I cannot attempt to guess the date today. But I can be relatively certain of why today you picked up this book. Perhaps you met an old friend who brought your thoughts back to Southwestern, or maybe you were cleaning out a closet and happened upon the old 1959 Moundbuilder, or perhaps you have found that things are moving much too fast, you are working too hard, your life is too uncertain--and you plan to escape for a few minutes from the hectic day in which you live, and regress to the year in which I am writing. You look through the pages and say, "Ah, yes--those were the days." Yes, they were happy; some of your happiest.

We thought we were busy in 1959 and we complained about our many responsibilities. Yet how were we to know that those scholastic and social responsibilities were only a taste of what was ahead? We were the first generation to grow up with the atomic bomb, and were observing man's first ventures into space. No doubt these happenings were responsible for a more rapid maturation on our part. Two years after the first successful satellite launching neither the Soviet bloc nor the free world knew exactly where it stood in the contest for a foothold in space. Man could only look back on a short and rapid evolutionary process he himself had created. Mice, a dog, and a monkey had made the trip; perhaps he would be next.

One result of the Sputnik scare, the attempt of some people to put more emphasis on the natural sciences and even adopt the British system of education, had lost most of its impetus by 1959. It was evident that the U. S. system of education was an essential part of our country's heritage and would not be replaced. It was, however, re-examined, and in most cases a good deal more stress was put on scholastic achievement. Courses were stiffened throughout the country, and we at Southwestern felt this change, as a wise administration and faculty took steps to prepare us for the challenges we could only imagine would exist in years to come.

Eisenhower was completing his second term as president in 1959, and many people were confused. They had elected a military man to two successive terms, and true to his promise, he had kept the U. S. from war. But these people were discovering that no one man alone can run a government. Greatly encouraged by the 1958 mid-term elections, the Democrats saw only rosy years ahead, with their pick from many young Presidential candidates--while the GOP faced one important decision: whether to nominate a controversial Vice President or a New York millionaire.

In other areas, America welcomed her forty-ninth state, Alaska, and integration was still our greatest national "thorn in the flesh." 1959 was spectator of a cold war and an arms race such as had never been known, and the hundreds of other threats to man which grew from these frightful strivings. Faced with these events, many people had chosen the easiest course of action--inaction, by labeling the entire state of affairs as hopeless. We as college students in 1959 did not as a whole adopt this attitude. We saw the world as a series of challenges, and being young and enthusiastic, we were impatient to meet the challenges of this so-called hostile and hopeless planet. We looked at the positive developments, such as the Geneva summit meeting of world powers, in an effort to progress toward the banning of nuclear tests, and were encouraged by them.

I cannot say that in the year in which you are reading this book you are living in a democracy, or that war has been reduced to an absurd page in history. I can, however, predict that those college students of 1959 have worked to better the world. As long as America has her colleges and universities, where those persons with a desire to learn and understand can meet with those who unselfishly impart their knowledge, we need never decide that the world is in a hopeless situation.

The Moundbuilder staff sincerely hopes that you enjoy this book. It represents a most important part of your life: Southwestern College, 1959.

To adapt an old adage, "a college is no better than its dean." He is often directly responsible for a school's progress or its decline, and he can make his college a growing institution or a dying dogma. In short, a dean in his capacity as administrator of faculty and students has considerable power and responsibility, and what he does with this power and responsibility can help us judge the man.

Dean Dale Dunlap stands firm under the most critical judgment as a man of progressive ideas, dynamic faith, and eminent knowledge. He graduated from Southwestern in 1943 and eight years later returned to his alma mater as instructor in religion and director of religious life. In 1953 he became chairman of the division of social science and in 1955 he became dean and associate professor of Bible and religion. Dr. Dunlap holds the bachelor of divinity degree from Garrett Biblical Institute, the master of arts degree from Northwestern University, and the doctor of philosophy degree from Yale University.

Since we at Southwestern are so close to this man we may not fully realize his stature and ability. Dean Dunlap was appointed a member of the national council of the Wesley Society in 1958. He has regularly authored works for a number of Methodist publications. Last year he was one of 35 persons from the United States who attended the Oxford Institute of Methodism at Oxford, England.

In his dual role as administrator and professor, Dr. Dunlap exerts tremendous influence on his students and his college. The influence is positive, and we are positive that as long as there are men like E. Dale Dunlap in our nation's educational system America will continue its incredible growth and development--not just mentally and physically, but spiritually as well.

It is the purpose of this book to present a picture of the American college and university, and more specifically

ALLAN C. FELT

December 14, 1884 - November 21, 1958

For 42 years Allan C. Felt worked tirelessly for Southwestern College, and inspired a sense of reverence in those who knew him. He had a powerful, contagious faith in Southwestern--its meaning, its purpose, and its future.

Mr. Felt, at one time a student at Southwestern, became a member of the college's board of trustees in 1916. He was president of the board during the 15 years before his death. No other man worked harder or longer for Southwestern than did Allan C. Felt. In recognition of his contributions the 1956 Moundbuilder was dedicated to him. Dr. C. Orville Strohl said what we all feel in his tribute to Mr. Felt:

"He has left a vacancy that can never be filled as he could have done it--but we will close ranks and move ahead, thankful that Southwestern College could have been blessed and enriched by his talents and abilities through these many years. He identified himself with a great cause--and he left behind a great work that will continue to grow in its importance and in its influence. I believe this is exactly what Allan Felt would have hoped for most."

The faculty--each is an individual. Each has acquired sufficient knowledge in his field to educate --to not only pass along facts, but to help the student assimilate those facts, retains all kinds--the liberal and the conservative, the optimist and the cynic--each is valuable than the sum of its parts.

the president

Seniors and Friends:

Southwestern is a great college because it is a spirit--a mood--an atmosphere that transcends men and money and materials. It includes a sense of responsibility and freedom--dignity and dedication--culture and concern--depth and poise. A great college lays emphasis upon individual worth--the power of discipline and the redemptive quality of Christian fellowship. It is undergirded with a deep and abiding faith in an ultimate reality that gives meaning and purpose to human existence.

A GREAT college is a living, human, and growing thing. It is a web of personal relationships permeated by a sense of dedication and loyalty to the best in life. Real living takes place on Southwestern's campus. Here is honest inquiry--joy--growth--development--enthusiasm--love--admiration--and hope.

When the highest quality of the liberal arts is given purpose and illumination by Christianity at its best--and when a campus is moved and motivated and inspired by a faith in the Christian scheme of things and a commitment to God as the source of all truth--there you have Christian higher education in action.

students, faculty, alumni celebrate homecoming

The first big social event of Southwestern's school year began Friday, November 7, with the crowning of Mary Lou Bauer as 1958 Homecoming queen, and ended early Sunday morning, November 9, as the band packed up and couples left the Homecoming dance in the student union. Weeks of planning had gone into the two-day period. Homecoming brought with it many things--among them a long, loud parade featuring the most impressive floats at SC in many years, a thrilling, heartbreaking football game, and a triumphant debut by the Campus Players. It left in its wake bags under eyes, thousands of crumpled float napkins, frostbite, wilted mums, and a general case of tired blood. As is the case with most Homecomings, this one was packed with the color, excitement, and enthusiasm which makes every Homecoming seem worthwhile. The alumni once again showed their interest in the college by a large and enthusiastic representation. They returned to their homes, we returned to our homework, and Homecoming 1958 was over.

christmas-on-campus

1958 Christmas-on-Campus activities began Dec. 7 when lights and decorations at the six dormitories were turned on and judged. Broadhurst hall won first prize; Fisher hall won second. Early morning devotions were held during the week of Dec. 15-19; the campus buildings were decorated by SC organizations. On Thursday evening, Dec. 18, students met for carol singing and meditation on the 77 steps; following this they were guests of Dr. and Mrs. C. Orville Strohl at an open house at the president's home. Christmas-on-Campus chairmen were Mary Lou Bauer and Coralee Marshall.

The 26th annual performance of the Christmas morality play, "Eagerheart," was presented by the Campus Players Dec. 17, 1958. The play was directed by Miss Helen Graham; Mrs. Elizabeth Arisio Miller, junior, played the title role. Other cast members were: Eagerfame, Sandra Focht; Eagersense, Shirley Haun; the three kings, Power, Wisdom and Love, Marvin Krepps, Carl Martin, Larry Carver; the shepherds, Bill Teed, Larry Goodwin, Benn Gibson, Glen McAllister; Joseph, Jon Love; Mary, Peggi Johnson; Angels, Alice Arnall, Chrystal Kellogg, Rae Warburton, Ann McFarlane; prologue, Fred Baker.

Music for the performance was provided by 14 students from the Purple Robed choir under direction of Dr. Jack Juergens, and Roger Nyquist, organ instructor.

Five Southwestern juniors attended American university at Washington, D. C. second semester under the Washington Semester program for majors in the division of social science; they were Sandra Focht, Billie Day, Mary Lou Hughes, Carl Martin, and John Prather.

In addition to attending classes at the university the five spent time observing the operations of the federal government and touring spots of interest in Washington. Southwestern is the only Kansas college which participates in the program and one of 80 in the nation to do so. Students are selected on the basis of interest and scholarship.

The seven were selected by a joint faculty-student committee which included five students appointed by the dean and five appointed by the student body president. Selection was made on the basis of total leadership qualities, including scholarship, campus activities, contributions to college life, and future promise.

New at Southwestern this year was the development of the Artist & Lecture series, designed to bring outstanding talent to the campus. Series arrangements were under the sponsorship of the public functions committee.

THE PAGANINI STRING QUARTET concluded the Artist & Lecture series with a concert on March 17.

LEONTYNE PRICE, soprano, appeared in recital at Southwestern on January 22 as the first feature in the Artist & Lecture Series.

DREW PEARSON, Washington news columnist, spoke at Southwestern February 16 on "The Washington Merry-Go-Round." He met earlier in the day for an informal question-and-answer session sponsored by the SC chapter of Pi Gamma Mu, national social science society.

THE DALLAS SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA, Donald Johanos conducting, appeared in concert at Stewart fieldhouse on Founders Day, March 10. Featured with the 80-member orchestra was Tully Moseley, concert pianist. In the afternoon orchestra members conducted master classes for high school and college music students, assisted by the division of fine arts.

DR. LOWELL B. HAZARD, Wesley Theological Seminary, Washington, D.C., delivered the fifth annual Smith-Willson lectures Oct. 14-16. His theme was "The Bible and the College Mind." The lectures were established by Mr. and Mrs. J.M. Willson in honor of Dr. Roy L. Smith.

debaters compete in 14 forensic tournaments

Southwestern's forensic squad of 25 debaters participated in 14 intercollegiate tournaments, meeting teams from 75 colleges in 17 states, ranging from West Point and William and Mary in the East to the University of Redlands on the west coast.

The forensic squad, coached by Miss Marguerite Schriver, competed in tournaments at Wichita university, Central Oklahoma State college, Southwestern, Emporia State college, McPherson college, Pittsburg State college, Northwestern university, Texas Christian university, William Jewell college, the University of Arizona, St. John's college, Tabor college, Fort Hays State college, and Bowling Green university in Ohio, where the debate season was climaxed in March with the national Pi Kappa Delta tournament.

Additions to the trophy case included a second place in junior men's debate the Central Oklahoma state tournament, a first in men's extemporaneous speaking at the TCU tournament, and a first in junior men's debate and second in women's debate at the University of Arizona tournament. Other honors included first in extemporaneous speaking and superior in discussion at the Central Oklahoma State meet.

"my three angels" is homecoming play

The Campus Players, Southwestern dramatics organization, presented "My Three Angels" as their 1958 Homecoming play on November 8 under direction of Miss Helen Graham.

"My Three Angels," a three-act comedy by Sam and Bella Spewack, concerns the problems of Felix Ducotel, a storekeeper on a prison island in French Guiana, his wife Emilie, and his daughter Marie-Louise. Into their home on Christmas Eve come three convicts, who have been repairing the roof. They solve the Ducotels' problems, largely by dispatching Uncle Henri and his selfish ward Paul with the help of Adolph, a pet snake.

Making last-minute preparations before dress rehearsal are Larry Carver, Carl Martin, and Director Helen Graham.

"the cave dwellers" is all-school play

William Saroyan's "The Cave Dwellers" was presented March 20 by Campus Players as the 1959 all-school play. Directed by Miss Helen Graham, the play cast, none of whom were Campus Players, were: The Duke, Jon Love; The Girl, Shirley Haun; The Queen, Marilyn Lungren; The King, Mike Alexander; Woman with a Dog, Jane Stickley; Young Man, Mike Brooks; The Young Queen, Mary Lou Bauer; The Father, Bruce Birch; Gorky, Mark Arthur; The Mother, Sylvia Daves; The Silent Boy, Benn Gibson; The Boss, Bill Teed; Jamie, David Buehrens; The Young Opopent, Titas Burkholder.

Described as one of Saroyan's most beautiful plays, "The Cave Dwellers" has been called "a fling at a great deal of compassion, some sharp observations of the state of the world, a certain amount of humanity, all woven together by a bit of fantasy."

orchestra tours 18 communities, play

The Southwestern College Symphony Orchestra, under the direction of Ross O. Williams, is a member of the American Symphony Orchestra League.

Highlight of the year for the orchestra was an 18-town tour in December, presenting concerts in churches, schools, and civic auditoriums. The orchestra performed at Kiowa, Alva, Okla., Anthony, Caldwell, Augusta, El Dorado, Raymond, Chase, St. John, Larned, Dighton, Garden City, Ulysses, Liberal, Kismet, Medicine Lodge, Argonia, Conway Springs, and Winfield.

The orchestra formed the major portion of the Winfield Civic Orchestra which accompanied the presentation of the 25th performance of Mendelssohn's "Elijah" in Winfield on February 22, Mr. Williams conducting.

Southwestern's band performed for many different functions this year. Besides providing entertainment between halves at football and basketball games they played at the Building of the Mound ceremony, the Homecoming assembly and parade, and the Senior Day assembly. In the spring they presented a spring concert, played for the May Fete, presented a lawn concert, and took part in Commencement activities. Their community activities included participation in the Veteran's Day parade, and at the Fall and Spring Openings in downtown Winfield.

student council guides builder activities

Southwestern's Student Council is the governing body which cooperates with non-student personnel of the college in promoting the welfare of those whom the college serves.

The council is composed of delegates from Southwestern's organizations; its president and vice president are elected by the entire student body.

Meeting weekly, the council supervises many activities and determines the operational procedures of many college functions. Committees within the council were organized second semester to work on specific areas of student government.

Pi Gamma Mu is a national honorary social science society for persons interested in that field. It was founded on Southwestern's campus in 1924 by Dr. Leroy Allen and today has more than 5,000 members in over 100 chapters. Members must meet the society's qualifications for admission.

Once a month the organization meets for an informal coffee hour, with a guest speaker discussing an aspect of the social sciences. New members were initiated Nov. 21. Participating actively with the Southwestern chapter is Mrs. Effie B. Urquhart, national executive secretary, who lives in Winfield.

Kristine Lange, Southwestern chapter president, was elected to the national board of trustees of Pi Gamma Mu and served as the only student member of that board. She attended the annual meeting at Chicago Dec. 20-21.

As both a campus organization and as a church group the Methodist Student Movement has only one purpose—to help the students of Southwestern develop a Christian fellowship.

In March a large group from the MSM went to Salina to hear Dr. Harold De Wolf speak on "A Faceted Faith" at the MSM state conference. An important MSM activity is publication of Wesley Hi-Lites, the campus paper on religious news, which appears monthly. This year also marked the beginning of a college choir at Grace Methodist church, directed by F. Joe Sims and Albert Hodges.

Southwestern's Builders finished in the cellar with five losses and no victories in their final season of CIC football. In four non-conference games the Builders won one, tied one, and lost two, all with teams SC will compete with when it joins the Kansas Conference in the fall of 1959.

Southwestern dropped its 1958 football opener Sept. 15 to the Graymaroons of Bethel College in a game played at Newton, 14-0. Bethel scored in the second and fourth quarters; SC twice got inside the Bethel 20 but failed to score. On Sept. 19 SC lost to Baker university 6-0 in its first home game; Baker scored in the first quarter and SC lost its only scoring chance with a fumble on the Baker 9.

The Builders' lone victory came Sept. 26 in a 19-13 win over Sterling on the SC field. Bruner, Henderson, and Donley scored for SC; Anderson made one conversion. Sterling scored three times in the last quarter but couldn't catch the Builders.

On Oct. 10 SC opened its CIC season with a 21-0 loss to Fort Hays State at Sonner stadium. The Tigers scored in the first, second, and fourth periods; the Builders led the Tigers in yards gained through passing. On Oct. 17 the Builders bowed 13-6 to Emporia State on the SC field. Groene scored SC's TD on a 2-yard plunge in the fourth quarter. Southwestern played a strong defensive game, but lost through fumbles--the Hornets recovered four Builder fumbles.

The Builders' worst defeat came Oct. 25 at Atchison when they were swamped 48-0 by the CIC champion St. Benedict's Ravens. The Ravens scored at will in each quarter. Washburn university's Ichabods defeated the Builders 27-0 in a game played at Topeka Oct. 31; the Builders threatened twice but could not score.

Southwestern's most heartbreaking defeat came on Homecoming Nov. 8 when the Pittsburg State Gorillas beat SC 25-19 after the Builders lead 19-0 in the fourth quarter. Dvorak, Bruner, and McLean scored for SC but the Builders fell apart in the final quarter.

SC ended its season with a 6-6 tie with Kansas Wesleyan at Salina Nov. 15. Southwestern's touchdown was made by Henderson in the second quarter after Hanna recovered a Coyote fumble.

Gary Langley grabs for an out-of-bounds ball during the Washburn game.

Southwestern's basketball Builders bowed out of the CIC in 1959 with a better than average season which found them winning 13 and losing 9 in all games, but winning 3 and losing 7 in conference play, to share last place with St. Benedict's. The Builders won all their pre-Christmas games, but foundered at the Ottawa tournament and lost 5 out of 8 games in February.

Victories over College of Emporia, 53-47, Northeastern Oklahoma State, 52-33, Bethel, 59-56, Phillips, 59-53, Baker, 66-50, and Kansas Wesleyan, 77-46, all in December, made the Builders look promising in pre-conference play. The SC squad dropped two at the Ottawa tournament during the holidays, to William Jewell and Washburn, and defeated Drury in a third game. The Builders also beat the Alumni during the holiday season.

The Builders opened their last year of CIC basketball play Jan. 10 with a 74-73 win over Pittsburg State. Two conference losses followed, however--a 93-51 swamping by Emporia State and a narrow 68-66 victory by CIC champs Fort Hays State. Taking a breather from CIC play the Builders met Sterling college in two successive games, winning both with scores of 81-69 and 85-82. Two first-team Builders, Gary Langley and Stan O'Neil, did not see action in the first Sterling game due to injuries.

Chuck Davison races for the ball during the St. Benedict's game.

Resuming conference play, the Builders defeated the St. Benedict's Ravens 59-53 and lost to the Washburn University Ichabods on a weekend road trip. With half its CIC games played, Southwestern had a 2-3 conference record.

Beginning the second round of CIC play the Builders lost to Pittsburg 82-66 and squeaked by St. Benedict's 64-63. Three losses concluded the 1958-59 season--to Fort Hays State, 75-57, Emporia State, 80-53, and Washburn University 83-69.

Gary Langley goes for the ball in the Builders' opening game with the College of Emporia.

Southwestern forward Sonny Maynard (22) in action against Pittsburg State (top), Fort Hays State (center), and Northeastern Oklahoma State (bottom).

For the third straight year Stan O'Neil, Builder center, led CIC scoring. O'Neil was chosen on the all-CIC first team for the second year.

Next year the Builders will be replaced by Omaha University as CIC members. Southwestern and Sterling will join the Kansas Conference to form a 10-team conference of Kansas private colleges.

In 160 pages we have presented 180 days of your college education. We have tried our best to give you a record through art, photography, and words, of Southwestern College 1959. We hope you like the book--and if there are certain things you do not like, we hope you do not ignore them and say they are not there. A yearbook is not a brochure; its purpose is not propaganda, but to present an honest picture of the school as the yearbook staff sees it. A college, any institution, if it is to perform at its best, must be honest with itself and with its students, and keep its collective eyes and mind open to new facts and ideas. Only through an open and receptive mind is growth possible, and growth is life.
