Realizing that some men rise beyond the most sincere words of praise that other men may offer, we dedicate the 1964 Moundbuilder to Dr. F. Joe Sims, our "music man," because he is himself dedicated.

In 1950 Dr. Sims graduated from Southwestern College with a bachelor of music degree. He returned to teach at his alma mater in 1954, having received his master of arts degree from Colorado State College. Since returning to S. C., Dr. Sims has completed his doctorate in education at Oklahoma University.

The Sims family left Winfield in February of this year for Bogota, Colombia. Dr. Sims was granted a Fulbright lectureship to establish and promote music education in Colombia. This is part of a ten-year program.

In the spring of 1962 Dr. Sims received the Student Council Faculty Citation, an award which has become an annual affair. He is well known both on campus and in the community as an outstanding tenor soloist. During the 1962-63 school year, the chapel hour choir, under Dr. Sims' direction, inspired us in our worship. For several years he has served as director of music at Grace Methodist Church. In addition to his work in music, Dr. Sims was a co-sponsor of Campus Y.

Among his fellow faculty members, Dr. Sims is known as a congenial co-worker, anxious to do his part. Among the students, he is known as a person who is always willing to help, to listen and to understand.

In spite of the fact that Dr. Sims is missed on the Southwestern campus, we are pleased to know he is sharing his ability and, in reality, a part of us in Colombia.

SEATED: Darryl Joe and Terry Lee, Vicki Lyn and Ronda Jo.
STANDING: Dr. and Mrs. Sims.

Dr. Sims shares his thoughts.

Southwestern and Her Traditions

It has been said that "it is the duty of the present to receive the past and build upon it for the future." This is the meaning of traditions. They remain alive and are handed down from one student generation to another.

Southwestern has had a great history. Out of this thrilling past have come noble traditions. New traditions are also being developed. This indicates that our students and faculty are alive--glad to accept their heritage with pride--but creative in their own right.

Three recent events that have been added to the long list of Southwestern traditions are:

The 75th Anniversary Rock, 1960

Freshman Bonfire, 1961

Builders around the World, 1964

President Mossman and the trustees, just at the turn of the century, debated long and hard about erecting the administration building on the summit of the hill. When this was finally done, the famous "77 Steps" came into being. These are our trademark.

The four columns on the front of the administration building have long symbolized "Knowledge," "Hope," "Courage," and "Freedom"--words which are embodied in the Alma Mater. A faculty member of some years ago by the name of Florence Cate stood on the "77 Steps" watching the changing view over the Walnut Valley and was inspired to write the words of the Alma Mater.

The word "Builders" was first used by a sports writer of the local newspaper when referring to our athletic teams. The term was a good one, and now is used generally to describe the activities of Southwestern students.

The "Mound" was started in 1927 by Dean Leroy Allen. Its location was north of Christy administration building, but was moved to the lower campus in 1962.

The "Jinx" is a noble tradition, and was elevated to a new position of importance when the class of 1958 embedded a black marble jinx in the concrete midway up the "77 Steps."

Southwestern has a noble heritage in many fields of activity including debate, athletics and music.

Very few people know that eight streets surrounding the campus are named for former bishops of the Methodist church. They are Warren, McCabe, Fowler, Janes, Simpson, Ames, Ninde and Bowman.

In 1963-64, the Prof. John Phillips chair of mathematics and the Oncley chair of chemistry are being established. Also this year, the Parkhurst lectures on the Bible have been announced. These are being established by Dr. and Mrs. George Parkhurst.

Yes--we have been receiving the past with pride and gratitude--and building upon it for the future.

C. Orville Strohl
President

The administration at Southwestern will long be remembered for its sincere interest in the student body. Naive freshmen may find themselves more than a little awed when they meet a glorified member of the administration in the upper halls of Christy; however, sentimental seniors are able to trace the pattern created as the administration developed into human beings. One may recall the first time the college president spoke to him by name. The personal jokes shared with the academic dean will always bring a smile. Long talks with the dean of students or the counselor of women will not be forgotten for many years. Perhaps the most astonishing remembrance of all will be of the time one was called in, not for a misdemeanor, but simply to talk. In years to come, Boulder graduates will think back on their years spent at Southwestern, and among the pleasant memories will be those of the administration.

As always, Southwestern has had reason to be proud of its fine arts department. The high point of this year came on Founders Day when ground was broken north of Christy for the new fine arts center. The areas of music and art are eagerly looking forward to the day when they may expand into this new structure.

This year we have been made doubly proud by the selection of Dr. Joe Sims to establish a program of music education in Colombia. Although we miss Dr. Sims, we are proud to know that a part of Southwestern is at work in South America bringing the pleasure of music to those who enjoy it as we do.

The Division of Languages and Literature is made up of the departments of English, modern languages, speech, drama and journalism. In its academic program it has two objectives: to prepare its majors adequately for graduate school or for related professions, and to offer to non-majors such an introduction to the various areas as will be useful to their general education. In addition, it is directly or indirectly responsible for certain student publications, for a number of dramatic productions, and for a far-reaching forensics program.

The division of natural science attempts to create within the student an appreciation of the physical world whether it be through Chemistry 101, taken to fulfil a general education requirement, or Microbiology 225, taken in order to earn a college major in this field. Students who enroll in science courses with less than enthusiastic attitudes usually find themselves engrossed in the problems at hand before the semester ends. Southwestern's science department is proud of the graduates it sends out into the industry, graduate schools and the teaching profession.

The social science division attempts to create within the student an awareness of the problems existing in the areas of history, education, religion and psychology. At Southwestern, in addition to regular classes in social science, the student may participate in the Washington Semester program, the Drew Semester program, or the Spelman Semester program. Each opportunity allows the participant to gain in his understanding of social, governmental or world problems.

Education

Believing that health and physical development are a part of education, two years of physical education are required for an A.B. degree. Those who desire to teach in the field of physical education may earn a college major in the field.

The program in the department of health and physical education is set up not only for physical activity but also to offer the opportunity for the student to gain a love of activity and skill in various sports which can be carried over to "after college" participation. Intramurals are a vital part of physical education. To every student, physical education might say, "Work while you work, but play."

Campus Y

Campus-Y is a part of a world wide community of students and faculty united in a search for meaning in life. Through this quest it endeavors to serve the campus, the nation and the world. In its outlook, "Y" has attempted to examine both sides of a question as exemplified in its theme, "Two Sides to the Coin."

The purpose of the MSM is to act and to bear witness to the college campus as its church. To accomplish that, the Methodist Student Movement attempts to be constantly aware of certain decisive issues and to consistently act upon these issues according to the Christian tradition. It attempts to speak to all groups on campus.

Chancel Players

The Chancel Players were formed to fill the need for a group that could take stimulating dramatic messages into Methodist churches of Kansas and Oklahoma. Behind the scenes people like Rev. Harold Parker, who first conceived the idea, and the MSM, who financed it, were instrumental to its birth. However, it was the members of the cast who made Chancel Players an actuality by contributing an average of three Sundays each month, and by eagerly working as a group to complete all assignments. It is the hope of many that the Chancel Players will become a living part of Southwestern College.

Traditions

The bookstore is always a part of every college campus.

Traditions are a part of every campus, and Southwestern is by no means an exception to the rule. There is always the incoming frosh who have to be "orientated" by the sophomores, or the freshman bonfire that burns at the first home football game. Registration and the frustration of going through the very long lines are a part of the college tradition, even if it isn't thought of as such. But the tradition of the "Building of the Mound" is one that Southwestern does not share with any other school. The first "Building of the Mound" ceremony is never as impressive as the last, the one you participate in as a senior. Perhaps it is a certain signal of the end coming into view. But all in all, what is a school that doesn't have some traditions?

Registration and standing in line go hand in hand as a time to cuss and discuss many things

Phi Beta Tau works diligently to prepare its float for the homecoming parade.

There is much preparation involved in homecoming. Students work for weeks ahead of time preparing plans for floats and dorm decorations. Campus Players need to work many hard hours not only on the play itself but also preparing the stage for the play. Flats must be cleaned and painted, lights arranged to get the right effect and many other chores. However, when homecoming finally arrives everyone feels all the work and some fun was really worth it.

Campus Players had to work to prepare flats, lights and platforms for the play.

Broadhurst boys worked all night to finish their dorm decorations in time.

Smith Hall had an artist at work to draw and paint its dorm decorations and then broke many fingernails for their fish-player.

Homecoming queen to-be Jan Anderson rides in the parade.

"Get Atom Builders" was the theme of the second place Phi Beta Tau float.

This year's homecoming day program was rearranged. It began with the parade, which may have been the largest ever. It included many floats entered by various organizations and clubs on campus. There were also high school bands from the surrounding area. The most beautiful participants in the parade were the queen candidates who rode in new convertibles. After the game a banquet was held and citations were presented. The queen and her court were honored at the banquet.

Pi Kappa Delta's homecoming luncheon.

Which one will be the homecoming queen?

As the afternoon progressed, the spirit of the Builders quickened. Kappa Delta Kappa and Pi Kappa Delta welcomed former members during their traditional homecoming luncheons. Two questions when the game started were: would we win and who would be our queen. The only ones who needed to worry about the game were the Threshers. True to Builder spirit, our team came through with a 14-0 victory. One of the happiest people at the game was Jan Anderson, who was crowned homecoming queen at the half-time ceremonies.

The evening continued in high spirits as the Campus Players presented the comedy, THE SOLID GOLD CADILLAC. The traditional dance ended the day's festivities, which left a tired but happy Builder campus.

During the afternoon the crowd was entertained by Southwestern's defeat of Bethel.

Christmas On Campus

Many of the dorms have tree decorating parties and make their own decorations.

Christmas is a very happy time of year on any college campus. Southwestern is no exception. There are many things to keep the students busy besides their regular classwork and getting last minute term papers done before vacation starts. There are many parties to attend and many other things to do, and in the end everyone is ready to go home for a vacation.

Students work diligently preparing for Christmas-on-campus.

Eagerheart

Eagerheart beckons the shepherds to help find the Christ child.

The old shepherd dies as the angel beckons.

The death of the old shepherd gives new hope to the kings in their quest.

The angels bless the holy family.

The traditional performance of EAGERHEART was continued this year by the Campus Players for the 31st year. The senior girl chosen for the honor of playing Mary was Donna Unruh. The Christmas morality play was directed by Arthur Tees with Rita Magnuson in the role of Eagerheart.

Eagerheart pays no heed to her sisters Eager-fame and Eagersense.

Jackie Burgess and Jane Sampson

The Spelman exchange program expanded this year as we welcomed Jackie Burgess and Jane Sampson from Spelman and sent Marylee Rugh and Carolyn Warren to the all Negro girl college in Atlanta. The Spelman program provides the opportunity for students to gain a deeper insight in understanding people of diverse geographic and ethnic background.

In cooperation with American University, Southwestern selects students to spend a semester in residence in Washington, D. C. This year it sent three students, Monte Johnson, first semester, and Barbara Blackburn and Sherry Fail, second semester, to study American Government with other students from all over the United States.

Little United Nations

Now an annual affair, Little United Nations had a successful second year. With a jump from 35 delegations last year to 43 this year, the assembly floor was more crowded. The general assembly debated the racial problem of South Africa, plus several minor questions. The assembly listened to speeches in Russian, French, Spanish and Japanese, in addition to English.

The Little United Nations provides students with the opportunity to become better acquainted with both the workings of the United Nations and with the opinions and problems of the various countries. It also gives S. C.'s foreign students the opportunity to show us how their countries act and feel.

Burton Marvin, dean of the William Allen White School of Journalism at the University of Kansas, was presented for the honorary degree of doctor of journalism by Vernon McDaniel. Dr. Leland D. Case, editorial director of TOGETHER MAGAZINE, was presented a trustee citation. Dr. Loy Henderson, former United States ambassador, presented his ambassador's flag to Southwestern. The avenue of flags was established to represent the country of each international student who has attended Southwestern.

The final activity of the Founders Day morning was the breaking of ground for Southwestern's new fine arts center. Plans call for beginning the structure in the spring. The building is to be completed by the fall of 1965.

Basketball 1963-64

With only one of last year's starters returning, the basketball team just couldn't quite get the season off the ground. Although the team looked good at times, it didn't seem to jell. Losing all but one game on the road, the team ended with a 9-12 record. It did, however, lose only two games at home.

Tennis

Due to the poor weather, the tennis squad hit the courts late this year. However, they worked in true Builder fashion and put a fine finish on this year's sports at Southwestern.

Gym Classes

Although not as publicized as intercollegiate sports competition, the men and women's gym classes are significant in college life. These classes provide physical activity for the average students that intercollegiate sports pass over. These classes provide competition, exercise and relaxation that the college student needs but finds little opportunity for. Thus, through gym classes students stay physically healthy while growing mentally.

Playing basketball are Wilbur Frank, Al Henderson, Stan Nash, Tim Richards, Don Cook.

Track Field

Events

Southwestern track and field teams have won the Kansas Conference championship since 1960. The Builders had their sights set on another championship team this year. The tracksters are led by coach Tom Mallisee.

"Say, Steve, about this sports insurance . . ."

Is he suspended in mid-air?

Onward, even in the middle of the night.

Yes, even the girls took part.

Jaunt of the Jinx

During the football season, Southwestern students started a new fad. Known as the "Jaunt of the Jinx," nearly 100 students "ran" a football from Winfield to Emporia, a distance of 130 miles, in hopes of putting a "jinx" on the College of Emporia football team.

The idea received national publicity, and only one thing went wrong. C of E won the game, 48-6.

Are they passing the ball or holding hands?

Homecoming queen Jan Anderson starts the race.

Soccer

This fall soccer came to the Southwestern campus for the first time. To the uninformed, soccer is usually associated with "Merry Old England;" however our South American students proved to know the game and be proficient in playing it.

The game was played under the lights with St. Johns College as the opponent. The crowd seemingly enjoyed the action as the two teams charged up and down the field.

It was played as a benefit for the foreign students and although S. C. lost the game, it netted over $100 for the fund.

Though soccer probably will not become a varsity sport in the near future, most students seemingly feel it would be a fine addition to the intramural program.

ACADEMIC

Dr. Seeger discusses his lecture with Dr. Strohl and others.

Dr. Raymond J. Seeger

SMITH-WILLSON LECTURES

The lecturer this year for the Smith-Willson lectures was Dr. Raymond J. Seeger, special assistant to the director of the National Science Foundation at Washington, D. C. These lectures are held in October each year and were established by Dr. and Mrs. J. M. Willson of Floydada, Texas. This year Dr. Seeger spoke on "Campus Crucible-Experimental Living in a World of Science." He presented the idea of science and the student in a new and different way.

Dr. J. Wesley Robb

RELIGIOUS EMPHASIS WEEK

Dr. J. Wesley Robb, chairman of the department of religion at the University of Southern California, was asked to come back this year at the request of the student body. Dr. Robb used as the basis for his lectures the theme "Values and Contemporary Man." The students were given a good chance to become well acquainted with Dr. Robb through the Fireside Discussions in the afternoons and evenings, through his lectures and in his classroom meetings. Dr. Robb preferred to be with the students for he felt this is where he could be the most effective and this is where he felt most at home. Religious Emphasis week was held February 2-7.

Dr. Robb talks with students about "Values and Contemporary Man."

Artist and Lecture Series

John Ciardi

Gordon Young

The 1963-64 Artist and Lecture series included much for the student who wished to broaden his aesthetic and intellectual background. The first program in the series was presented by Brown and Dana, two youthful folk singers who took S. C.'s campus by storm. In March students heard Gordon Young, who is nationally recognized as one of the most brilliant organist-choirmasters of our time. In April, Dr. John Ciardi, poet, lecturer, and editor of the Saturday Review of Literature spoke on the campus. The series was concluded with a lecture by Brooks Hays, former Democratic congressman from Arkansas.
