified through the activities of this group of upper-class men and women. The work of the council is under the supervision of Dr. William Plum, dean of men, and Miss Chalcea White, dean of women. Each year a number of freshman students are assigned to each counselor whose duty and pleasure it is to assist in blending the counselee's school life and school work. The counselor devotes himself, not only to his own group, but to the welfare of all student activities, as shown by the all-school party sponsored by the counselors.

The charm school sponsored by the women's counselor group was repeated this year, achieving still greater heights. The "sessions" were held at Smith Hall, but the effects were felt far beyond the serenity of its stuccoed walls.

Another new venture this season was the Mother-Daughter tea which was presented for all mothers of girls attending Southwestern. The novel venture proved quite successful as a means of acquainting the parents with the pleasing atmosphere of Southwestern's curricula.

Elizabeth Little and Harlan Lenander were selected as presidents for the year.

THE A CAPPELLA CHOIR

The Southwestern A Cappella Choir is in its thirteenth year of organization, and since its appearance in New York in 1931, this group has been granted an unquestioned national prominence.

Last spring the Choir toured to St. Louis, where they participated in the First National College Choir Festival, which was an outstanding feature of the Music Educators National Conference.

The Choir is under the direction of Professor Melvin H. Geist, who is having his third successful season with this choral group. The keenness of the instruction and the spirited interpretation are vividly displayed in the choir's performances. The tour this year extended through Central and Western Kansas, with concerts in practically every city in this section.

The program included both sacred and secular selections, ranging from liturgical motets in the original Latin to modern works by contemporary composers. In addition to the regular concerts, three radio broadcasts were made over stations KFH in Wichita, KWBG in Hutchinson, and KVBG in Great Bend.

SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA

The Southwestern Symphony Orchestra, Dean Luther O. Leavengood, conductor, was this year acclaimed to be among the best in the state. The first concert was given November 27. The featured soloist of the performance was Miss Frances Ambrose, Instructor in Piano.

Mozart's "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik" for string orchestra opened the concert, followed by the rhapsodic strains of Liszt's "Concerto Pathetique in E minor" for piano and orchestra. Here the technical and sympathetic qualities of Miss Ambrose's artistry appeared to distinct advantage in the contrasting moods of the selection.

Brahms' "Symphony No. 2 in D major" won enthusiastic applause, as did also Wagner's brilliant overture to "Die Meistersinger von Nuremberg."

The orchestra made an appearance before the student assembly for the first time in recent years, playing the last two movements of the Brahms' "Symphony No. 2 in D major" and Moussorgsky's "A Night on Bald Mountain," a concert fantasy.

Earl Dungan was student manager, Dwight Benton, librarian, and Glenn Matthews was in charge of property.

SOUTHWESTERN COLLEGE BAND

The Southwestern College Band, under the direction of Professor C. O. Brown, Head of the Department of Instrumental Music, is the official promoter of any campus activity devoted to pep, enthusiasm, and Ye Olde Schule Spirite.

The Band this year enjoyed an unusually eventful year in which two major trips were made over the state. In addition several one-day trips were made with the football team. Most outstanding was the trip to Wichita where the band was featured in a 30-minute broadcast over KFH with Dean Allen as announcer and interpolator, and where also the feminine hearts received a thrill when famous Herby Kay led the band in several marches.

Various solo specialities were used, and proved popular with the audiences everywhere. Masterful cornet technique was displayed by the "Corn Quartet". La Jeune Dieterich, Margaret Tobias, Earl Dungan, and Joe Keyes were vocalists for the season. Bob Black, national champion drummer, demonstrated virtuosity in controlling the elusive drum sticks in numerous performances. Delmar Seevers and Maxine Dieterich capably majored the marchers.

In commenting on the work of the year, Mr. Brown said, "It is the best band of my entire 18 years at Southwestern," and that is saying a mouthful.

SOUTHWESTERN ORGAN CLUB

Pictured above is the console of the Kibbe Memorial organ which was dedicated on October 9, 1938, by Mr. Albert Riemenschneider. It has been an essential factor in another successful year for the Southwestern College Organ Club.

This organization is a study club for organists and students interested in raising the standard of organ playing and intensifying the interest of music lovers in the organ, as a church and concert instrument. They strive to become acquainted with the hymns and services of all churches as well as to become familiar with contemporary secular works.

This year's study has been confined to American composers and their compositions. One public recital was given on the Kibbe Memorial organ, and a good will recital was presented at Friends University in Wichita, Kansas.

Mr. Arthur Poister, one of America's foremost organists was presented in recital on the Kibbe Memorial organ March 9, 1939. Mr. Riemenschneider was also the guest of the club after his dedicatory recital in October. He gave an informal lecture on Bach for the club and guests at the home of the club president, Mrs. Redic.

The club has again been honored by one of America's outstanding organists and composers. Mr. Robert Bidell of Brooklyn, N. Y., dedicated one of his compositions to the club. The club has had two similar dedications in the past.

THE CAMPUS PLAYERS

Long hours of practicing "ah, ay, ee, oo", of trying for graceful gestures until muscles scream, of mumbling lines feverishly even in sleep, that's what is behind the itching layers of grease paint masking an actor's face. And yet, what Campus Player would give up the long, tedious hours, the suspense and exhilaration of the night of the show, the gay camaraderie between scenes, the rollicking, unforgettable anecdotes which take a curtain call at each reunion? Who would forego the furious verbal lashing of "the indomitable Graham", salved a moment later by her swift smile, or who will forget her as the tragic, brilliant Queen Elizabeth?

Twelve years ago Dr. A. E. Kirk, then president of Southwestern, asked Miss Edith Dielmann to be responsible for a new organization to be called the Leneans. This group was to choose a Biblical play each year and present it over the Southwest Kansas Conference as many times as possible. Through the years this group has not ceased to be a responsibility. Let us present this year's officers: Richard Leftwich, who fills the enviable position of stage manager, enviable because a stage manager is one who spends his time watching his helpers help; "Herbie" Hendricks, who reaches down in his hip pocket, pulls out a big money bag and says: "A second W. T., yep, that's me"; Eula Van Natta, who sends out the advertising; and Elizabeth Little, president of the organization.

The play chosen this year was "Judith", the story of which revolved around Judith, a crippled slave girl of Pontius Pilate who was healed and converted to the new faith by Jesus. Pilate, horrified and conscience-stricken at the thought of the part he played in the crucifixion of Christ, exclaims, "My hands will never be clean again. Never again!" and the play ends with the uniting of Ctesiphon and Judith and his avowal that he will follow Christ.

From February 5 to April 9, the play was presented 22 times.

THE ENGLISH CLUB

Though it is called the "English Club" and though everything stops for tea at four o'clock, monocles and broad "a's" do not prevail at the monthly Sunday afternoon meetings of the Southwestern English Club.

Rather, one may expect to hear muted music and the review of a book, play or poem. The club is divided into three study groups dealing separately with the novel, the drama, and poetry. Each group, with its faculty sponsor, meets to discuss pertinent problems in its specific field.

One of the major projects of the year was the publication of the fifth edition of The Fledgling. This small volume of poetry, notable for its diversity of subject matter and skill of execution, was edited by Betty Miller.

Another highlight of the year was the dinner of March 24, when Dr. J. Duncan Spaeth addressed the group.

Dr. T. Reese-Marsh, head of the department, with Dr. Annette Andersen and Miss Margaret Miller, was responsible for a great measure of the success of the club during the past year.

"Where's Johnny?" "Oh, he'll be here after a while; he's only half an hour late now." Such chatter usually opens a Moundbuilder staff meeting. "Johnny" is none other than Clark Moots, who got the name of Johnny-on-the-Spot by being about an hour and a half late at a staff meeting last fall.

Such jokes and friendliness have made working a little easier for the staff. The waffle supper in the fall served to get all members acquainted with the plans for the book, and from then on informal meetings were held at various times. There have been times, of course, which were not so much fun—writing copy and trying to get it in on time (see A1), reading proof, or trying to get groups together for pictures. Then there was the big surprise the editor got when he opened a package of proof only to find an inset had not been placed over a certain section of a locker room scene and there was barely time to make it over.

And so with a lot of work and a little fun on the side, the staff presents the 1939 Moundbuilder. Thus far it has been ours; now it belongs to you—we hope you like it.

KAPPA RHO PEP CLUB

Original with everything except Southwestern Spirit and always carrying an old time dose of that is one of the common characteristics of the snappiest gang of fellows on the hill. Whenever a group of classy looking white sweaters with a Greek insignia on the outside of them and a smiling chunk of live wire on the inside of them get together, you can expect a mass generation of enthusiasm.

Since its organization, it has functioned as a fanfare of fun and frolic, a fruitful filtration of far-fetched felicity, and a fascinating fulfillment of furious feverish flirtations. In other words Kappa Rho is synonymous with anything pertaining to school pep and school spirit.

Radio sponsors were green with envy when Rod Brown and his Kappa Rho swing band presented their assembly program. Yes, and the stunt at the game when lovely Aida, the hero, the villain and the entire cast presented the musical entitled "Who Spit?"

A limited membership of twenty-four is maintained. The pledges each year are carefully rushed, but not so carefully initiated. The yearly calender of events is climaxed each year with the spring "Sweetheart" banquet.

Harlan Lenander was first semester president for the group, and Bob Youle ascended to the throne for the second semester.

Like the riddle of the Sphinx—who was a woman, too—stands the query as to the meaning of those twin K's. It seems to have debunked the old theory of women and secrets. But whatever KK's initial meaning, the one it has for Southwestern, to put it in black and white, is pep and enthusiasm.

For these girls stand behind everything labeled "S. C." except purple cats—to which they are allergic—and they insist they won't be behind them. KK loyalty and spirit have made their contribution to the activity and interest of the school year—a prize-winning Homecoming float, Rush Week activities and the traditional fishmonger and perambulator of Pledge Week, the Toytown Parade with Dopey and Donald Duck, as well as individual service and recognition.

Within the club there is a code of personal sportsmanship and achievement, binding each girl to Southwestern and to KK and the traditions of both.

JINX JANE PEP CLUB

Noted for their personality and pep and their loyalty to S. C., the Jinx Janes lead the student body in general enthusiasm for all athletic events of the year.

Symbolizing their loyalty are their purple and white uniforms bearing the insignia of the Jinx, that spirit of the Builders which leads "our valiant heroes" to victory. Not only do these thirty-five girls lead in backing up the Builders, but they are outstanding in society, scholarship and campus leadership.

This year's activities began with the imbuing of every freshman with the true Southwestern spirit when the Jinx was unveiled with appropriate ceremony at a special pep assembly. Stunts at games and assemblies and cooperation with the band and students were climaxed with the ceremonial crowning of the Builder C. I. C. champions at the final home game of the season.

At every game, in their special section behind the team, these pepsters were "up and at 'em" from the starting whistle 'till the final strains of Alma Mater. Numerous social events were highlighted by rush week, when ten pledges were voted into membership, and the annual spring banquet.

PI GAMMA MU

Southwestern has acquired national prominence and recognition as the headquarters of the National Social Science Honor Society, Pi Gamma Mu, which has now one hundred twenty-five chapters in colleges and universities all over the United States, in Hawaii, the Phillippines, and one in a foreign country—at the University of Toronto—with a total membership of 25,000.

Pi Gamma Mu was founded by our dean, Dr. Leroy Allen, in 1924 when he was head of the department of Economics. He saw the need for more cooperation between students of the several branches of social science, all of which must make contributions of knowledge if our social problems are to be solved. Dean Allen, therefore, suggested that a general social science honor society be established here and that one college in each of the forty-eight states receive an invitation to form one of the Charter chapters of the new society patterned after the one at Southwestern. The plan met with great enthusiasm, and today Pi Gamma Mu is an organization of national importance and influence.

The president of the Kansas Alpha chapter is Virginia Allen.

After the presentation of some notable scientific paper to the members of the club on Saturday afternoons, tea must be served, presumably to help consume the mass of scientific material placed in their reach, but perhaps it is just to relieve the drouth.

The members of this very active club do not, however, limit their thoughts to problems of scientific nature. The meetings are definitely social in nature and the informal discussions following the formal meeting are extremely beneficial. Arthur Stauffacher and T. D. Morgan were the "chief tea toppers" during the year.

Southwestern College illumination has filtered into a great many of the leading forensic circles during the past years. Climaxing the annual functions of this group is the annual invitation debate tournament which brings together the outstanding orators and debaters of the entire Middle West.

This year has been a good one for the Builder persuasive speakers. Southwestern made high rankings all year and concluded the season by placing in debate, oratory, and extemp at the state meet.

Lucille Robbins served as president; Barbara Gardner as secretary; and Robert Youle as business manager.

A trip to Pineville, Louisiana, started off a year of hard work for the Mu Chapter of Kappa Omicron. Miss Chalcea White and Thelma Nurse, with the national president, went to Pineville to pledge and initiate the Sigma Chapter of Kappa Omicron.

During the year, Kappa Omicron prepares and serves numerous teas, luncheons, formal and informal dinners. Such activities help support the organization.

Members are selected on a basis of initiative, leadership, and scholarship from the upper twenty per cent of the home economics department. Winifred Brown is president.

GAMMA OMICRON

The bi-monthly meetings of Gamma Omicron, home economics organization, combine fun with instructive materials that cannot be presented in regular class meetings.

The height of activity for the past year was Gamma's Christmas "Kid" party. After short discussions of important topics given by specialists in the home economics field, members spent the rest of the evening playing kid games. Toys used at the party were then distributed to the underprivileged children of Winfield.

Ruth Baty and Geraldine Gee were the first and second semester presidents.

Three members of the Social Science-International Relations club distinguished the local club as well as themselves and Southwestern this year when they were elected to offices of national importance at the Mississippi Valley Convention of the club at Omaha. Betty Miller was elected president at the convention, Clarence Borger, treasurer, and Virginia Allen, corresponding secretary. The S. C. club brought further laurels to Southwestern when it was awarded the honor of being host to the 1940 Mississippi Valley Convention.

Meeting every two weeks, the local group studies social problems of today and hears speakers who make a study of such problems.

THE COSMOPOLITAN CLUB

"The melting pot of S. C." perhaps best describes the Cosmopolitan club. Although there are ten Americans to every foreigner, foreign students are accepted for membership before the native students. A member of the national organization, the local chapter meets bi-weekly with programs typical of all foreign nations. This theme is also carried out at the fall and spring banquets. An exchange club with Manhattan was carried on this year. Each school attended a banquet at the other school. Two members attended the regular Cosmopolitan meeting at Boulder at Christmas time.

In the words of Frank Countryman, president, the club "just tries to carry out the cosmopolitan spirit."

They also attended a similar tournament at McPherson College.

THE COLLEGIAN

The publication of the Southwestern "Collegian" has about it the delicious flavor of the unexpected, since after the appearance of each issue necessity allots just enough time that the collegiate public concludes that said issue was, apparently, the last. But suddenly the business manager finds ad-selling not an utter impossibility and lo! there is a "Collegian".

Its small size and infrequency of publication make it difficult to keep the sheet from turning into a wet blanket. However, with a little cooperation, a lot of effort, and the epic news of the 1938-39 Southwestern year, the staff has tried to give its public "a newspaper, not a publication".

The Epworth League functions as a phase of Grace Methodist Church and plays an important part in the lives of the students. Programs are especially designed to meet both the spiritual and social needs of the college group, and leadership is chosen from outstanding personalities in the community and on the campus.

At the opening of school, there is the long-remembered ghost walk, where first introductions are often made. The League completes its year with an outdoor meeting around a campfire with all participating in games, songs, and a few moments of meditative thinking.

THE GRACE CHURCH CHOIR

The Grace Church Choir, composed of more than sixty college students, was under the direction of Professor C. O. Brown this year. "The Holy City", by Gaul, presented at the close of the first semester, featured the following soloists: Wava Bachman Allbaugh, Wichita; Joe E. Hume, Wichita; Mrs. George T. McNeish, Winfield; and Warren Allen, Cunningham.

The choir received much favorable comment for its presentation on Palm Sunday of "The Messiah". Both oratorios were accompanied by the church orchestra, with Miss Grace Sellers at the organ.

In September the leaves and our social calendar become lined with red, Rush Week tweaks old Father Time's beard, and Pledge Week treads hard on his heels. Freshmen are on needles and pins, and societies on good behavior—or at swords points. Then the Inter-Society Council, a melting-pot wherein simmer the representatives and conflicts of the societies, comes to the aid of the party. Thus throughout the year, they handle any "pretty kettle of fish" which may be stirred up between societies and apportion the contents thereof accordingly. Which all proves that eleven cooks spoil neither the broth nor the brotherhood in this case.

STUDENT CHRISTIAN MOVEMENT

Because all work and no play make Jack a dull boy, the Student Christian Movement of Southwestern does not confine its activities to study alone. Meetings where students are free to attend the program befitting their mood of the day intercept the serious meetings of religious training. Three commissions, creative living, personal relations and creative leisure, are under the leadership of active S. C. M. members. At the state training conference at Wichita in March, attended by a number of Southwestern students, Phyllis Shook and Harold Rickard were co-chairman of the regional creative leisure commission.

EDITORIAL

It's complete—the job is done and another Moundbuilder will take its place along with the various yearbooks of '39 and all the preceding Moundbuilders. The success of any yearbook is largely due to the loyal efforts of the staff who contribute their work to the hands of the editor who, in return, offers them little thanks.

For this reason I have devoted this space to recognize each staff member and offer my personal thanks to: Marcia Hubenett, assistant editor, for the artwork in the opening section and division pages; the four class editors; Marian Basore, senior class; Clark Moots, junior class; Betty Dulaney, sophomore class; Geraldine Van Laningham, freshman class; for their efficient handling of the class sections; Rex Huff and Harry Womeldorf, assistant photographers; Bob Youle, sports editor; Wesley Woodson, artist, for the sketches in the class sections; Earle Volkland, artist, for the portrait sketches in the feature section; Earl Dungan, for his copy writing; Peggy Wright, Collegian editor, for her Story of the Year; Marlin Wallace, for his permission to use his Collegian column in the Piff—t section; Miss Miller, faculty advisor, for her guidance over the rough spots and last but not least Virgil Bayne, my laboratory partner, for so nobly carrying on during my frequent absences.

And so—here it is. Throughout the year it has haunted my thoughts and dragged my steps; I've loved it and I've hated it, but now it's yours to criticize, if you so desire, or to cherish as a good record of the events of '38 and '39 on the Campus of Southwestern College.

The Editor.

Instruments of Musical Merit

Whether a magnificent pipe organ such as recently installed in Southwestern College or a small piano such as you may desire for your home, the same quality of beautiful tone and fine workmanship is clearly evident to the critical musician as well as the layman.

Established in 1857, the W. W. Kimball Company has an unequaled and an unbroken record of 82 years in the service of American music lovers. The same family that founded the business owns and operates it today.

The W. W. Kimball Company has during its existence manufactured over half a million pianos and installed thousands of pipe organs not only in the U. S. A., but in Europe, South Africa, China and Japan.

For your musical requirements, consult Kimball—when contemplating the purchase of a pipe organ our technical representative is at your command for advice—when a piano is considered, call on our local dealer.

A large, three-dimensional number '25' is rendered in a bold, sans-serif font. The number is white with a thick black outline and a grey shadow on its right side, giving it a 3D effect. From the bottom of the '5', a long, thin stack of yearbooks or books extends outwards and downwards, creating a sense of depth and history.

of Building School Yearbooks

● Twenty-five years ago the first college annual of our career was lovingly delivered into the hands of the staff. The co-ed editor's hair-do was reminiscent of a lovely hay-stack, and the business manager wore a high, stiff collar and fancy flaps on his pockets.

● Time has changed many things since then, and our methods with them; but what we learned about thoroughly good quality and unfailing integrity in those twenty-five years goes into every yearbook produced in our plant today.
