"History Casts Its Shadow"	145

Moundbuilder

Southwestern College

Winfield, Kansas 67156

Our school, our history

Our centennial means more than just 100 years of history in the same way that our college is more than just a collection of buildings. A college is also the hopes and dreams begun within its walls and those ideas are inherent in its basic foundations.

Our centennial history, celebrated this year, is built on these past hopes and dreams and continues to thrive, fed by the imagination and ambitions of current students, staff, faculty and administration. Southwestern College has surely cast its shadow on all those who have been a part of its history.

Academics/Organizations

Academics, Organizations

Academics and campus life are very much alive at Southwestern College. There are many varied and diverse courses offered and just as many varied and diverse ways to spend time outside the classroom. From languages to statistics, and social organizations to academic clubs, there are many opportunities for the average SC student to become involved.

This year saw an increase in campus awareness with many organizations and class offerings addressing prominent individual and social issues. The role of the organization outside the classroom is a tool of education to educate, and provide service for, the campus community was evident in a number of service-oriented activities organized by various groups.

The academic curriculum at Southwestern has produced many scholars and offers one of the finest liberal arts educations in the region. Led by excellent faculty, classes are extremely personal relying on student input and feedback. Southwestern College is very much a "student's" school—offering students and the faculty many different ways of discussing and learning, challenging and being challenged in a variety of settings outside the classroom. From the cafeteria to the snack bar, Christy hallways to division offices, the library to professor's homes—there is always and ever present: the opportunity to learn.

Through their experience and participation in the learning process, participants in the classrooms and organizations have cast their shadow; becoming a part of the history of Southwestern College.

New President New Direction

This year, Southwestern College welcomed its newly appointed sixteenth president, Dr. Bruce P. Blake. Dr. Blake grew up in Wichita and graduated from East High School. He received his B.A. degree from Friends University and M.A. degree in theology from Drew University. He has since served as pastor, most recently at Woodlawn United Methodist Church in Derby, assuming that position in 1974. He became Annual Conference Program Director in 1969. He has served as a member of the Board of Trustees of Southwestern College for fifteen years and was presented with an honorary doctorate degree from SC in 1974. In his inaugural address, Dr. Blake focused on the importance of education as opposed to the career preparation theory prevalent in American colleges and universities. In addition to preserving Southwestern's academic excellence, campus improvement and fiscal stability have also become high priority. These, among other goals, comprise Southwestern's new direction as it enters its second hundred years.

SGA Has Productive Year

SGA had an extremely productive year, incorporating more students into the process of hearing and evaluating student needs. Student Forums panel discussions and sponsorship of various campus-wide activities were part of SGA's duties this year. Led by senior Gayla Rapp, president, and Blaine Kingsbury, vice-president, SGA attempted to revitalize the effectiveness and efficiency of Student government by completing revisions of the SGA constitution, and initiating dialogue concerning the inadequacies of the Judiciary process. SGA met every other week, and is comprised of Senators representing campus organizations, class presidents and student representatives for resident halls and off-campus students, faculty and administrators. Student Government officers are elected by popular student vote.

SAA Sponsors Activities

udent Activities Association had a very successful year. They sponsored the Back-to-School

Dance, the Homecoming Dance, the Inaugural Dance, and a Halloween costume party. They also helped other organizations sponsor dances and other events. One of the biggest projects of the year was sponsoring a bus to the football game in Orange City, Iowa. SAA also continued to sponsor the weekly movies on campus. A skating party was also sponsored by SAA during Jan-term. This was all done under the leadership of Cindy Kutz.

Continuing SC Traditions

Homecoming is one of the finest traditions at Southwestern and this year was no exception. Marguerita Shaw was selected Homecoming Queen before the game, which Southwestern won 49-7. Marguerita is a senior from Oklahoma City who majors in psychology. She was nominated by Wallingford Hall. Other candidates were Tammy Perry, Pam Ferguson, Mary Jo Horn and Terri Saunders.

Home-coming Queen Builds Tradition

The crowning of the queen, held before the game, on October 6, 1984, was a "Continuing Tradition" for Southwestern. Lisa Boling, the 1983 Queen, turned over her title to Marguerita Shaw, a senior from Oklahoma City, Oklahoma. Marguerita was nominated by Wallingford Hall and her escort was Ron Barnett. The other candidates were: Mary Jo Horn, a senior from Winfield, Kansas, who was nominated by Broadhurst Hall and escorted by Mike Rausch; Pam Ferguson, a junior from Cheney, Kansas, nominated by Tri Beta and her escort was Steve Thomas; Terri Saunders, a junior from Wellington, Kansas, nominated by SAA and escorted by Darren Boyd; and Tammy Perry, a senior from Anthony, Kansas, nominated by Theta Phi Delta and escorted by Randy Habluetzel.

Men Give New Meaning To Ugly

The Ugly Man contest was once again a fun Homecoming activity. Candidates, nominated by various campus organizations and voted on by the entire student body, spent the week trying to be ugly and repulsive! This annual event was sponsored by Alpha Kappa Omega sorority. The candidates were: Aaron Watters, voted Ugly Man; Brian Blevins; Jeff Wampler; Hal Small; Vic Neeley and Mike Dunbar.

Halloween Hits SC

After two months of classes and studying, SC students were ready to lighten up and have some fun. Halloween provided the perfect opportunity for them. PBL kicked off Halloween by sponsoring a spookhouse for several nights for those who were brave enough to venture through it. Besides dressing up for their classes during the day, students came to supper in various costumes to compete in the SAA costume parade. There was some tough competition but in the end it was Danica Arthur that took the top prize.

Blake 16th President

Dr. Bruce P. Blake was inaugurated November 3rd as Southwestern College's 16th president. Almost 700 students, alumni, parents and friends of the college were present. The inaugural ceremony commenced with an academic parade up the 77 steps and into Richardson Auditorium. Led by Faculty Marshals, students carrying flags, faculty members, delegates of colleges and universities, area clergy, and trustees all tramped the familiar steps again. Over 100 people were seated on stage for the ceremony. In the inaugural speech entitled, "Education: An Endangered Species," Dr. Blake spoke on the importance of maintaining and strengthening the liberal arts in the face of career preparation. "Southwestern College for 100 years has insisted that the best context for specialization is the liberal arts, insisting that education provides the best context for career preparation." "It is naive to think that a college can exist today without preparing persons for a career. However, it is just as naive to think we have done our job well if that is all we do."

Company of Wayward Saints. Wonderful, Fresh

The Homecoming play, "A Company of Wayward Saints," was performed on the 5th, 6th, and 7th of October coinciding with the Homecoming festivities. It told the story of a group of Italian Improvisational Comedians. The show functioned as a play within a play as the actors performed short comedy sequences portraying the History of Man. The actors learn to come to terms with their individual pride and must function together as a company in their attempts to find their way back home. Directed by Betsy Harden, one of the Technical Directors and an alum of SC, the cast included: Dereck Hood as Harlequin, Don Allgood as Scapino, Terri McCorkle as Columbine, K.C. Colvin as Pantalone, Bruce Adams as Dottone, Shanna Nispel as Ruffina, Jennifer Quillen as Isobella, Robert Hood as Tristano, and Shaun Hollis as Capitano. Set and lighting were designed by Don Allgood and costuming was designed by Betsy Harden. Dan Shadoin served as Technical Director and oversaw the construction of the set. Marylee Ramsey was Stage Manager. Darnell Lautt served in an advisory capacity and his son, August David Lautt, appeared in the opening night performance as the infant.

One Act Comedies Laughable

An Evening Of One Act Comedies was presented by the drama department as the December show. The plays were directed by students and alumni. NEXT, directed by Shaun Hollis, with Bruce Adams and Janet Pratt, provided a humorous look at the military when a middle-aged man has an army physical. THE LOVLIEST AFTERNOON OF THE YEAR, directed by Betsy Hardin, with Terri McCorkle and John Morris, involved two people who fell in love in a park. DUCK VARIATIONS, directed by Don Allgood, with Ryan Carr and Robert Hood, is about two old men who sit in a park and discuss ducks. THE E.Z. SNOOZE MOTEL, directed by Dan Shadoin, with Kermit Colvin, Daryl Jones, Sherri Hudson, Kevin Potts, Nancy Edmunds, and Marylee Ramsay, is about a run-down motel, the proprietor and the guest. NO SNAKES IN THE GRASS, with Tom Rains, Kevin Layton, and Marguerita Shaw, directed by Dereck Hood, takes a new look at the creation story.

Lafitte And His Pirates Steal Show

Lafitte was performed as part of the Centennial Founder's Day Celebration at Southwestern on March 8, 9, and 10. The play was written by Doug Delaney, a 1982 graduate of SC, while the music was the joint effort of Delaney and Paul Jackson. The play chronicled the life and times of Jean Lafitte, the infamous pirate of New Orleans, and the incidents surrounding the battle for New Orleans. Its characters ranged from the charming ladies of the evening who haunted Royale Street, to the offices of the territorial Governor, from the bumbling British Expeditionary Force, to the ruthless Baratarians pirates. Stage manager was Bruce Adams. Lana Lowe provided choreography. Music was arranged and directed by Eric Strand. The production was led by Darnell Lautt as director and lead actor.

Twelfth Night

William Shakespeare's Twelfth Night was performed May 10, 11 and 12 as part of the 1985 Renaissance Festival. The cast of 22 as well as numerous stage and technical workers, were directed by Darnell Lauth in the outdoor production. The plot is about twins who are separated by a shipwreck and believe each other dead. The confusion resulting makes for a very entertaining comedy.

Renaissance Festival More Than Fair

A week long schedule of activities marked the 1985 Renaissance Festival as one to be remembered. Movies, lectures, a Renaissance Feast, dramatic performances from off and on campus, a pig roast, and a day long Faire were just a few of the featured events. With little or no rain for a change, the Festival was pronounced a success.

Management Banquet

The first Southwestern College Management Division Honors and Awards Banquet was held at the Winfield Country Club in April. Over 90 persons attended the dinner honoring the outstanding business majors from SC. Six local businesses presented cash awards and plaques to the honorees. Many other firms were represented and presented awards.

Theta Phi Delta

For the eighteenth year, Alpha Omega chapter of Theta Phi Delta has been a social force on Southwestern's campus. The organization was originally formed to promote fellowship and brotherhood among its members. Activities are planned throughout the year to carry on this tradition. Especially popular is the Annual Stud Jock Day held each spring. The group works all through the year to promote campus spirit and their feelings of brotherhood.

Pi Delta Sigma

Since the 1973-74 school year, Pi Delta Sigma has remained the only co-ed social fraternity on Southwestern campus. The uniqueness as Delts does not stop there. While the Deltas continue to be small in numbers, the loyalty and feeling of brotherhood runs strong. During the pledge session, a future member comes to realize the family spirit of the fraternity and participates in activities that strengthen the bonds, while expanding the personality of the future brothers and sisters. The Delts kept their reputation on the hill and stage during the Centennial year. The Precision Marching Kazoo Band performed in the Homecoming parade. The highlight of the annual St. Valentine's Massacre Ball, held in February, was the Sinister Sweetheart contest.

SIS Gets Involved

This year SIS members have kept busy with various activities such as the Whacky Relays, building the Homecoming float, selling calendars, roller skating, and pledge week. The one major event SIS sponsors is the Country Western dance. In years past the dance has been held at the fairgrounds. This year the country dance was held at the Armory. The change of scenery had little effect on the atmosphere. Good Libations!

AKO

Alpha Kappa Omega once again served SC's community with its continuing traditions. First and foremost of these was the Ugly Man contest during Homecoming. AKO co-sponsored the annual Christmas Formal with SIS and in January AKO, Wallingford and Reid Halls gave the Kappa Kaleidoscope Beach Dance which was very successful. For Valentine's Day, AKO added a tradition by selling helium balloons with candy. To get to know the faculty wives, members held a tea for the Southwestern Dames. The usual spring pledge session brought in new members as well as new friends and through this activity, everyone grew closer. AKO forms close friendships and helps members reach out to help one another.

AKO/SIS Christmas Winter Wonderland

The second annual SIS/AKO Winter Wonderland Christmas Dance was again a great success. The event, held at the Heritage Inn in Arkansas, was well attended and much enjoyed by southwestern students. The two sororities decorated the dance area with red poinsettias, cedar boughs, red bows and candles as well as mistletoe placed in strategic locations in the room, in order to enhance the Christmas atmosphere. Members could wander around the scenic lobby and have their pictures taken in front of a sleigh and a large Christmas tree. Refreshments were provided and the music was supplied by radio station KKRD.

Black Student Union

The Black Student Union of Southwestern College is an organization that is open to all SC students. BSU unites students of different racial backgrounds allowing them a chance to interface and get to know each other on a more personal level. This provides an important opportunity that might not take place if these students were not a part of this campus organization. BSU members meet regularly to decide activities of the group. Projects sponsored recently include bake sales, out-of-town trips, dances and talent shows. One of the most popular recent affairs was Black Awareness Week. It consisted of a week of workshops on different subjects that permitted the students and community to attend the activity of their choice. Speakers such as Arvis Averette from the South Shore Commission in Chicago and Alan Corkin, news journalist in Washington, D.C., were flown in to participate in this exciting week. Celebrations such as Robert McFannin, former New York Metropolitan Opera baritone, were also featured during the week. The Black Student Union is very active on Southwestern campus and has enjoyed much success each semester.

Gamma Omicron

Gamma Omicron is a Home Economics related club and is open to all students. One continuing project for Gamma is the construction of the championship banners which hang in Stewart Field House. To make things a bit spicier this year, Gamma held the Annual King Spice Dance at the Marland Mansion in Ponca City, Oklahoma. Other projects included an Alumni Homecoming reception for former SC Home Economics graduates and a senior farewell.

Alpha Sigma Chi Shares

Alpha Sigma Chi has been established on the Southwestern College campus to provide college women with friendship and a close sisterhood striving to gain qualities of Christian life. The society gives women the background needed to become effective workers and leaders throughout their church lives. Due to small numbers the group has mainly enjoyed meeting together and sharing among themselves as well as with their sponsor, Karen Blake.

1st row: Naomi Synstegard, Jan Rethorst, Jolene English, and Karen Blake, sponsor. 2nd row: Margaret Nutter, Marylee Ramsay and Pam Fillmore.

Social Work Club New To SC

The first Social Work Club in the history of Southwestern was formed in the fall of 1984. The Club was designed with several purposes in mind including learning together, having fun together and understanding both our own value system and the value systems of society. The Club intends to provide a unit where all persons concerned with social welfare issues can come together and share their thoughts and ideas. Projects the club has been involved with include working to get HELP-Line started in the Winfield community and showing movies that address controversial social issues with discussion sessions afterwards.

PDK Means Fun

Pi Delta Kappa, a literary organization had another crazy year, maintaining their tradition of disgust and degradation. The chief activities sponsored by the group are partying, and partaking in festivities. These include food munching, drinking punch and conversing on matters of social significance. The prime service the group provides is to keep Kathy put-down and in her place. Founded in 1978, the club has grown to an indeterminate number of fairly active members who hone their skills of verbal incision.

Zeta Omicron Omicron

Zeta Omicron Omicron, an organization new to Southwestern campus, began the year with their primary goal being to produce an outstanding yearbook for the Centennial year as well as having it finished on time. The editing staff consisted of Kathy Hickman, four student editors and over twenty other students. This young staff pursued their goal and for the second time in recent years, the yearbook met deadlines and was finished on time. Lots of extra hours of hard work and lots of hours of fun and camaraderie result in a yearbook in which we all take pride.

CARE Reaches Students

CARE, standing for Caring and Reaching Effort, one, consists of students that receive training in listening skills. They in turn are assigned to work with students who are experiencing difficulties dealing with college life. The CARE student contacts the troubled individual about dealing with the problem, staying in touch until the problem is resolved. CARE is supervised by Chaplain John Paulin. Other members in the group are: Jolene English, Calvin Andrews, Gayla Rapp and David Anderson, coordinator.

Cowley County Chaplaincy Program

As an upper division course, CCCP allows students going into the helping professions such as Pastoral Ministries, Social work, Etc., to begin to learn the mechanics of crisis. They are assigned a weekly schedule with a local pastor in the Winfield community. They also respond to any emergency which is called by William Newton Memorial Hospital, the Winfield Police Department, the Sheriff's Department, the Fire Department or EMS. Three students have been involved with this program. They are: David Anderson, Marguerita Shaw and Steve Brockway. John Paulin is their supervisor.

Students for Peach with Justice is a new organization that has enabled students to become active participants working for a better world. Activities this year included a float in the Homecoming parade, a group trip to Kansas City to participate in a Peach March at the Presidential debates and assisting with campus voter registration. The SC group joined other Kansas schools to form a network and invited Nancy Landon Kassebaum as a speaker. SPJ and SGA cosponsored Nuclear Awareness Week.

FCA: Good Sports

The fellowship of Christian Athletes on SC's campus is an active group. Designed to support athletes and people interested in athletics, FCA follows Christ, participating in His church and serving Him through their players and activities. Some of the functions this year included a Christmas party, The FCA Banana Split, Christmas in May and several speakers.

The year SC celebrated her Centennial, the Campus Players celebrated their 65th anniversary. They were active in a variety of ways from adding a new rock at Moundbuilding to commemorate the annual Shakespeare On The Walnut: A Renaissance festival to presenting the new standard of the college on Founder's Day. As always they were involved in the planning of this year's Renaissance Festival. Officers include president, Don Allgood, and assistants, Dereck Hood and Anne Tuchscherer. Members include Shaun Hollis, Robert Hood, Blaine Kingsbury, Les Cowger, Lisa Ellis, Nancy Edmunds, Shanna Nigpel, Betsy Harden, Dan Shadoin, Don Himpel, Terri McCorkle, Kent Morey, Monte Seaborn and newly initiated members Jennifer Quillen, Kermit Colvin, Marylee Ramsay and Kevin Layton. Jan Term Offers Adventure

At Southwestern College, the month of January is spent differently than at many of our state universities in Kansas. We return to school earlier so we can participate in the January Term. This program is an opportunity for students to take a class in an area outside their major. Many creative classes are offered each year. Among these classes are several trips, to far and interesting places, that we can choose from. Southwestern feels that this is a nice break from the driving pace of the first and second semesters. The students are able to sit back, relax and enjoy something new.

Dorm Life

The resident staff is comprised of Resident Directors and Resident Assistants who are employed by the school to assist the full-time staff in regulating dormitory life. The Dorm Councils consist of the Resident Directors and Resident Assistants as well as students elected by the hall as a whole. The Councils organize functions throughout the year as well as assisting in dorm rules and regulations.

Their participation in the clean-up day activities, the painting of the Mossman staircase, and the organization of the Red Cross's Blood Mobile are just a few of their activities. Tri Beta gives biology majors an opportunity to enjoy science related activities that otherwise would be unavailable.

PBL Continues Winning!

Southwestern College students continued their winning tradition at the state annual PBL conference. The conference was held in Wichita, February thirteenth through the fifteenth. It was an opportunity for members to participate in political activities, as well as other competitive business oriented events. With the support of Southwestern's PBL members, Tom Fell was elected state Vice-President in region I for next year. Five seniors from Southwestern placed in Who's Who in Kansas Phi Beta Lambda for their accomplishment over the past few years. These students were: Mike Dunbar, Teresa Cink, Melinda Hickman, Brad Long, and Art Neely, Southwestern's parliamentary procedure team placed third over-all. These students took twenty-one of sixty-three individual awards, one of six team awards and one of six chapter awards.

WFA Is International

World Friendship Association was organized to serve the needs of International Students, to promote mutual understanding between foreign and American students and to provide opportunities for social and cultural activities. Enrollment of foreign students has been low this year but despite this they have stayed active. They attended the annual Asian Festival in Wichita featuring Asian foods, crafts and dance. Several members have shared their culture and customs with churches, classes and Girl Scout Troops.

Pi Gamma Mu: Traditional

The Pi Gamma Mu fall initiation was enacted using a revised "Universal" ceremony developed by Cheryl Bozich from earlier ceremonies. President Bruce Blake spoke on the concept of reaction vs. response, saying that response was a thoughtful and beneficial process while reaction was often counter productive. Other events of the year included Dr. Paula Smith's lecture on the "59 cent problem" and a program by Ed Salms about American aid to Zaire, Africa. Representatives from Southwestern Pi Gamma Mu also attended the National PGM meeting in Nebraska.

We Are The Champions

This year's debate squad led by the national champion team of Steve Wick and Terri McCorkle had an over-all winning season. Their coach, Gary Horn, was elected National President of Pi Kappa Delta this year. Terri McCorkle and Steve Wick took first in the senior division while John Morris and Danne Webb took third in the junior division at the Pi Kappa Delta national tournament. In the process of winning Southwestern beat teams from some of the most prestigious schools in the country. Southwestern College is one of the founders of the Pi Kappa Delta debate fraternity.

Collegian Staff Times Two

The Collegian started out the year with a new staff and a new look. Publishing every three weeks, the paper focused on covering each campus department and organization equally. The staff was led by editors: Margy Dillon, Carol Patrick and Leann Starkey; Annette Bower, copy editor and John Willoughby, advisor. The success of the first semester Collegian can be credited to a loyal staff of regular writers and the different individual student groups who contributed. Second semester, the Collegian again changed editors but maintained the consistent quality produced by the first semester editors. The editors were Michelle McCorkle, Mindy Gorchall and Kevin Layton. The paper was published every two weeks second semester and the success of the Collegian was due to the regular contributions of faculty and student writers.

The Moundbuilder is the yearbook for Southwestern College. Despite having an inexperienced staff, the book met deadlines for the second straight year and with less than last minute panic. The theme for the book was "History Casts Its Shadow" because it was the college's centennial year. Emphasis was placed on the celebration of traditions and the recollecting of past victories and tragedies of the school.

Choir Sparks Enthusiasm

The A Cappella Choir, under the direction of James Schuppener, had two very busy semesters. They started the Fall semester off by singing at the Sunday Worship service at the Kansas State Fair. Other Fall events included Southwestern Day at Grace United Methodist Church and concerts at other area churches. The choir tour, April 17-21 included Pratt, Spearville, Ulysses and Hugoton High Schools and United Methodist Churches at Dodge City, Johnson, Kansas and Woodward, and Hunter, Oklahoma. Performances on campus included Chapel, Honorary Doctorate and Founder's Day Convocations, Christmas Concert and "Elijah." Graduation week appearances were baccalaureate, graduation and a special performance of Haydn's "Creation" with the College/Community Chorus and orchestra and the Alumni Reunion Choir. Choir officers were: Deanne Dowell, President; Jeff Unruh, Vice President; Connie Sears, Secretary, Bethel Killblane, Librarian and Monica Wise, Student Director.

Community Participation

The Community Choru had its beginning in the Fall of 1984 under the direction of James Schup-pener. It was open to everyone in the College and Winfield community without audition. They started meeting in September with 80 members, their goal was Handel's "Messiah", which was performed on campus, in December. Twenty-five members from the College/Community Or-chestra assisted. Second semester the Choir was joined with Alumni and the A Cappella Choir in singing the "Creation" by Handel. This was in celebration of Southwestern's centennial year.

The Winfield Community Chorus was caught working hard for their upcoming performance of "Creation."

Singers Create Beat

Southwestern College Singers perform both on campus and off. All members of Singers first must be members of A Cappella Choir. The Singers perform both singing and dancing rou-tines. The fall semester in concerned mainly with seasonal music while in the Spring time is devot-ed to choreography and Choir tour.

Community Orchestra

An exciting Fall Orchestra concert was presented at the First United Methodist Church, with a program of Gershwin and Bach. The spring concert included music from Mozart, Bach, Bizet and Pergolesi. Many members were involved in assisting the choirs in the presentation of "The Messiah", "Elijah" and "The Creation."

Band Grows

Even though the band was small this year, Larry Archambo, the new director, feels the band has potential for the future. There are plans in the near future for a marching band. The group played at many football and basketball games. They also played at both Convocations. A spring concert was the final performance of the year.

The Lady Builders of the past and present provide quality athletic competition for SC and take their place in history.

Athletics

Athletics

Athletics played an important role in the lives of many students at Southwestern College. Many of our various athletic teams, men's and women's, set school conference and individual records this past year. Whether on field, court, track, course or off, the students in athletics at SC were guided by some of the better coaches in the area. Southwestern held fast to many titles and claimed a few more, but stressed the cooperation involved and essential for successful competition. Southwestern athletes compete with a sense of unity and achievement as part of a team as well as competing as individuals. The athletic program at SC has a history of winning teams and successful programs—producing athletes as champions and as students with an exceptional liberal arts background.

The athletes of the past, present and future have, and will, by the trophies they win, by the extra miles they go, by the extra points they score . . . cast their shadow; becoming part of the history of Southwestern College.

X-Country Nationally Recognized

With possibly the best overall team in Southwestern history, Coach Jim Helmer's harriers worked their way into the National rankings and then eighth place in the NAIA National Cross Country Championships. The team effort was led by senior Mike Schmidt's sixth place finish and junior Brian Lenz's 27th place finish at Nationals. Southwestern defended their KCAC title in impressive fashion finishing first, second, third, fourth, sixth and eighth defeating runner-up Bethany by 29 points. The District 10 meet came down to SC versus Pittsburg State to see who would represent the District at the National meet since only one team from the district could qualify. The tie was broken when Builder Mark Ruggles edged out PSU's sixth man to vault SC into the national meet. The SC men managed post season awards among them were Schmidt's naming as an All-American and Dennis Smithhisler as an Academic All-American for the second time. These two along with Stuart Walling and Brian Lenz brought home All-District 10 status and the additional performances of Mike Howe and John Nichols gave the Builders a total of six All-KCAC performers.

The Southwestern women couldn't field a full team for most of their meets, but that was about the only thing they couldn't do. With consistent close finishes at the front of the pack, Denise Robbins, Gena Thomas, and Kathy Boone all gathered in post-season honors. A powerful second, third and fifth place finish by Kathy, Gena and Denise respectively at the KCAC Championships earned each of them All Conference honors. All three earned a trip to the National Cross Country meet and All District honors as each finished in the top five of District 10.

Builders Construct Landmark Season For Centennial

To say the Builders had another good football season would be the understatement of the year. Although the Southwestern Football team did not obtain its third straight Conference Championship this year, new heights were reached. The Builders had to settle for the number two position behind Bethel, the Threshers, after a 26-21 loss. A regular season ending 73-0 victory over McPherson College boosted Southwestern to an 8th place national ranking, thus qualifying the Builders for the National Championship playoffs. Southwestern gained sweet revenge over Bethel in a 17-14 quarter-final overtime victory clinching Southwestern's first ever post season play-off game. Having gained a semi-final berth with the Bethel win, the Builders journeyed to Orange City, Iowa to meet the Northwestern

Iowa Red Raiders. Inconsistent play hindered the Builders and ruined all chances for the title with the 45-23 loss to the Red Raiders. In his second year at the helm of Moundbuilder football, Coach Charlie Cowdrey posted an 8-1 KCAC record (9-3 for the season) and also celebrated his 100th football victory. SC finished number three in the NAIA final rankings. SC once again boasted many overachievers. Seven team members were voted into the All Conference 1st team, 2 to the second team and 7 were chosen for honorable mention. Senior running back Jackie Jackson and senior tackle Monty Lewis once again gained All-American recognition for their splendid play. Another great year Builders!

Women Spikers Improve

The highlight of the year for the Lady Mound-builder Volleyball team was the second half of the KCAC season where the team won four of their five home games. Tracy Juden was chosen for the All-Conference team. Having started in 82 of the 83 games, her performance contributed immensely to the overall record of the team. Joining Tracy was Denise Freuchting who was named Honorable Mention All-Conference. Head coach Becky Schroll, was pleased with the improvement of her team. Though they got off to a slow start, the team came on strong the second half of the season. The Lady Builders were shooting for the top four and finished sixth in the KCAC.

Men's BB Takes KCAC

The 1984-85 Southwestern Men's Basketball season was an unexpectedly successful one. Despite losing six seniors and three starters, the Builders posted a 20-5 record and earned a bid to the NAIA District Tournament against Emporia State University. Although they lost, there was much to be proud of. Throughout the season, the Builders showed their ability to come back, to win tight games, to hold leads and to never let up.

SC Women's Hoop: Best Year Ever

Southwestern's Women's Basketball had an incredibly good 1984-85 season, getting their 29 school records (including winning sixteen games) and getting their first bid to the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics (NAIA) tournament. At the start of the season no one, except perhaps Coach Gerald Raines and his players, thought the team had the size, strength or depth to do very well. As the season aged, the critics were forced to eat their words as the women won close, tough battles with flare, finesse, and style. Determination, agility and speed enabled the team to set records for steals and assists. Denise Fruechting is the only graduate from the team. The Lady Builders can look forward to hooping the opponents next year with confidence.

Southwestern Men's Golf Win Conference

SC golfers can be proud of themselves this year. They won the conference with Tim Young placing third, Chris Liermann placing fourth and Jeff Stotts placing fifth. At the NAIA Championship, SC placed fifth as a team. Chris Liermann was the individual medalist and won the chance to go to the National competition in Phoenix, Arizona.

S.C. Men's Tennis

We are certainly proud of our men's tennis this year. The Builder men, with the devoted coaching of George Gangwere and Cecil Findley, were the victors of two tournaments. As stated by George Gangwere, "We are at the top this year." The six leading players are: 1. Darren Boyd 2. Randy Smith 3. Loren Rapp 4. Russell Weihe 5. Rick Mack 6. Steve Thomas. Of these six players, we are losing three of the top four to graduation. Cecil Findley will be coaching next year's team. He believes his incoming freshmen will come close to filling the shoes of their predecessors. Overall the tennis team placed second in the KCAC Championship. We expect to take first place next year.

KCAC Champs Third Time

The 1985 Southwestern Men's Track team took the KCAC title for the third year in a row. They won by 81 points over the runner-up, taking eleven events and having nine athletes named as All-KCAC. The Women finished 2nd in the KCAC with the highest finish ever, winning four events in the Championship meet with seven All-KCAC athletes. In the NAIA District 10 championships, both men and women finished 2nd in team standings. During the Indoor Track season, the women established six new school records and the men set nine new school records. At the NAIA National Championships, Bryan Thompson took 4th in the shot put and Mark Ruggles placed 6th in the marathon. Both were named all Americans bringing the total All-American performances for Southwestern in the last four years to twenty-seven. In the outdoor season the men set eleven new school records and the women set seventeen new school records. Coach Jim Helmer has reason to be proud of his teams!

Cheerleaders: Rally Spirit!

The 1984-85 Football and Basketball cheerleaders verbally manifested their school spirit by encouraging crowd support. Their enthusiasm and leadership came across, not only on the football field, but on the basketball court as well. Their dedication and hard work was expressed through their pep rallies, banners, and long hours of practice. These two groups that represented SC gave us spirit, enthusiasm, and pride.

Trainers Vital To Athletes

The athletic trainers play a vital part behind the sports scenes. They provide support to the players through their work of taping, treating, and rehabilitating injuries. Many of their various other jobs include, keeping equipment in good repair, and keeping stats and records. Although their hard work and effort is seldom publically recognized, it is nonetheless appreciated by the athletes and coaches. Special thanks goes to Mike Kirkland, Carmela Williams, and Kathy Boone for their dedication in both inter-collegiate and intramural sports.

Repairperson, Mike Kirkland, was in charge of the trainers.

Ricky Tellis benefits from the soft handed expertise of trainer Carmela Williams. Bite the bullet, Ricky!

Freshman Kathy Boone is a trainer, in addition to being a member of Cross Country and Track.

Intramurals Explode

The Intramural program enjoyed one of its most successful years in recent history. The program featured not only increased participation in the sports held in the past but also the addition of some new activities. Gerald Raines, faculty director, and Ron Hunt, student director, provided excellent leadership and organization for this year's competitions.

People

People

Beginning with a class of three students, meeting in the second story over Baden's General Store, Southwestern College has expanded its enrollment to include many students of various cultural and ethnic backgrounds, representing diverse faiths and nationalities.

Southwestern College has seen some of its students achieve positions of prominence in society, and history-helped to understand the world from a different perspective by our exceptional faculty.

This college has grown, and been guided, by past and present administrations which valued, and continue to value, the liberal arts education and realize the contribution Southwestern College can, and has, made to history.

As students, we enter Southwestern with many ideas, and leave with many more—some changed, some revised, others new and original. Our thoughts, our ideas and our beliefs were challenged by our peers, our professors and other people we came in contact with during our years at SC. Classwork was not the only thing in our lives at SC, however, the football championship, debate championship and other superior achievements, by students and faculty alike, marked this year as a year of renewed interest in our school and a renewed desire to achieve.

As students, faculty, administrators and staff—we each, in our own way, have cast our shadow; each becoming a part of the history of Southwestern College.

Centennial Scholars

"As many as one hundred students will receive tuition free education at Southwestern College in Winfield, Kansas, next year," proclaimed an October 1980 press release. "... made possible through a unique scholarship program known as the 'Centennial Scholars,' which kicks off the college's approaching centennial." Qualified students were sought to enroll at Southwestern as freshmen in the fall of 1981 to be part of the 1985 Centennial Class. Most of the Scholars were from Kansas, but other states were also represented. Eighty-eight different students were Centennial Scholars for part or all of the 1981-1985 period when the special scholarships were available. Thirty-five of these students held the scholarships for all four years, most receiving a total of $12,750 in assistance. Dale Jones, Susan Mueller and Brad Long maintained perfect 4.0 grade point averages for the four years. During the fall term of 1984, the fifty-eight students holding Centennial Scholarships had a combined grade point average of 3.667. Most of these fifty-eight students graduated in May 1985 as part of one of the largest graduating classes at Southwestern since 1971. The Centennial Scholars program, according to Forrest Robinson, then interim president of SC, was "an unprecedented program ... (established) to provide exceptional recognition of scholarship and to emphasize Southwestern's continuing commitment to academic excellence."

Who's Who

Each year, a group of students are chosen for Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges. These individuals are chosen by a committee of faculty and students. They are chosen for: scholarship, service to Southwestern College, citizenship and service to the world and for potential for leadership.

Honors, Honors, Honors

The Honors Convocation for the class of 1985 was held in Richardson Auditorium on April 22 at 10:00 a.m. Activities included recognition of special honors and an address by Dr. Bruce Blake. Valedictorians were Dale Jones, Brad Long and Susan Mueller, who all achieved a perfect 4.0 grade point average in four years at Southwestern. The masterbuilders nominated and chosen by the entire student body were: Calvin Andrews, Lisa Boling, Teresa Cink, Michael Dunbar, Brad Long and Joey Vacca. Congratulations seniors!

Centennial Graduation

Ninety degree heat, sunshine, speaker Coretta Scott King cancelling at the last minute, joy, tears and laughter all go into making the 1985 graduation convocation. President Bruce Blake filled in as speaker and the diplomas made their way into each senior's hand. In turn they each gave Dr. Blake a golf ball as a gift. The band played, Centennial balloons were set adrift, the Alma Mater was sung, congratulations were extended and punch and cookies were consumed. Another class is out in the world!

Hello, Goodbye

History.

Every minute that goes by is part of it. Every page of this book is part of it. We are part of it, our lives and even our futures will some day be history.

This is a commemorative book, it marks the centennial anniversary of Southwestern College—but, it also marks the progress of knowledge and our world. A journey most of us have only just started.

One hundred years ago, the world was a much different place to live in, to be sure, and mankind, as a whole, has made startling and monumental breakthroughs to ease the pains of daily living and make our lifetimes more productive.

We embark, from this page forward, into our lives and our second century with hope. Hope for a better world, hope for more progress, hope for peace. Still, we can do more than simply hope. We can become whatever we have the potential and dreams for becoming—and we must work towards that goal.

Many of us were not around to change the past, but we can and should shape the future.

We each have the responsibility to build a better world for the generations to come. Let's hope that one hundred years from now, there will be a society, and that society will be more advanced and more peaceful than ours today.

Perhaps they will lookback from their secure vantage point in time, with 20/20 hindsight, and thank us for what we have yet to achieve.

Let's hope.

Closing

Southwestern College has changed a great deal since 1887.

South West Kansas Conference College

1885

In The Beginning

In 1884, at the Second Session of the South West Kansas Conference of the Methodist Church, a resolution was submitted to found a second institution of higher education. Winfield was selected as the site for the South West Kansas Conference College with their bid of 40 acres of land, $60,000, stone for buildings, free water for laborers and hardware and lumber at cost from local merchants. The new college began accepting students in the fall of 1886 meeting in the second story over Baden's General Store. North Hall, the first college building, was completed in 1887 at a cost of $34,199.16

The early years of the college were financed by tuition and Conference contributions. In 1888, President John E. Earp announced at Conference that the college was free of debt. When the Ladies Boarding Hall was built in 1888, $100 in advance paid for board and tuition for a whole year.

PRESIDENT'S HOME

In 1892, the college began to experience financial problems when the Trustees were forced to mortgage the school property to run the school. The panic of 1893 almost destroyed the struggling school. In 1894, the college grounds were purchased by W.C. Robinson of Winfield for $2.00 as an extreme measure to keep the school from closing. Mr. Robinson had been buying college notes totalling more than $18,000 to satisfy creditors. At times during this period, furniture was repossessed by creditors and Mr. Robinson would buy it back and return it to the school. By 1897, the college was deeded back to the Trustees.

The unwieldy name of South West Kansas Conference College was changed to Southwestern College in 1908. Richardson Hall, the Administrative Building, was erected in 1909 and named after James Richardson of McPherson who contributed half the building cost. The dome atop the building on the hill could be seen for miles around and was a landmark for over forty years. The famous seventy-seven steps leading to the building have made it an impressive sight.

World War I made a big impact on Southwestern College. The 1919 Victory Moundbuilder is full of pictures and stories of students in military uniforms and the effect of the Great War.

In 1922, William M. Goldsmith, Biology Professor at Southwestern, published a biology textbook, "Laws of Life." Using this textbook in his classes, evolution was discussed in his classes which upset some church people from Grace Methodist, who thought evolution and Christianity were incompatible. The controversy went as far as the Annual Conference where President Kirk defended the college receiving a standing ovation and a resounding vote of confidence for the school. Professor Goldsmith was later called as an expert witness in the infamous Scopes Monkey Trial in Tennessee.

A dormitory for women, Smith Hall, was erected in 1920. The contract to build Stewart Field House was made in 1923 at a cost of $132,490.

The Depression years were difficult for Southwestern as they were for the rest of the nation. At least one year, the Moundbuilder was not published as its funds were used to help run the college.

The outbreak of World War II brought many changes again to campus. The war effort took its toll on students, faculty and staff. The number of women enrolled during these years greatly outnumbered the men.

In 1949, Old North Hall was condemned by the State Fire Marshall and was demolished in 1950. On April 16, 1950, fire also destroyed Richardson Hall. The double loss caused the Conference to consider closing the school, but after much debate, it had decided to initiate a Million Dollar Building Program. The school was very much alive, and would now start an unprecedented growth of the campus facilities. Richardson Hall was rebuilt as Christy Administration Building, and was completed in 1956.

Sonner Stadium and the Monypeny Track had been completed in 1947. In 1952, Mossman Hall of Science, named for Frank A. Mossman, was constructed with an addition built in 1978. The Memorial Library, given in memory of the Cowley County men who gave their lives in World War II, was also completed in 1952 with the Frank A. White Addition finished in 1968. 1955 saw the completion of six new dormitories: Reid, Sutton, Wallingford, Broadhurst, Honor Dorm and Shriwise. The same year, the President's home was also erected. By 1960, the Roy L. Smith Student Center became a reality. The Durbeth Fine Arts Building was built in 1965, while 1968 brought the Frank A. White Physical Education Building into the picture. The Ruth Warren Abbott Laboratories were constructed in the years between 1971 and 1975. The newest addition to campus was the Melvin Dixon Service Facility constructed in 1977 for the use of the Maintenance department.

Lower: Some things never change: TV and board games in Broadhurst's lobby.

In 1969, the popular January Term came to campus to enable students to spend January doing a variety of different courses, some of which involved travel or crafts. The formation of the Cooperating Winfield Colleges in 1972 offered additional opportunities for students of both Southwestern and St. John's Colleges. Cross registration for Jan Term is especially encouraged.

Southwestern began the celebration of its centennial in 1981 with the announcement of the Centennial Scholar Program. This program brought the cream of the High School crop to SC campus for four years of tuition free education. The class of 1985 will be one of the largest in recent years.

1985 will be a year long celebration of SC's 100th birthday. It was kicked off with the Founders Day celebration in March. Guest lecturers, speakers and friends of the college gathered together to celebrate. The grand Convocation held on Friday, March 8, drew an overflow crowd to Richardson Auditorium. An especially struck medallion was presented to each student, faculty member and staff person by the members of the Board of Trustees. President Bruce Blake's announcement of an unprecedented tuition reduction for the fall of 1985, was reported by all area media. The huge birthday cake in the foyer of Christy was served after the balloon launch held on the 77 steps sent purple balloons across the sky. The coming months will bring more centennial events to campus.

Center: Men's dormitory, Broadhurst Hall, was named for William Broadhurst.

The atmosphere of the college in 1985 is one of excitement for our second hundred years. New beginnings such as the remodeling of Christy, new policies towards admissions being implemented and a renewed vigor toward academic excellence being instilled in students and faculty alike indicate our new direction. Dr. Bruce Blake summed it up when he suggested that we are now looking at an institution that will last forever.

The 700 copies of the Southwestern College 1985 edition of its yearbook, The Moundbuilder, containing 160 pages, were published by a staff of 24 and printed by Herff Jones Yearbooks, Montgomery, Alabama. Cover and contents were school designed and assembled by Herff Jones.

In commemoration of the school's 100th anniversary, a closing signature was included on Ivory text. The staff is grateful for the support of the Centennial Committee in helping to provide funds for this project.
