Walnut Valley Bluegrass Festival

The Eighth Annual National Flat-picking Championship Festival drew a record crowd of 12,500 people from all over the United States and Canada. "The varied forms of music, including old-time country, bluegrass, folk, instrumentals, vocals, solos, groups, five contests, fourteen workshops, and literally dozens of jam sessions held all over the fairgrounds provided the music portion of the exciting weekend." The Arts and Crafts show was held in conjunction with the festival. There were 120 craft booths that featured the artistry of craftspeople from 14 states and Canada. (Portions excerpted from the Dec. WV Occasional)

Todd Diacon seems well fit for this early afternoon performance, Curt Stagner less so.

Above: A sign of the times, maybe? To some perhaps. Improved procedures have speeded up the process but some still must wait. Jeanne Shore and Suzie Vaughters process financial aid. At left, Jerre Nolte, SAA president, shows you what you can expect from his end of the line. Sarah Jo Sympson is more than happy to laminate it. Bottom: Dr. Laws counsels his advisee, Mark Hogue, in an effort to get him into necessary classes.

Taking the reins of Southwestern in 1972, Dr. Donald Ruthenberg (shown at right with his secretary, Leona Glenn) has brought many changes and improvements to Southwestern College. He resigned his position this spring, however, to assume the job as President of the Iowa Association of Independent Colleges and Universities.

Dr. Bob Evans has finished his first full year at S.C. He assumed the role of Academic Dean after J. Hamby Barton resigned to accept a position at Scarritt College in Tennessee. Dr. Evans has commented that he enjoys an open-door policy in his office and looks forward to meetings with students. He is shown at right with Gerrie Kaste-secretary and Assistant Dean Benn Gibson.

The Admissions Office focuses its objectives on bringing students to campus. The admissions counselors and their director provide prospective students necessary information about Southwestern College.

Admissions counselors this year were: Ken Goyen, Bill Rinkenbaugh - assistant director, Becky Schroll, Carl Pagles - director.

This was Rick Johnson's first year as Dean of Students in the Student Personnel Office. The office is responsible for housing arrangements on as well as housing the director of career planning and placement, Dorothy Bernard.

In the Student Personnel Office this year: Standing - Rick Johnson, Fran Broadhurst - assistant dean of students. Sitting - Dorothy Bernard, Sharon Fowler, secretary.

Spearheading the business side of SC is the business manager's office. Business manager for the last 10 years, Earl Spidel, has been instrumental in developing Southwestern's endowment, ranked first in small colleges in the state. Secretary this year was Irene Watson.

Financial aid is probably one of the greatest concerns facing new students in college today. After working a year under financial aid director, Barbara Shively, Jeanne Shore has just completed her first year as chief in that slot.

Financial aid: Suzie Vaughters - secretary, Jeanne Shore.

The Business Office maintains all the financial records of the school. There are four full-time employees that share in the duties of that office. The Business Office employees look forward to the 1980's with the future expansion of office space.

The Office of the Registrar is the academic record keeper of the College. This office registers students for classes, keeps them apprised of their academic progress, issues grade reports, and, eventually, sends transcripts to prospective employers and graduate schools. Teacher certification is also handled through this office.

The office is staffed by Ralph Decker, Registrar, and Betty Hamm, secretary. During Mrs. Hamm's illness Rick Cotton has been student secretary and Don Smith has been student assistant.

In the eighties the Registrar's Office will strive to provide additional information to students and faculty concerning the programs of individual students. Refinements in the computing system will allow the office to operate more efficiently while still maintaining the high degree of accuracy that is necessary to such an operation.

Heading up the multi-faceted Alumni-Development Office is Roger Russell. Ruth Archambeau is secretary.

Sarah Jo Simpson now runs the mailroom and multi-lithe by herself after Virgene Davis assumed the role as Student Union hostess.

Lewis Gilbreath took over as Coordinator of Planned Giving last summer after being Director of Admissions here. Myrna Conrod is bookkeeper.

Gerald Raines, Coordinator of Alumni Affairs, is an active backer of SC's sports programs, stepping in last year to head the women's basketball team.

Hostesses - Virgene Davis, Cathy Dimmitt, Angela Owens, Alice Beach, Cheryl Fell.

After working in the mailing room for 18 years, Virgene Davis applied for the job as hostess due to her like for young people. In the past, the hostess had only a desk in the foyer of the Student Union. Now, an office has been built to give the hostess a more permanent and functional base of operations for services to the students. Five students aid in helping Virgene carry out the duties of the hostess. Those duties include making change, distributing recreational equipment, taking messages, keeping students posted as to current events, and distributing off-campus mail.

The Bookstore is here to provide the students with the required and recommended texts, plus other supplies they may need. They also carry many non-essential items to make shopping more convenient for the on-campus students. They order and process all items carried. Staffing includes the manager, one permanent assistant and two regular and part-time student workers.

Bookstore: Annette Hanna, Kay Newton - manager.

John Paulin has been chaplain of the college since 1974. As chaplain, John heads up Wednesday morning chapel services, the Cowley County chaplaincy program and campus ministry organization.

College nurse Jo Ann Mazzanti is located in the lower level of the Student Center. She is responsible for interfacing the health needs of students with outside facilities.

Public relations, public information and publications are handled by Howard Stephens and Maija Wilgers. Their combined office is now located in Christy Hall, lower level.

Smith-Willson Lectures

The Smith-Willson Lectures featured Dr. Robert Short, author of the best-seller, "The Gospel According to Peanuts," the week of October 31 to November 2. Students gathered to hear three lectures and an evaluation session.

With most of the '78 starting team returning, the outlook for the '79 season was good. However, inconsistency and breaks turned what looked to be a possible conference championship team into one with a 4-5 record.

The final 4-5 record does not show the potential and desire of the players and coaches and all the time and hard work contributed by each individual.

This year's Moundbuilder squad saw 40 new faces at the beginning of the season, all of those being freshmen, which made up almost half of the Builder team. The season began with 82 potential Builders and ended with 79.

The fact that the 1979 SC football team didn't have a winning season cannot take away from the fact that the squad was made up of outstanding individuals, some of whom earned All-Conference honors for their performances on the field.

Gaining the most distinctions was Tony Gray, a senior from Chandler, Okla. Tony received ALL-KCAC, All-District 10, and Small College All-American honors at his linebacker position. He was voted MVP, most inspirational, and was also given the Headhunter award by his teammates. Two others earned first team recognition. They were Darrell Drennan at guard and Bill Gies at punter. Second team honors went to Jude Dinges at defensive end, Charlie Wilson at split end and Ollis Anderson at tackle. Honorable mention went to John Tuttle at fullback, Jeff Camp at linebacker and Tom Audley at nose guard. Audley was also voted Outstanding Freshman of the year by his teammates.

Next year's outlook for Builder football is a promising one. It will feature 27 returning starters and 18 seniors, the largest senior contribution since Coach Hower's acceptance of the Builder helm.

Above: "Awright, Excellent, Excellent!" is a familiar sound on the sideline when a play has been well executed.

Above: Bill Gies shows the style that made him KCAC's best punter and ranked him fourth overall in NAIA Division II. He also had the second longest punt in the nation at 80 yards. At the end of the season his average was 40.6 yards per punt.

Below: Terry Elder attempts to turn the corner to gain extra yardage.

Right: Woops! Curt Davison seems to have lost something and is surrounded by somebody else who wants it.

Left: Bill Gies and Clay Stone display the look of how the season went this year - frustrating. It's pretty hard to accept a 4-5 season and know that four of those five losses were by a touchdown or less.

Right: Here "Big" John Washington shows the strength and drive he possesses to break tackles. He believes in running over tacklers, not around.

Builders Run Strong

The 1979 cross country team could be classified as young and inexperienced, but very talented. Six of the nine members on the team were freshmen or sophomores, but the team was balanced and each runner progressed well. Although there were several good races for the team, and several outstanding individual performances, the lack of experience was felt throughout the season at different times. Freshman Mike Lambing led the Builders the entire year, placing second in the Kansas Collegiate Championships, third in the KCAC Championships and tenth in the District 10 meet with a personal best time of 25:19 for five miles.

The season started off with big wins in the OBU-Bethel-SC triangular and the OBU dual, with Southwestern nearly earning perfect scores in both meets. SC runners continued to perform well as a team throughout the season, finishing strong in most of the meets in which they participated. The Southwestern Invitational was one of the highlights of the year, as six Builders set personal records in the five mile distance.

Tina Lansing was the only woman to compete in cross country for SC this year, but she held her own very well. She set a personal best time in the three mile at 20:48, placing second in the Southwestern Invitational. Tina came on strong at the end of the season to become the first women's KCAC champion in SC history. Tina is only a freshman and should become an outstanding college runner.

The 1980 season promises to be one of the best ever for SC. Every returning runner is a letterman and there is a fine group of prospects to add depth to the team.

Wallingford Stays Active

This year Wallingford has maintained a very high profile on campus. They started the year off with a 'get acquainted' dance on the east lawn. At Homecoming the residents put together a float that took second place as well as finishing second in the dorm decoration contest.

At one point in the year they invited the residents of Sutton Hall over for a doughnut and juice breakfast. Turnout was not outstanding, possibly attributable to the 6 a.m. starting time.

This year has also marked the beginning of what may become an ongoing tradition. The Wallingford Man Hunt prompted competition among the six wings to corral and convey certain members of Southwestern's faculty, administration and student body to the scorer's table for points. Points were allocated by position and prestige of the captive. The girls of third floor east emerged as winners during the four hour evening event.

Homecoming: Something For Everyone

Crisp October air brought to mind the excitement of football games parades with impressive bands and colorful floats, renewing friendships . . . All this at Homecoming at Southwestern.

This year's Homecoming on Saturday of October 20 had something for everyone. Not only was there the traditional football game, queen coronation, class reunions and a play, but there was also a parade and an arts and crafts exhibit.

Last year's arts and crafts exhibit was such a success that another one was scheduled for this year. The committee members who planned the event were Lynn Felts, Ardith Fell, Jim Heck, and Rita Johnson, all alumni.

New director of bands, Daniel Phillips, had several area bands march in the parade and also play during half-time of the Builder-Bethel football game. The parade marshals were Roger and Delcia Lungren.

Kim Snapp, chairman of the Student Government Homecoming Committee, helped coordinate all the student activities.

Ugly Man On Campus

The Ugly Man on Campus contest, an annual motley get-together of S.C.'s most gifted males, was run again this year during the week of Homecoming activities. Candidates are chosen by the student body who cast their votes in the form of coins cast into jars representing the candidates. The following are this year's candidates for the coveted title of Ugliest Man on Campus:

Randy Juden was selected this year's winner with his stunning outfit titled "Sunbathing on the Range."

Suffering from a bad case of foot-in-mouth disease, Jimmy Robinson displays a heretofore unknown limberness.

Alma Mater

Far above the Walnut Valley,
On a lofty height,
Stands our noble Alma Mater,
Bathed in golden light,

Chorus

Lift the Chorus, speed it onward,
Over hill and dale,
Haile to thee, beloved Southwestern
Alma Mater, Hail!

Far above the stir and bustle
Of the busy town,
Reared against the arch of heaven,
Looks she calmly down.

To the heights she calls us daily,
Alma Mater, dear,
Heights of knowledge, hope and courage
Free from doubt and fear.

Gov. John Carlin was on campus to share his experiences in China as a result of his Trade Mission to that country. His appearance on campus was in conjunction with the Humanities series dealing with "Changing Perspectives on China."

Humanities seminar on "Parenthood Education in Kansas" was part of a series of seminars on parenting sponsored by the Home Economics Department. Featured speakers were Ramona Carlin, First Lady of Kansas; SuEllen Fried (above), chairman of the Governor's Commission on Children; and Melissa Masoner (below), specialist in parenthood education with the State Department of Education

S.C. Women Win KCAC Second In State

Southwestern College's women's tennis team completed another highly successful year. The team won the 1979 KCAC championship at Riverside Courts in Wichita outdistancing second place Bethany 22-12. This proved to be the third KCAC trophy for SC in five years since the KCAC initiated the women's tennis championship. SC has finished second the other two times. Outstanding performers for the women in the KCAC were Jenny Lock, #1 singles runner-up and #1 doubles champion; Brenda Narvaes, #2 singles champion and #1 doubles champion; Tara Gray, #3 singles champion and #2 doubles runner-up; Cindy Holt, #4 singles champion and #2 doubles runner-up; Debbie Bennett, #5 singles third place and #3 doubles champion; and Gayla Dvorak, #6 singles runner-up and #3 doubles champion.

The week following the successful defense of their KCAC crown, the Southwestern women journeyed to Baldwin City, Kansas, to meet Baker University for the Division III Kansas State AIAW Championships. At the turn (the completion of the singles matches) SC and Baker were tied 3-3. But the strong doubles play of the Baker team prevailed and SC lost the state title to Baker 6-3. However, the three SC women who won state singles championships in their respective flights advance to the Division III Region VI AIAW Championships to be held May 15-17, 1980 at Luther College, Decorah, Iowa. The National AIAW Championships follow. Winning state titles for the Builders were Tara Gray, #3 singles; Debbie Bennett, #5 singles; and Gayla Dvorak, #6 singles.

Southwestern finished the year with a 6 win 3 loss overall record and 5 wins and 1 loss in KCAC dual play. When the team lost a dual match to Bethany in October at McPherson, that was the first KCAC dual loss SC women had experienced since beginning competition in the KCAC in 1974. In KCAC dual competition for the past five years SC has compiled a record of 24 wins and 1 loss. Besides competing against the KCAC colleges, SC also met such teams as Wichita State, Kansas State, Pittsburg State, Emporia State, Allen County Junior College, and the Missouri Valley Tournament hosted by Stephens College in Columbia, Missouri. Graduating from this year's team will be co-captains Jenny Lock and Cindy Holt. Returning Letterwomen will be Brenda Narvaes, Tara Gray, Debbie Bennett, Gayla Dvorak and Debbie McGowan.

Tobacco Road

"Tobacco Road" by Jack Kirkland was the first drama production of the 1979-80 school year. Directed by Randy Juden, the three-act drama was presented as a student production on October 18-20. Set in the back country of Georgia in the 1930's, the play deals with the problems of a poor white family.

Pearson Brings New Look To S.C.

This year's Lady Builder Volleyball team took on an entirely new look with a new coach and several young players. Coach Anna Pearson stepped into the helm with the majority of the team being incoming freshmen. The lack of experience at the college level as well as a new system to returning players added up to a disappointing season. The Lady Builders' record of 4-20 does not show the accomplishments of the team, though. The team was slow to jell, but showed consistent improvement in experience as well as scores in matches. The team won two of their last ten regular matches, and of the other eight, six of the matches were brought to four games and were difficult losses. The Lady Builders were unplaced in the AIAW State Tourney, but, again, showed strong play in losing efforts. Close matches with Mid-America and Ottawa could have gone either way. One highlight for the team was the All-KCAC Honorable Mention being earned by Ronda and Robin Rivers. The Lady Builders will return all players, except one graduating senior, and will have a strong nucleus. Coach Pearson indicated that this year's recruiting has been outstanding and the team may be contenders for next year's KCAC title.

To Be Young, Gifted, And Black

"To be Young, Gifted, and Black" was a reader's theater production based on the biography of Lorraine Hansberry, black author of "Raisin in the Sun." It was presented in conjunction with Black Heritage Week activities in early March.

Staged in the Little Theatre, the play was made up of excerpted scenes from many of Hansberry's plays. It was compiled by her husband. Scenery was limited with slides and sound playing a major role in the production.

The play traced Hansberry's life from her grandparents' escape from slavery through her rise in popularity. At several points, excerpts from her plays were worked in.

The production was well attended through all four nights of performance.

Dr. Schmidt was 26 years old when he came to SC in 1967. As a relatively inexperienced teacher then, his original concern was that he might tell everything he learned in graduate school in the first 50 minutes. What would come next? Fortunately, experience proved otherwise. When he came to SC he was paid a late night visit from the "Royal Order of the Tire" (ROOT), a student organization that existed on campus in the late 1960s. The group gave a set of tires to all likable faculty members. If they didn't like you, you got one painted green. His interests include playing bridge, chess, bowling, tennis, volleyball, and reading science fiction. His word of wisdom is that everyone should "keep asking questions and have an open mind even though there may not always be an answer to the question."

Dr. Anderson came to SC in the fall of 1966. He remembers being generally excited at the prospect of teaching and was somewhat anxious. He said many traditions, like the Mound, have remained, but compulsory chapel has gone and dorm rules have been relaxed. He would like to see all students exposed to courses outside their major in a more systematic way than at the present. He remembers with a grin the rat that went to sleep in a Skinner box. It had been fed by mistake and thought it was time for a nap. He enjoys golfing, photography, jazz and camping. To the students of SC, he says, "It's your life; take charge of it."

Dr. Gray has been at SC for 23 years and still remembers the formal dress of the faculty, especially on the days in which they taught most of their classes. He remembers the very first exam that he ever gave. It was a complete "bummer," 1-A, 1-B, 6-D, and 7-F. He avoided the students because they made him so nervous. When he passed the exams back, the students were so down on him that another prof overheard a "Hate Gray" session. Soon he began to work individually with the students and grades really improved. Dr. Gray knows that man has only so much time to do what he wants in his lifetime and his main goal is to be able to read a Japanese newspaper fluently. Dr. Gray stated that it is important for people to accept all people with their pluses and minuses and go on from there.

Dr. Larry Wilgers has been teaching social science at S.C. since 1968. He would like to introduce an attitude on campus which would view education as learning rather than a routine process external to the lives of students.

Dr. Eugene Hynes, a native of Ireland, has been with Southwestern since 1978. He was startled when he first arrived to find that there was a hill in Kansas. An assistant professor of sociology, he is trying to construct a theory that society could get along without people. In reference to his students, he feels "That should impress them."

In her first year at Southwestern, Susan Schwarz revitalized the gerontology program left vacant by Marvin Zimbelman's leaving two years ago. Her hobbies include sewing, hooking rugs, and playing cards.

This was Rick Johnson's first year at S.C. as an instructor in political science. He would like to see students approach situations with open minds and "ask questions that they don't know the answers to."

Chaplaincy Program

The Cowley County Chaplaincy Program has successfully completed its fourth year of service to Winfield and surrounding areas. The chaplaincy program continues to be a 24-hour on-call crisis intervention agency responding to calls from the police, sheriff, fire department, emergency medical services (ambulance) and William Newton Memorial Hospital. This year, four students were involved in the program answering emergency pagers when called: Paul Wilke, Kim Snapp, Don Smith and Tammy Bemis. Dr. John Paulin supervised the total program.

Several clergymen from the Winfield community served as field supervisors to the students. Volunteering their time and skills to make the program a success were these ministers: John Blythe, pastor of First Baptist Church; Orvan Gilstrap, pastor of First Christian Church; Jim Reed, pastor of Grace United Methodist Church; Carlyle Spohr, pastor of First Presbyterian Church; Fr. Brian McCullough, priest of Grace Episcopal Church; and George Gardner and Larry Harvey, pastors of First United Methodist Church.

The Cowley County Chaplaincy Program also sponsored an instructional program in cardiopulmonary resuscitation. This training was attended by the student chaplains and was led by Gene Roberts, director of the Winfield Emergency Medical Service.

The steps in front of Christy proved to be a good place for many morning chapel services.

Front: Diana Miller, Cindy Scarbrough, Joy Lewellyn, Cheryl Hogarth, Cheryl Lindly, Selina Wallace. Standing: Rhonda Palmer, Kris Gentz, Ronda Rivers, Bill Gies-student coach, Robin Rivers, Carla Sinclair, Cindy Ellmauer, Coach Anna Pearson.

It was a tough 9-13 season this year but one that will push the relatively young team. With only one senior, Joy Lewellyn, leading the team, there was a heavier burden placed on freshmen and sophomores who made up the bulk of the team.

The season, though not indicated by win/loss was relatively close with the Builder ladies trailing their opponents by 37 points on the season.

Robin Rivers lead individual performances, pouring in 120 field goals and 83 free throws. She also lead in rebounds with 285 caroms.

It's tough defense against St. Mary's for Selina Wallace (24), Ronda Rivers, and Carla Sinclair (22).

At left: Ronda Rivers (44) grabs for a rebound, Rhona Palmer (20) and Kris Gentz (12) await the results. Below: Kris Gentz fires from the free throw.

Southwestern Training Staff

Trainers this season were John Cartright, Cheryl Lindly and Dallas Hinds.

Though working with a smaller group, this year's training staff had at least a year's experience working with SC athletics. John Cartright returned to head up the staff after assuming that role second term last year. Also returning was junior Cheryl Lindly and sophomore Dallas Hinds. Serving in an apprentice role this year was freshman Julie Hancock.

The training staff ministers to nearly 150 athletes in nine intercollegiate sports sponsored by Southwestern. In addition, they tape ankles, joints, and hands for all of SC's intramural sports programs. Without exception, each member of this year's staff has served on the squad since his freshman year. It is hoped that recruiting can improve the size of the staff while it's doubtful the quality can be improved.

Cecil Findley is chairman of the Humanities Division which contains speech, language, drama, English and religious areas. An associate professor of religion, He teaches the bulk of religious courses here as well as coaching the men's tennis teams. His word to students: "I hope that at Southwestern you might become a caring, effective citizen of the global village in which we must learn to live and find fulfillment together."

Alfredo Rodriguez teaches Spanish at Southwestern and is presently drafting a book documenting his methods of teaching. Well-liked by his students, Alfredo's technique immerses students in the language.

Marguerite Hessini first came to teach French in 1965. Since then she notes that students have become more conservative and yet educated to a further degree. Hobbies and interests include music, crafts, and enjoying her children. She urges students to "be alive, never stop learning, growing. To change is to become and create new possibilities."

Gary Horn coaches debate at S.C. as well as teaching speech and communications. Gary enjoys working with students and works to make them feel at home on campus. Spontaneous wit and easy humor make him an enjoyable teacher.

Dr. Helen Wroten, professor of English, was chairman of the Division of Language and Literature until it was merged into the newly formed Humanities Division. She teaches advanced English and literature courses. She also sponsors the Order of the Mound.

This is Dr. Dan Daniel's tenth year at S.C. He has been impressed with the student's involvement in academic life. Dr. Daniel enjoys dancing, reading, playing backgammon, chess, and tennis.

Judy Charlton was a student at S.C. in 1956-60. She returned in 1965 as a member of the faculty. Miss Charlton is very interested in English history, medieval art and architecture and Africa. She loves to decorate, travel, and collect images of St. George.

Troy Boucher holds an associate professorship at Southwestern and teaches introductory and middle level English courses. He enjoys tennis and reading.

In his second year as director of drama at Southwestern, Darnell Lutt is in charge of all dramatic productions and sponsors Campus Players, the drama fraternity. He and his wife, Chris, design most of the sets and costumes of college productions.

Mr. DeArmond came to SC in 1978. He said the campus students were friendly and conservative. One thing that has changed is that the faculty has gotten younger in average age. Mr. DeArmond was inquisitive even when he was 10 years old. He remembers a neighborhood friend wanted to see if an old WWII German helmet was bullet-proof. He put it on and his friend hit him over the head and knocked him out. He says this is what he uses to explain sudden gaps in his education! He is a collector of baseball cards, speculative fiction and records. He also keeps a log and rating system on all the movies he sees. Mr. DeArmond says that students must make up their own mind, do what they think is right, assume the consequences and make certain that their actions do not injure anyone else.

3rd Place In KCAC Less Than Expected

Front: Rick Shaffer, Mark Watson, Charley Hill. Standing: Brian Raney, Craig Anderson, Kenny Mossman, Jeff Anderson, Stretch Singleton, Paul Wilke, Mike Brown, Darnell Hamilton, Gary West, Randy Rivers, Tommy Williams and Eugene Cheadle.

It's hard to call a third place KCAC finish and an above .500 record disappointing, but they were exactly that for the 1979-80 Southwestern Mound-builder basketball team.

Coming into the season, SC had won three consecutive KCAC titles and embarked upon an unprecedented fourth. It wasn't to be, however, as the Builders slipped to third in the conference with the Bethany Swedes emerging as the KCAC's top club.

There were several bright spots in the 1979-80 season, though.

The season got off to an early start as the Builders hosted the national champions from the country of Portugal. After trailing a good part of the game, SC came alive in the final moments with a full court press to down the Portuguese, 70-67.

Senior center, Paul Wilke, garnered most of the individual spotlight. He was named All-KCAC and NAIA All-American Honorable Mention. He finished as the fourth best rebounder in the nation and the conference's leading scorer and rebounder. The 6'9" Wilke will play professionally in France during the 1980-81 season.

Sophomore Eugene Cheadle was named honorable mention on the All-KCAC squad.

The 1980-81 edition of Builder basketball should be exciting as well. SC lost only two seniors and coach Bill Stephens has landed several top prospects who promise to be fine assets to the already strong nucleus of players who will return.

Dr. Bob 'Doc' Wimmer is chairman of the Natural Science Division and sponsor of Tri-Beta, campus science fraternity. He traveled to Florida this year with a group of students on a Jan Term excursion to study the flora and fauna of that region.

Dr. Charles Hunter teaches biology. Through his efforts, the campus and Winfield community declared a week in April "Earth Week" to bring attention to preserving and conserving Earth's natural resources.

Dr. Manly Huber has been at S.C. for 23 years and has seen a lot of changes take place over the campus. He is a one man physics department, but also says that his students are very special. His hobbies include fishing, playing tennis and gardening, hobbies that he will have more time to give as this was his last year at Southwestern. His wit and humorous "Huberisms" will be missed but not forgotten.

Dr. Leonard Laws has been teaching math at Southwestern since 1953. He has served S.C. as both Academic Dean and instructor, as well as chairing both the Social Science and Natural Science Divisions. Since leaving those positions he has devoted his efforts to teaching math. Hobbies include woodcarving, stonecarving, and metal sculpture.

Lee Dubowsky teaches math and computer science. He has been at Southwestern since 1961.

Dr. Larry Smith has been with S.C. for nine years. When he arrived, it was raining and the building looked old so he knew that the college had been here for a long time. When he first walked into class, he was scared and really did not know what to expect. He has noticed that the student's attitudes have really improved and they seem to enjoy learning more. Dr. Smith is also involved in cancer research at the Snyder Research Foundation. He enjoys golfing, fishing, camping and gardening.

Max Thompson spent first semester this year in South America on a scientific expedition. Bob Hamilton, a senior, and Philip Humphrey, director of the Museum of History at the University of Kansas accompanied him. Thompson brought back 375 new ornithological specimens to add to the college's already extensive bird collection. Thompson also manages the greenhouse.

Orland Kolling has been at Southwestern for 20 years. He says the campus is modern and roomy. The student's interests are varied, he said, and the administration is seeking to build upon the past toward a stronger institution in the future. Over the years the campus life has become less formalized and the campus-wide activities have gotten fewer. Mr. Kolling also feels that there has been a desire for smaller groups among students and faculty emphasizing the disciplinary majors. He smiles when he thinks how more and more students are concerned about a future job and less of an interest in reforming the American society.

Eagerheart — A Christmas

Tradition

"Eagerheart" opened for its 47th year in conjunction with a holiday banquet held in Stewart Field House. Eagerheart is the story of a young maiden whose humility and generosity brings the Christ child to the shelter of her small home.

The part of Mary is honorary, given to two non-Campus Player senior women (one at each performance) chosen by the Campus Players. Tammy Bemis and Kay Reeder were selected to play those roles this year.

The play was part of a whole evening of holiday entertainment which included performances by special music groups as well as a banquet.

Randy Juden counsels young Eagerheart (Dee Ann Wills) on the worthiness of her home for the Christ child.

SPRING

Dr. David Nichols was a student at SC in 1956 and has returned to teach business and economics as well as to head up the newly defined Management Division. He remembers the strict chapel and convocation requirements in effect then. Even though those requirements have been relaxed, he feels the commitment towards fine teaching has not. "... it is more important what you are than what you know. Knowledge is a wonderful thing, but character is more crucial."

Pat Doyle teaches accounting at SC after returning from educational leave.

Gary King has been teaching at SC since 1958. Since that time the campus has changed little, he feels. He would like to see a greater emphasis placed on spiritual growth and values. When asked about a humorous event, he recalled the time that he helped place a VW between the pillars of Christy. However, since he has become the owner of a VW, he pointed out he doesn't want anyone to get any ideas.

This was Harry Howren's first year at the Southwestern Business department. Hailing from Alabama (yes, Bear Bryant country), he taught the mainline business courses.

Four Ways To Beat High Energy Costs

Bathe With A Friend:
Conserving hot water is elemental to cutting energy costs. Also, sharing a tub can be fun.

Body Heat is Cheaper than Natural Gas: So get all your friends together under one blanket and turn the thermostat down.

We wish to thank Charley Hunter, Tim McGuire, Kevin Will, Todd Diacon, and Larry Burnett, and oh yes, Timber (the fuzzy one pictured above) for their help in bringing these tips to you.

Another solution is to share a ride with a friend. Car-pooling can lead to great savings in fuel as well as forming or reinforcing friendships.

Start a garden. Not only do plants add nice color and decoration to the home and yard, they convert carbon dioxide into oxygen, freshening the air.

Dr. Jane Rogers Flavin came to Southwestern in 1976. She noted that the students were friendly, warm, and receptive. The campus was like a 1930s movie set of what a college campus should be. She is chairman of the Division of Professional Service Programs. Her hobbies, interests and favorite pastimes include collecting and selling antiques, antique cars and books. She also likes to read constantly. Dr. Flavin tells students, "Beware- do not become an 'educated barbarian'- read, study, think and continue to grow until the day you die."

Mr. Valyer came to S.C. in 1974 at which time it was 15 degrees above here and 5 degrees below in Emporia, his hometown. People were courteous and friendly when he arrived on campus. His interests include auto mechanics, woodworking, gardening, hunting, and aerospace education. Mr. Valyer believes that students should "be themselves, be flexible, and willing to try the impossible to have the ability to have a deep faith that will carry them through the thin space."

Ed Foster has been a member of the S.C. faculty for 14 years but has been teaching here longer than that due to the summer school classes he taught for a few years prior to joining the education department. His interests include travel, golf, photography, reading, shell collecting, and classical music.

Ann Laws has been with the home economics department since 1977 and is somewhat relieved to get past a peculiar problem she faced her first two years. "I was always being mistaken for a student," she said. "It put me in awkward positions when I approached people with the manner of a teacher and the looks of a student." Ann enjoys reading, sewing, and riding her bicycle.

Glennis Couchman also arrived at S.C. in the fall of 1977 and was impressed with the friendly and congenial atmosphere of the campus. Glennis' hobbies include gardening and sewing as well as working with her children's 4-H projects.

Mr. Stephens arrived on the Southwestern campus 11 years ago. On arrival, he noticed that both the students and faculty had progressive ideas in regard to the future of SC. He said students now are not as interested in college-sponsored activities and that he hoped that students would regain their enthusiasm toward such activities. Mr. Stephens enjoys gardening, tennis, golfing, and fishing. He said, "Our students and our alumni are the most important elements in determining the kind of college we are. For that reason both groups must seek an active interest to insure the proper growth of the college."

This is Jim Helmer's second year coaching S.C. thinclads. A runner himself, Jim coaches cross country and track squads as well as teaching physical education.

Phil Hower returned to coach football at his alma mater in 1977. Phil also sponsors the S-club and Letterman's Club as well as helping Jim Helmer with the track team.

A newcomer to SC this year is Anna Pearson. This 5'4" faculty member found a very "home-like" atmosphere upon her arrival at SC. She said that she got lost on campus a lot her first week. Seemed funny to her since she had come from the University of South Alabama which had almost 10,000 students. Miss Pearson's hobbies include jogging, reading, horseback riding, music and poetry. To students coming to SC, she says, "Be yourself. People are much more accepting of a 'real' person than one who puts on masks and facades. Use the Golden Rule. Treat others like you would like to be treated; in turn, they will be more warm, accepting and caring toward you."

Builder Thinclads Look To Experience

Coach Helmer fielded a young track squad again this year but it promises to be quite a powerhouse in the future, with several freshmen turning in class A performances. Injuries and youth hampered team performance but there are several very talented athletes on the squad. They are developing into a quality track team.

Season highlights have to include the second place finish at the KCAC track meet. Also of note: 101 of the team's 111 points were garnered by freshmen and sophomores. Two freshmen won conference championships: Mike Lambing in the 1500 m run and Steve Davis in the javelin. Anton Stewart bettered the old school shot put record by over two feet with his 52'4" toss. However, that feat only earned him a second place finish in the meet.

These three freshmen went on to the NAIA National Championships in Abilene, Texas. Steve Davis led S.C. entries with an 8th place finish.

Another bright showing in the season was our own S.C. Relays. In 20 events, S.C. tracksters won 7 and placed second or third in 11 others.

'80-'81 Was A Building Year

1980 was a building year for the Builder men's tennis team. The record in dual matches was 0-10. The team also got experience in tough tournaments in Arkansas City and in Kerrville, Texas. In the KCAC tournament, Southwestern tied for last place.

Dave King ended his four-year career as captain. Dalvin Yager was the other returning letterman. Freshman Randy Rowley played at number one, and is expected to lead a much stronger team next year. Clint Hankins, Karlan Yager and Steve McAllister all got some victories in their first year of competition. Ron Richardson will be back to help, after being injured much of the season.

Coach Cecil Findley expresses admiration for the team for never quitting, and is confident their year of experience points to more victories next year.

Puck carries out her instructions, sprinkling dust into the eyes of Demetrius. She was not to know the hardships this would cause later.

Opposite: Fran Broadhurst tells a story to anyone who will listen. The week sought to bring a touch of Shakespeare to Winfield and featured movies and lectures on the Great Bard.

The Winfield Public Library hosted the exhibit "Renaissance Reflections, Servants and Sovereigns," part of a week-long Shakespearean festival. Above: Dana Shireman pauses by one of the clothing exhibits.

SUMMER

Opportunities of service in short term mission work were shared by Marti Zimmerman (above), mission intern for the Board of Global Ministries of the United Methodist Church. The Rev. Zimmerman shared her experiences as a pastor in Chile. She spoke to several classes and visited informally with students.

An Honorary Doctorate was awarded to B. Vail Prather, center, longtime friend of S.C. and alum, during Founder's Day, March 14, by Dr. Ruthenberg, at right. Congratulating Prather is Dr. Bob Wimmer. Prather has had a distinguished career in industrial water and pollution control. He is now a private consultant in Tulsa, Oklahoma.

R. Benton Peugh, local artist who has exhibited in New York, had an art show on campus. His paintings, in bold contemporary style, are about people and events in his life. Peugh will be a part-time art instructor this fall.

Dr. Richard Bobo is chairman of the Division of Fine Arts as well as instructor in piano.

Dr. Warren Wooldridge, a professor of music, teaches private voice classes.

Jim Strand is professor of organ and chairs the Cultural Arts Board.

Warren Brown graduated from SC in 1946 and then returned in 1969 to teach. He thought that although the campus population has remained about the same, it is not as active. Brown enjoys literature, journalism, mountain-climbing and making his own jewelry.

Ken Forsyth first saw S.C. as a student in the fall of 1957. He returned to S.C. this year and says the friendliness of the students and the teachers has not changed over the years. He is interested in framing work and hopes to be able to open a framing shop, working out of his attic. His students' attitudes are very positive, he claims, and enjoys working with each one of them.

This is Michael Wilder's second year as instructor in strings here. Mike plays the clarinet and has played with the Wichita Symphony. He and his wife Joyce Ann combined for four afternoon performances titled "Music for a Fall Afternoon."

This was Dan Phillips' first year at SC as band director and instructor of brass instruments. Coming here from Notre Dame University, Phillips battled the problem of declining enrollment in instrumental music organizations. Phillips took the wind ensemble on a short tour of Kansas in the spring.

Mr. Williams came to Southwestern as a student in 1957 then returned in 1979 to become a member of the faculty. He has noted that there are fewer requirements for the students. He said that he would like to see the Jan term classes moved into the summer. This would allow three more weeks in the academic calendar. His hobbies include ornathology, classical music and sports. He stated that students should have a willingness to work hard and a genuine concern for the others which will make them a success. "... be sure to use your imagination. It can be your greatest asset."

Suppose the American Revolution had turned out differently and George Washington had been sent to London and tried for treason? That was the interesting question and supposition tackled in an unusual manner by students in Dr. Jane Flavin's "Teaching Social Science in the Elementary Schools" class at SC.

To set the right mood, the students even dressed the part. There was George Washington (played by Julie White) and even Thomas Paine (Kerri Hall) as well as an assortment of judges and prosecuting attorneys.

The whole purpose of the class was to teach library research, the strategy of a court case and the extra motivation of dressing in historical garb to add dramatic flair.

"The students in this class learned a tremendous teaching tool to use in elementary schools when they get out into a real teaching situation themselves," said Dr. Flavin.

Incidentally, the father of our country was found not guilty. All of the testimony was verifiable from history books, personal biographies and other reference materials. Before the judges made their decision, they verified all the evidence presented.

Fifteen outstanding Southwestern College seniors have been selected for inclusion in the 1979-80 edition of "Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges."

The students were selected by a committee of faculty, administration, and students. Selection was based on academic achievements and leadership qualities.

Order of the Mound: Debra Brennan, Donna Wacker, Jimmie Robinson, Linda Voth Coleman, Bob Hamilton, Karen Rymph, Kay Reeder, Jon Kessler, Dr. Helen Wroten - sponsor. Not pictured - Craig Wamsley, Jan Kraus, Kevin Mulvaney, Dalvin Yager. Student in the top 10% of the graduating class are selected for membership in the Order of the Mound.

Masterbuilders: Todd Diacon, Jimmie Robinson, Bob Hamilton, Paul Wilke, Janelle Dreier, Rick Johnson - sponsor, Jerre Nolte. Masterbuilders are chosen by the student body as representing the ideals of Southwestern College.

Scholars of the College: Linda Voth Coleman and Jon Kessler both maintained 4.0 averages during their four years at SC. They were named Valedictorians of their class. They are accompanied by President Ruthenberg and Dean Evans.

Dr. Raymond Wamsley gave the commencement address May 18. He is associate director of two-year college programs in Kentucky. His son, Craig, was among the graduates. (Daughter Lynda is a student here.) Dr. Ruthenberg presided over the ceremonies with the Rev. George Gardner giving the invocation and Rev. Carlyle Spohr giving the benediction. Dr. Evans, Academic Dean, and Ralph Decker, registrar, presented the seniors with Dr. Ruthenberg conferring the degrees.

Dr. Ruthenberg, above, became an alumnus of SC during commencement convocation as he was awarded the honorary degree, Doctor of Humanities. Dr. Evans, center, presented him for the degree and Dr. Joe Riley Burns, at right, chairman of the SC Board of Trustees, conferred the degree. Dr. Ruthenberg, who was president of SC since 1972, left Southwestern to accept the presidency of the Iowa Association of Independent Colleges and Universities. Below: Baccalaureate speakers were - John Paulin, Chaplin; Albert Rymph, Beloit; Donald Kessler, Peabody; Harry Graves, Great Bend; Forrest Robinson, Wichita; Fran Broadhurst, Assistant Dean of Students.

Animal House

It was nature's day graduation day it seemed. Dean Evans' speech (above) and Dr. Wamsley's address (right) were both punctuated with excursions by the animal kingdom. At press time, we were not aware of any social, moral, or ethical implications in the incidents.

Several members of Beta Rho Mu who are not graduating chose to attend the ceremonies anyway, in something less than traditional garb. Dallas Hinds, Mark Williams, Jennifer Miller, Randy Irvin, Darrel Drennan, Kenny Keeling.

Persons in attendance at the Presidential Scholar Dinner: Jerry Howard and Ralph Decker.

Recipients of the highest academic award offered by Southwestern College, the Presidential Scholarships, were honored at a dinner March 19 hosted by Dr. Donald Ruthenberg.

The Presidential Scholars are: Jonathan Kessler, Ellen Pederson, Kay Reeder, Linda Voth Coleman, Gregory Waller, Craig Wamsley, and Dalvin Yager, all seniors.

Also Brian Eicher, Michael Hessee, Kathryn Braker, Linda Courtright, Jerry Howard, Dawn Kempf, James McGee, Denise McMurphy, Teresa Norris, and Paul Pavao.

Well, another year draws to a close and each of us takes another step forward. It is hoped that this book can chronicle one year in our life at S.C.

At this time I would like to thank those who helped make this book a reality; the faculty who suffered through questionnaires and photographs, Kenny Mossman for the men's basketball copy, the Winfield Courier for the group track shot, advisor Larry Wilgers, and of course Howard Stephens for his award-winning photographs (see if you can pick them out).

But I wish to offer my special thanks to Jeanne Baker and Maija Wilgers for their unselfish efforts in the production of this book. Without them, there would not have been a yearbook (this year, anyway).

In closing, let me say that you get out life what you put into it. and I've gotten an awful lot out of this book.

Have a good year.

Jim Rollins
