From taking action on student concerns to holding court for student misconduct, Southwestern's Student Government Association was kept busy trying to please the demands of the students and faculty on campus.

In order to solve different problems on campus, SGA split into different committees as a way to effectively serve the entire campus. The committees discussed problems and came up with solutions to issues such as the need for more washing machines, newspaper dispensers, ice machines, the lack of parking spaces, and much more. Having breakfast with President Merriman to discuss student needs on campus demonstrated the group's dedication to making changes and devising creative solutions. However, student concerns were not the only topics SGA dealt with. For example, students who had broken the rules were allowed to plead their cases to SGA. Supreme Court justices, who had been trained early in the year, held court for these students and allowed them to defend themselves.

From taking care of student and faculty needs to giving fair punishments for "crimes" committed, SGA kept busy trying to make SC a better place for students and faculty alike.

The Student Activities Association (SAA) has maintained its time-honored tradition of never letting the students get bored by providing entertaining study breaks. The organization was composed of students from all groups on campus, thus allowing input from every area. Kasie Johnson said, "It was great working with other students to plan fun activities for the whole school."

SAA sponsored many activities throughout the year which included Hockey night, Midnight Breakfast, a carnival, and bi-weekly movies. Along with these activities, SAA also co-sponsored many events with other organizations on campus such as dances, a scavenger hunt, and casino night. Besides giving students other alternatives to homework, these activities helped groups complete their requirements for the Purple Heart Award. Marc Parrish, Vice President, boldly commented "This has been the best year of SAA because of Joel Smith and I."

Usually given out once a year, the 1998-1999 Purple Heart Award was awarded each semester to organizations who successfully completed the assigned tasks. Organizations that met the requirements performed leadership building tasks such as planning an all campus event and participating in a community service project. Along with the recognition, the organization also received $100.

With four editors and fourteen new staff members, the publications room was filled with both work and laughter. In addition to the increased number of members, the organization relocated from the Cooperative Learning Center to the basement of Christy. "It is a small area for us to work in, but that gives everyone more of a reason to bathe before they come to yearbook," stated Kathy Wilgers, Moundbuilder adviser.

The editors made things a little different for the staff by implementing two office hours outside of the regular class time. This way everyone had a chance to learn all the aspects of putting together the Moundbuilder. The editors expected everyone to work on their writing style, content, and improve as the year progressed.

Along with all the demanding deadlines there was still time for play. The air was saturated with colorful stories and laughter. Passers-by would think that there was a comedy club in progress instead of a yearbook staff meeting. The jovial spirit broke the ice for many new members. "The best part of yearbook was showing the new staff members that they too can crop with the best of them," commented sports editor Sarah Ferguson.

"The best thing about yearbook was watching Amy Govert dance on the table in the office -- no wait -- that didn't happen! I guess we just had too much fun."

Collegian Staff

The Collegian, voice of the student community, has been on the SC campus since 1896. The Collegian has been an active media source for the campus by recognizing student concerns, upcoming events, sports events, reminders, profiles of students and faculty, controversial editorials, along with many other interesting stories. Every two weeks students impatiently awaited the movie reviews from John Richmeier, a new addition to the paper.

With new and returning members, the Collegian staff worked on ways to improve their writing skills and layout of the paper. The editors took time to help everyone improve grammar and proofreading skills. With the departure of Editor Lonna Summers to Venezuela, Collegian advisor Kathy Wilgers appointed John Richmeier as an editor to assist Jeana Clark. When asked for some words of advice for future staff members Kathy Wilgers stated, "Edit your story and take some of that crap out."

Education Builders

This year the Education Builders joined the Kansas Student National Education Association (KSNEA). Along with a membership, the members received information on upcoming education conventions. Members receive a discount from the National Education Association when they become teachers.

The Education Builders participated in activities such as the Homecoming parade to achieve the Purple Heart Award. Also for the Purple Heart, members volunteered at Irving Elementary School as part of a reading program called Success for All. President Jennifer Benevento stated, "I've enjoyed being involved with the Education Builders. We have had a very exciting year. Our goal was to get out into the Winfield Elementary schools and I'm proud to say that we accomplished our goal."

The Math Club for the 1998-1999 year saw numerous alterations. A change of venue initiated a start for the group. The Math Club moved from the basement of the Christy Administration building to rooms in the Mossman Science Hall. When asked if the change was a success, Thyrza Mucambe, Math Club President, said "The new rooms are a definite improvement. In the past, we had to share our classroom with many other departments. Now, though, it's kind of lonely being away from the rest of the campus." This year, Math Club has a whopping number of ten members. This is a major improvement for the organization.

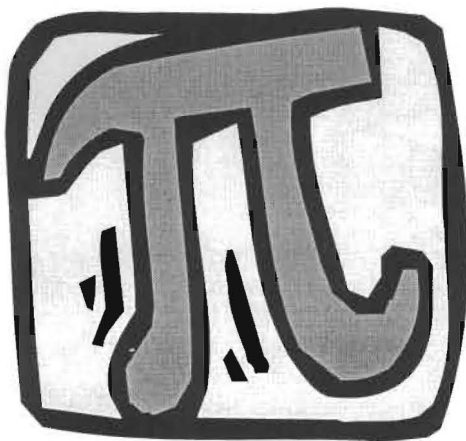

The purpose of Math Club is to provide tutoring for students who need help with various mathematics. Mossman Hall even has a room just for these tutoring purposes. When asked about this new room, tutor Tori Helmer replied, "The new, separate room made tutoring more accessible to students. Having the tutor hours posted made a difference too. Students felt that they could get help if needed." When all is said and done, the Math Club truly comes to the rescue.

Society of Physics Students

The Society of Physics Students is an organization that, according to President Steven Graham, strived "to promote a better understanding and familiarity with the field of physics." Over the past year, its members participated in activities to achieve this goal. These activities included judging a high school science fair and operating Physics Day. For Physics Day, they organized workshops in optics, electricity, magnetism, video capture, and vision for approximately sixty local high school students. The groups projects have the students an opportunity to improve their knowledge of physics and apply it to real life situations.

Tri-Beta, the co-ed Honors Biological Organization, wanted to "show students that they can have a good time along with all of the hard work," commented sponsor Pat Ross. The organization proved that by being involved in multiple activities throughout the year. The biggest accomplishment was getting the Pepsi company to co-sponsor the recycling program on campus. Pepsi helped by donating all of the containers needed to collect the recyclables. This recycling effort went along well with the Earth Day activities sponsored by Tri-Beta. The organization also held a Kid's Day at the Beech Science Center and Maybee Laboratory to teach local school children about animals they may not have a chance to see up close.

Tri-Beta's membership increased as they initiated 10 new members along with several new associate members. The whole organization was involved in an educational trip to Quivira National Wildlife Refuge and the North Central District 2 Convention in Louisiana, Missouri. Heather Black said, "I enjoyed the meetings, because they got me thinking about my future."

"Pi Gamma Mu was founded in 1924 by Dean Leroy Allen from Southwestern College in Kansas and dean William A. Hamilton of the College of William and Mary in Virginia. Seventeen founding chapters were organized simultaneously.

The International headquarters of the Society is in Winfield, Kansas in the Carnegie Building, which is listed on the National Register of Historic Building."

Money Talks

Business Students Association

"Business Students Association helped me get experience in my field of study," responded David Muttiah. BSA provided students with an opportunity to make the Southwestern College campus become more aware of the business department. Traditionally, BSA has raised money for the Make-A-Wish Foundation. Throughout the year, BSA participated in the various activities required to receive the Purple Heart Award. Secretary Angie Busch remarked, "Even though we weren't participating as much this year as in the past, we still tried to stay involved with the school. We wanted to show that we weren't all about money. We weren't as productive as we would have liked. We have high expectations for next year."

Keep Talking

Debate Team

With a few new faces added to the Southwestern Debate team, they accomplished their goals for the year. New coach Tracy Frederick said, "They improved every time, and I am very proud of them." The debate team consisted of nine members which was an improvement compared to last year's team of four.

Parliamentary style debate was used this year for the first time instead of the traditional style of debate. This style includes debaters coming into a room in teams and reading a philosophical quotation. This quotation is then used to start the debate with no evidence from prior research. Essentially, it is the government against the opposition. There is no formal cross examination in this debate, similar to Parliament in England.

With this style, SC debaters won many tournaments. Chris Hibbert and James Rosenthal won third place for team debate. Chris Hibbert also won first place for an impromptu speech. Nadia Van Dorn won third place in prose interpretation and sixth place for an impromptu speech. Rob Fry won third place for impromptu speaking and Lincoln-Douglas Debate. He also won sixth place for dramatic interpretation. Ryan Kane won first place for prose interpretation, second place for Lincoln-Douglas Debate, and third place for prose interpretation and impromptu speaking. Overall, SC Debate took third place for the season.

Psychology Club

Having just completed its fourth year, the Psychology Club was one of the younger organizations at Southwestern. Due to the fact that the club is fairly new, one of the main goals stated by sponsor Claudia Geer was to increase membership. Student participants included psychology majors, minors and those simply interested in the science. They heard lectures on related subjects, what it is like to practice psychology, and how to get into graduate school. For the first time ever, the Psychology Club created a float for this year's homecoming parade. Maggie LaVine, a club member, said, "There is a real positive attitude among those who come and I hope that we get stronger, because I think we could really make a difference in future years."

Southwestern College's radio station KSWC (100.3 FM in Winfield, KS) completed its thirty-first year of broadcasting. Commercial free and powered by ten-watts, KSWC operated on an alternative/college rock format. Despite the format, the music aired on the station varied with the individual disc jockeys and the requests of the station's listeners. Each DJ completed a three-hour shift per week, and were required to play fifteen songs off the Top 30 Playlist. Office personnel and management staff of KSWC included: Dr. William DeArmond (General Manager), Pat Johnson (Station Manager), Jason Tattershall (Assistant Station Manager), Steve Lawson, Jr. (Program Manager), Amy Govert (Assistant Program Manager), Jason Teubner (Program Director), and Scott Miller (Assistant Program Director).

Thirteen years ago SCTV began broadcasting from the Winfield High School. Today, students operate out of their own television lab located in the basement of Christy. This Week at Southwestern College featured bi-weekly highlights of SC during a half hour program that required the efforts of twenty-two students. Anchors for SCTV included: Angie Gentry, Kasie Johnson, Maryam Sarhangi, Kim Okeson, Mandy Lampe, and Jennifer Davis on sports.

In addition to SCTV, SC Magazine was produced by a select group of Southwestern College students. The program was created with a news magazine format that profiled local events, bands, and points of interest in the Winfield area. Scott Miller, Kim Okeson, and Jason Teubner were responsible for the taping, production work, and airing of SC Magazine.

If you wondered why you didn't see the SHARE team members this year, it's because they were always making a difference around the country. At the beginning of the 1998-1999 school year, the SHARE team held a barbecue, participated in National Make A Difference Day, and helped with Hunger and Homelessness Week. For the community, SHARE painted a house, made Christmas cards, went caroling at a retirement home, and cleaned up the Chaplain Nature Center. SHARE also spent time off the SC campus doing good deeds such as traveling to the C.O.O.L. Conference in Salt Lake City, and to St. Louis to work with the Hispanic Ministries and Goodwill Industries. SHARE wrapped up the year hosting a Karaoke night at Le Chat Noir.

Sing, Sing, Sing

Vocal Department

The Vocal Department had a very interesting year with Dr. James Schuppener leaving on sabbatical for the spring semester. Southwestern Singers, a small ensemble selected from the members of A Cappella Choir, was conducted by Dr. Timothy Shook during the second semester. Dr. James Strand took over the direction of the Women's Chorus. Then, Dr. Shook and Dr. Strand shared the director's position for the A Cappella Choir. The choirs performed their traditional concerts in the fall and the spring. A Cappella Choir toured for a week in March throughout Northeast Kansas which included Hillsboro, Lyndon, Manhattan, Ottawa, and Lawrence. On tour, the choir was accompanied by Southwestern Singers as well. The A Cappella Choir also combined with the Cowley County Community College Choir and the Winfield Regional Symphony to bring John Rutter's Requiem to life in Stewart Fieldhouse. Even with changing directors at semester, the Vocal Department accomplished their goals for the year.

European Tour

Under the direction of Dr. James Schuppener, the 1997-1998 A Cappella Choir along with alumni, family, and friends of Southwestern made history by completing the first-ever international choir tour. For two weeks of May Module, the group toured various cities in Germany, Switzerland, and Austria. Choir members had the unique experience of spending two nights with a German family. During the trip, the choir sang at St. Stephen's Cathedral in Vienna, St. Margaret's in Munich, and several smaller churches. They also had the privilege of singing in the courtyard of the Heidelberg Castle. Another highlight of the tour was performing two songs in the Singer's Room at Neuschwanstein Castle where Wagner's operas were once performed for King Ludwig II of Bavaria. Members had the opportunity to visit many castles and fortresses such as the Bad Homburg Castle, the Heidelberg Castle, Hohenschwangau Castle, Neuschwanstein Castle, the Abbey at Melk, the fortress of Hohensalzburg, and the fortress at Schaffhausen. Sarah Ferguson commented, "The European tour was the trip of a lifetime. The best part of Europe was Neuschwanstein Castle, Salzburg, our Petterweil host families, Vienna, and the bigger mugs."

And The Band Played On

Band Department

1998-1999 Percussion Ensemble. Brock Brown, Bart O'Brien, Mandy Fritchey, Jason Ellison, Stephanie Streeter, and Amos Angkasa.

Keeping football and basketball audiences entertained, giving numerous concerts, and performing for other occasions were among the many events the Southwestern Pep Band, Jazz Band, Percussion Ensemble, and Concert Band engaged in this year. Practice and dedication were the two keys to the high performance levels of the different bands. Attending each concert, formal and informal, was something each member strived to do. Charles Yingling said of the band's practice and dedication, "This year's band is the largest band since I came to Southwestern. With 16 new freshmen, each individual member of the band showed an impressive amount of dedication; and by the end of the year the group had improved a lot. Overall, this year of band has been the best year ever!"

All in all, these talented students gave audiences an enjoyable listening experience using unique approaches to their music. For example, the percussion ensemble performed at one concert using a different assortment of bathroom and kitchen sinks in place of actual drums. Another different type of performance was given by the concert band when Karen Wilder proceeded to "kick" Mr. Yingling off the director's stage and "take over" his position. They also played an arrangement created by Southwestern student Travis Hastings.

With practice and imaginative approaches to each performance, the different bands of Southwestern College gave audiences many memorable concerts.

SHARP
Ambassadors

The SHARP Ambassadors got right to the point last year by increasing efforts to recruit students. The ambassadors were chosen by a submitted application and an interview process. Seven students participated in the Student Host and Recruitment Program that welcomed prospective students to campus. They introduced new students by giving them each a personal look at Southwestern through campus tours, luncheons, and sharing their own college experiences.

The ambassadors also hosted four Explore More Days. These days included the normal campus tour, and the opportunity to attend a sporting event. "Being an ambassador has been an awesome experience. I have learned a lot about the school, other people, and myself," said Seth Leeper, first year ambassador.

"Hail friend, how goes it with the eternal quest?" These words are inscribed on the Campus Players' rock. They come from the annual Christmas play Eagerheart, a Southwestern College tradition.

The Campus Players were organized in 1919, in order to honor outstanding accomplishments and dedication to sponsoring quality theatre at Southwestern. This year's plays included Philemon, She Stoops to Conquer, the 62nd production of Eagerheart, Sarcophagus, Durand and Other Voices as well as many student directed scenes.

Campus Players also continued the tradition of outstanding accomplishments, winning the Purple Heart award and supporting the production of Philemon. It was the first production in Southwestern's history to perform at the Kennedy Center American College Theatre Festival.

Black Student Union

The Black Student Union (BSU) was an organization for ethnic minority students at Southwestern College. It was founded in the late 1960's. Due to the many different cultures represented in the organization, the emphasis is multi-cultural. There were many different minority groups that made BSU what it is today.

The organization was a social outlet for students to share with others who had similar backgrounds and cultures. It allowed students to come together for fun, fellowship, and comfort during the long semesters. Throughout the year, the members met for a variety of functions.

They hosted the KCAC Multi-cultural Conference, a seminar that brought together ethnic minority students from various schools in the conference. Also members bonded as a group by attending church in Wichita once a month.

The International Club has been a part of Southwestern College for a number of years. Members of the club were involved in educating SC faculty, staff, and students about the importance of cross-cultural experiences in addition to language studies. The organization also introduced the foreign students attending SC to the Winfield community and the surrounding area. Beyond that, the International Club facilitated the preparation and re-entry of SC students who had previously studied abroad.

The International Club completed the 1998-1999 school year on a high note. On April 7, 1999 SC students were invited to participate in the International Cuisine and Cultural Soiree. Co-sponsored by SAA the event consisted of table displays depicting various nations, musical instruments from around the globe, musical performances, and games. Members of the organization had also prepared native dishes for all to sample.

Fellowship of Christian Athletes, better known as FCA, is an organization for students who are interested in participating in athletics with a Christian emphasis. The organization, however, is not limited to student athletes. Anyone interested in taking part in a fun Christian environment are encouraged to join.

The 1998-1999 year was especially busy for FCA members. Not only did they take part in weekly meetings, but they hosted several events on campus. The organization made brownies for the janitors of SC as a service project. They also initiated a campus-wide scavenger hunt during the fall semester. For Halloween, FCA and the Education Builders co-sponsored an evening of fun and games for community children at Irving Elementary School.

FCA Captain Maggie LaVine said, "Throughout the year, we had numerous speakers visit us. They offered many different messages valuable to our organization."

We Like To Party

Pi Delta Sigma

A red phone in the basement of Christy, a place of eternal rest; what do these clues have to do with Pi Delta Sigma? Well, they were just a few of the clues from the Scavenger Hunt that Pi Delta Sigma co-sponsored with SAA. Pi Delta Sigma and SAA also co-sponsored the annual Valentine's Day Dance. The Delts, as they are affectionately known, participated in the Activity Fair, Homecoming Weekend, Hunger and Homelessness Week, Valentine Visions, Banner Night, Builder Dash, and Spring Fling. As well as being active on campus, the Delts were active around the community. They participated in the Adopt-A-Highway Clean Up Program, the '98 Flood Relief efforts, Big Brothers/Big Sisters' Bowl 4 Kids Sake, Community Playday Parent Fair Spring Fling, and assisted in local elementary schools. With their involvement in both campus and community projects, the Delts earned the Purple Heart Award both semesters. After a very active year, the Delts took a well-deserved trip to South Padre Island, Texas, during spring break. The Delts' pledge session brought in seven new members, increasing their membership to twenty-one. Officers for the fall semester were Molly Schulte, President; Mike McWhirt, Vice President; Katie Doyle, Secretary; and Erica Gutierrez, Treasurer. Officers for the spring semester were Molly Schulte, President; Amy Schwartz, Vice President; Christina Vensor, Secretary; and Mary Black, Treasurer. The Pledge Masters for the 1998-1999 pledge session were Sarah Ferguson, head pledge master; Andrew Brenn; and Joshua Browne.

No Substitute Tutors

They are special people everyone needs at some point in time. These people are called tutors. Southwestern's tutors were housed in the Cooperative Learning Center in the upper level of the Sutton Center. The purpose of the tutors was to provide help to wayward students who desired guidance in the way of assignments. The tutors also sponsored a brainy challenge via e-mail where the prize was "brain food. This consisted of M & M's, Doritos, Oreos, and other junk food. The tutors also made sure the freshmen football players did the required study time assigned to them by their coaches. When asked to give an example of the help given at the CLC, tutor Jason Speegle commented, "I really enjoyed getting Matt Perdue through General Physics I by doing his homework for him every day. Thanks Matt." Although the primary function of the CLC was for studying, drama was a major factor for the everyday grind. Rachel Workman, who was "in charge" of the tutors this year, said her favorite overheard comment was, "No, man. I know Towne West is on the East side of Wichita. Somebody told me so." The CLC tutors had a great time helping people as well as catching up on campus gossip.

Phi Delta Theta

Phi Delta Theta had another active year of community and campus service. They also dedicated time to their pledge session which added 10 new members. These new pledges increased the fraternity's membership to 42 actives.

Once again Phi Delta Theta helped clean up after the Walnut Valley Festival. They also mentored at local public schools, and participated in the Adopt-A-Highway Clean-Up Program. They bowled in the Big Brothers/Big Sisters' Bowl 4 Kids Sake tournament.

Their campus events included co-sponsoring Casino Night with SAA, hosting the Basketball Finals' Tailgate Party, and co-sponsoring the Spring Luau.

Some of their pledge activities included a cook-out with Sigma Iota Sigma and a Water Polo Night for their pledges to interact with the active members. They also took a trip to Tahlequah, OK, where they took a float trip down the Illinois River.

Many awards were received by Phi Delta Theta. These awards included being in the top 1% of all Phi Delta Theta groups in the nation. They received the Kansas City Trophy for being the best chapter for its size in the nation. The Gold Star award was presented to them for being an excellent and exemplary chapter. Other awards presented to the organization were the GHQ Trophy and the Community Service Citation.

Sigma Iota Sigma was active throughout the year in the community and on campus. Commenting on the only sorority on campus, Kim Okeson said, "Sigma gives us girls a chance to get together and work on projects that benefit the community and the campus."

One of the projects the group worked on was establishing the Holly Mitchek Fund. This fund was designed to donate $100 to a charity or a worthy cause each year. The fund was set up in the loving memory of their late sister.

On campus, the group co-sponsored the Winter Formal with the Student Activities Association. They also entered a float in the Homecoming parade. At Banner Night, the Sigmas showed off their Builder spirit by proudly displaying their Jinx banner.

Sigma increased their membership to 23 after rushing 13 pledges. President Amy Headrick said, "With the number of pledges we had, next year's group will be able to expand."

Jump Cheerleading Squad

The motto for the 1998-1999 Cheerleading Squad was "Together We Build." When asked about this motto, Coach Nancy Lewis said, "This year's squad not only built stunts, but they also built good character and even better relationships." The Cheerleading Squad in cooperation with the football team was active in Big Brothers/Big Sisters. They hosted several holiday parties for their little brothers and sisters. Along with being active in the community, the squad enjoyed cheering the Builders on to victory throughout the year.

After many hours of debate, the Pom Squad decided to reintroduce themselves as the Black Cats in their fifth year of existence. Besides their regular performances at home football and basketball games the squad of seven also danced at various other events including the Fashion Show and the Homecoming parade. The Black Cats were involved within the community by participating at the Red Ribbon Carnival and hosting a Halloween Party for Big Brothers and Sisters.

Each girl was responsible for choreographing and teaching dances to the group. The Black Cats danced to a variety of music ranging from funk to oldies. Special theme dances for Halloween, Christmas, and the last dance included fun music mixes, props, and elaborate costumes.

Coach Nancy Lewis implemented a new leadership system based on seniority within the squad. Amie Liebau was Senior Leader, next in line was Captain Jiana Wilson then Co-Captain Angie Gentry. If the senior leader could not make it to practices, the responsibilities fell to the captain. "We were lucky to have such great leadership within the squad. Things were always organized and there was always something to work on," commented first year member, Jenni Ireland.

Volleyball Team

The 1998-1999 Volleyball Team began the year with a fresh start with a new coaching staff. Julie Murphy took the responsibility of being head coach, and Lori Wedel started her first coaching experience as Murphy's assistant coach. Coach Murphy brought a new offense and defense to the team which made them slightly inexperienced. However, the team had many strengths including their enthusiasm, dedication, commitment, and work ethic. These strengths were reflected by honors given to individual team members. Dana McDorman was unanimously picked for All Conference. Sara Peterson received All Conference Honorable Mention. At the William Woods University Tournament, Sara Smith received All Tournament Honors. The team's two Academic All-Americans were Sara Peterson and Amy Headrick. The team finished the season with a 7-9 KCAC record and an overall record of 9-20. The new coaching staff has been a great addition to the team, and they look forward to a bright future with the volleyball team.

We Are The Champions

Football Team

The 1998-1999 Southwestern Moundbuilder football team experienced a degree of success unknown since 1984. The team ended 9-2 overall, defeated Lindenwood, Missouri for the KCAC Conference Championship, and took the first round of the NAIA National Playoffs. A bad day on the field, however, ended the Builders shot at the National Title when they took on Huron, South Dakota. Coach Monty Lewis said, "I could not have asked for a better season. I appreciate the respect and support shown by the college and the Winfield community in our success. The kind of support, in combination with our sportsmanship and competitiveness, allowed us to achieve many of our goals."

Men's Soccer

In the men's second season of soccer, there were many new faces. "With only four returning players, the team is learning to work together," stated Coach Hickam. Among the new members were nine freshmen, one upper classman, and three transfer students. Another development for the soccer team was the addition of stadium lights to the game field. Freshman Scott Jarrett said, "As a team, we have more talent than any KCAC team. We just need to make it work." With so much invigorating spirit on the field, men's soccer kept a very optimistic outlook on the season. Overall, men's soccer finished the season with 3-15 and 1-7 in the KCAC. This was an improvement from last year, but the team still has room to excel in the future.

Let's Get Physical

Women's Soccer

The 1998-1999 women's soccer team had a very promising outlook with seven returning players, six freshmen, and three transfer students. "When I heard about the soccer team at Southwestern, I thought 'It'll be a way to learn new things.' I saw promise and now that this season is over I know it was worth it to come here," stated Denisse Camarena. In their second year, they finished with a total of six wins out of eighteen games. Of those eighteen, eight were KCAC matches in which the women's team saw two wins. Captain Molly Schulte commented, "This year was more fun than last year because we won and I didn't get hurt!"

Working and running hard, the SC Men's and Women's Cross Country teams did excellent during the 1998 season. Their already impressive list of achievements from previous years was made even more impressive with their recent accomplishments. For example, taking their 19th consecutive title at the KCAC cross country meet was a highlight for the Men's Cross Country team this year. Also, the women's team added their 5th consecutive title. Their high performance level was made possible by their determination and hard work. However, high achievement was not only performed on the group level. Congratulations were in order this year to participants who excelled on an individual level. Misty Cunningham said of her accomplishment, "Hoping to exceed or at least meet my achievements from my freshman year was what I set out to do this year. I was very satisfied with my semester because I did end up meeting my goals."

Strokin' Golf Team

The Southwestern Golf Team was comprised mainly of young, inexperienced freshmen and sophomores. The opening season was used as a time for the players to gain experience at a new level of playing. "We had an all right fall season. We started off slow, but had a great ending to the season as Chris Brummett won the tournament at Turtle Creek," said Dennis Wilson. At the end of the season, the overall leading scorer was a very competitive race with seven players within two or less strokes of each other. Also, the Golf Team finished third in the conference. There were several bright spots during the season. However, Coach Fluty looks forward to next year with returning juniors and sophomores, as well as the addition of Southwestern's first Women's Golf Team.

Athletic Trainers

Southwestern College provided an internship program for athletic trainers that required each student to complete 1500 hours under the direct supervision of a certified athletic trainer. The trainers were a part of assessing, preventing, and rehabilitating any injuries that occurred during games or practices. Southwestern's fifteen athletic trainers assisted with all sports, learning clinical skills in emergency first aid, prevention, recognition, treatment, and rehabilitation. Throughout their internships, the students were prepared for the National Athletic Trainers Association certification exam. Head athletic trainer Brian Norton used the saying, "An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure," to stress the importance of the trainers' work.

The Men's Varsity Basketball team had a rough beginning, but ended the season with an overall record of 16-15. Andrew Vargas said, "Even though the season started out rough, we pulled together to end it on a positive note." The team did a great job with scoring points, especially with senior Kyle Wollenberg breaking the all-time scoring record. Coach Brad Horstmann commented, "Kyle will be hard to replace. He gained a lot from the game, but he put twice the effort into it. Next year will be tough without him, but we are ready to work hard for it." The team also took a trip to Miami, Florida, to play in a tournament over Christmas Break. When the team returned, they continued to play hard and ended the season by finishing second in the KCAC finals.

Women's Basketball

The 1998-1999 Women's Basketball team had a great season with a KCAC record of 8-8. The team finished fourth in the conference, and had a first round playoff game at home. As with any team, they started off slow, but once conference started they really picked up the pace. This was a first for the team especially with a new coach. As senior, Beth Erickson said, "We had a season of firsts, we did not win as many games as we would have liked, but it was a good foundation for next year." A number of players ended the season ranked in the top ten in the KCAC standings, including categories of 3-point shooting, rebounding, free-throw percentage and assists. Mel Burdett commented that "it was a building season and we have great expectations for the future."

Tennis

The Southwestern Men's Tennis Team continually improved throughout the 1998-1999 season. Four new players joined the team complimenting the four returning lettermen. The weather was a major factor in the spring season with numerous tournaments being postponed due to rain. The wind also contributed to the hectic schedule which changed practice times and meets. Coach Ken Kraus proudly stated, "I am extremely pleased with the poise demonstrated by the men on and off the court. I am proud to be associated with this group. Their continuous improvement was illustrated through the course of the season."

The Lady Builders finished fifth in the Kansas Collegiate Athletic Conference tournament. Jessie Brass was named to the All Conference First Team, and Brooke Youle was named to the Second Team. Youle also received third place at the KCAC tournament. "The girls put forth tremendous effort this year, and I look forward to seeing what they will be able to accomplish in the future. I was very pleased with the leadership demonstrated by Jessie Brass and the freshmen demonstrated excellent potential." commented Coach Ken Kraus.

Rock This Town Rock Painting

Another layer of history was painted on Tuesday, August 26, when students gathered on Wallingford lawn for the annual rock painting party. As one of the first school-wide events of the year, all students, faculty, staff members, organizations, and athletics were invited to participate in this truly unique ceremony. Rocks came in an assortment of shapes and sizes and were acquired everywhere from prison grounds to the French Riviera. Ann Hawley, who spent two semesters in Europe last year, recalled "I wanted to bring something special back to the SC mound. The small, smooth rock from the French Riviera was the perfect choice." A variety of paints and brushes were used by the students to add a personal touch to ordinary rocks. Rocks were made to commemorate special events such as the Development Office's Expanding the Vision rock. Rocks were also designed in memory of students. "Sigma wanted to do something to remember Holly. We came up with the idea to paint the rock with bright colors and make it look like a sun," said Kim Okeson. SAA sponsored the event and carried out the rock theme through refreshments of rocky road ice cream and rock candy.

Moundbuilding Ceremony

Many traditions at Southwestern College have continued throughout the decades. However, one of the most unique traditions is the Moundbuilding Ceremony.

College faculty, staff, and students began the Moundbuilding Ceremony in Richardson Auditorium where selections from Dean Allen's speech were given by Kyle Woodrow and Dawn Pleas-Bailey. The speech was first given by Allen in 1927. Seventy-one years later, the mound still stands to show the loyalty of Southwestern College students and faculty.

Leading the way, torch bearers Christina Hurtado and Stacie Fraley pointed out the various rocks on campus dedicated to certain organizations while other students explained each rock's meaning. The tour ended at the mound where Kyle Woodrow explained the plans each organization had for the year as the organization members placed the rocks on the pile. President Merriman, students, faculty, and staff also placed their individual rocks on the pile. To end the ceremony, everyone gathered around the rock donated by the Class of 1998 and sang the Alma Mater which was inscribed on the rock.

With last minute efforts of hauling in sand and creating mud pits, SGA once again managed to make "Kickback Day" a great success. The day started off with a campus-wide picnic followed by an afternoon of mud and sand volleyball grudge matches. The SGA team was the lucky winner of the mud volleyball tournament, while the CCOM team managed to run away with the championship title of the sand volleyball tournament. SGA president, Kyle Woodrow, commented, "I thought it went great. I was overwhelmed with the turnout." He also added that with the help of Phi Delta Theta, they were able to pull together and make this a memorable day.

It Must Be the Rain

Tailgate Party

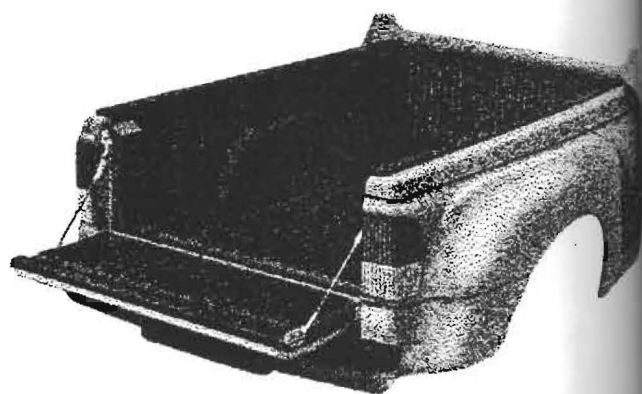

Homecoming week was filled with many activities including the annual parade, tailgate party, and Homecoming dance. The 1999 Homecoming theme was "Building Towards the Future."

Many students participated in the Homecoming Parade. The students of Southwestern created floats to depict the theme as applied to their organizations. Before the Homecoming football game, the floats were displayed on the streets of downtown Winfield.

Unfortunately, the tailgate party was rained out. The festivities, however, took place inside Stewart Field House. In honor of the newly renovated Stewart Field House, a dedication ceremony was held for the alumni and students of Southwestern College. A variety of foods was served during the proceedings.

The Homecoming dance was enjoyed by everyone in attendance. Students took the opportunity to talk with friends, dance, and meet new people.

Homecoming week gave the students the opportunity to relax and support their school. In spite of the rain during the tailgate party, the celebration was a success.

A week of many activities kept many people and organizations busy during Hunger and Homelessness Week. The Oxfam Hunger Banquet got the week off to a great start. At the banquet, students were assigned to three different economic classes. Each economic class determined how much food they were served. "The problem with hunger is not that there is not enough food, the problem is that it is not distributed equally," stated Crystal Goering, Banquet Coordinator.

The Faces of Homelessness Panel consisted of eight men and women of all ages, who were currently homeless or had been in the past. Each person gave a brief description of their life and struggles with homelessness. A quick question and answer period allowed the audience to gain a better perspective on this situation.

An O'Phil Benefit Concert took place in Richardson Auditorium for an evening of music and fun. The concert not only helped raise money for hunger and homelessness but awareness. The last event of the week was the Great American Sleepout. Students slept outside on the lawn to understand how it feels to be homeless.

All throughout the week, a food and clothing drive took place in all the dorms. Other activities such as selling T-shirts and writing letters to Congress aided in the fight against hunger and homelessness. Robin Walker expressed concern by saying, "Living in the United States we are given responsibilities that come with the privilege to be able to extend our hands in help."

Fashion Show

Alleigh Schmidt, Southwestern senior and international model produced an evening of holiday fun and fashion Friday, December 4, 1998. The "SC Holiday Fashion Review" featured an assortment of clothes provided by Maurices and the Southwestern College Book Cave. Schmidt coordinated outfits appropriate for the winter season, and chose several SC faculty to model her designs. Colleagues of Schmidt's from Models and Images, a Wichita Agency, also worked the catwalk. All proceeds for the show were donated to the Kansas Humane Society for a spaying and neutering facility. "The Fashion Show was a great way for me to combine my passion for the Kansas Humane Society and the runway. It enabled me to take an active role in doing all that I can to help animals," stated Schmidt.

Martin Luther King, Jr. Day

On January 18th, Martin Luther King, Jr.'s dream was revisited on the campus of Southwestern College. The theme of the convocation was "Keeping the Dream Alive." This was the last year for the convocation to be held; in the future, Southwestern will observe the official holiday. During the event, ten students and faculty members told their personal thoughts about Martin Luther King's dream.

Topics ranged from racism to freedom. Highlights of the convocation included a speech by Claudia Geer, Assistant Professor of Psychology. Geer commented on the unspoken prejudices and how we should not have different expectations because of cultural diversity. Geer said, "It was an honor to speak out for one of my personal heroes. I think that it is important to not only remember the life of Martin Luther King, but to be reminded of his dreams and issues that he fought for." Other speakers included Monty Lewis, SC football coach, who spoke about racism in athletics. Rachel Workman, Student Life Assistant, also discussed areas where she saw prejudice in the Marine Corps.

This last Martin Luther King, Jr. convocation was not only a celebration of his memory, but an inquiry as to what we are presently doing to keep the dream alive. It was also a call to action to never let the dream die.

Jesus Loves Me

Chapel

For an hour every Wednesday morning, Southwestern students were given the opportunity to sing and celebrate their religion with other members of the college. Participants came together and listened to sermons given by the campus minister Steve Rankin, student volunteers, and occasional guest speakers. When friends or families were in need of prayer, their names were added to the prayer box and addressed by the group.

Daniel Miller, head of SC's praise team, described chapel as "an opportunity for students, faculty, and members of the community to take a moment from their busy schedules to focus on God. It's like having a church service during the week."

Spring Fling & Luau

Bringing together the Winfield community and the students of Southwestern College was the main purpose of the Spring Fling event. Not only did the attendees have fun in the sun but also the community got to know the SC community better and vice-versa.

From sand and mud volleyball tournaments and nearly 24 other games, to food, socializing, and an ending Luau, all attendees had a blast. Said Teri Hackler, "This was a wonderful event! Although it was our first time to try the 'play day,' it was effective in bringing together the Winfield and college communities."

Sponsors of the Spring Fling daytime events included: SGA, SAA, Early Childhood Program, and Grace Little Builders. Sponsors of the Luau included: Sigma Iota Sigma, Phi Delta Theta, and SAA.

Joel Smith had lots of supporters for his big day.

Everyone had to search for family and friends after the ceremony in Stewart Field House. Threatening weather moved the convocation inside.

A look of pure joy. Pat Johnson.

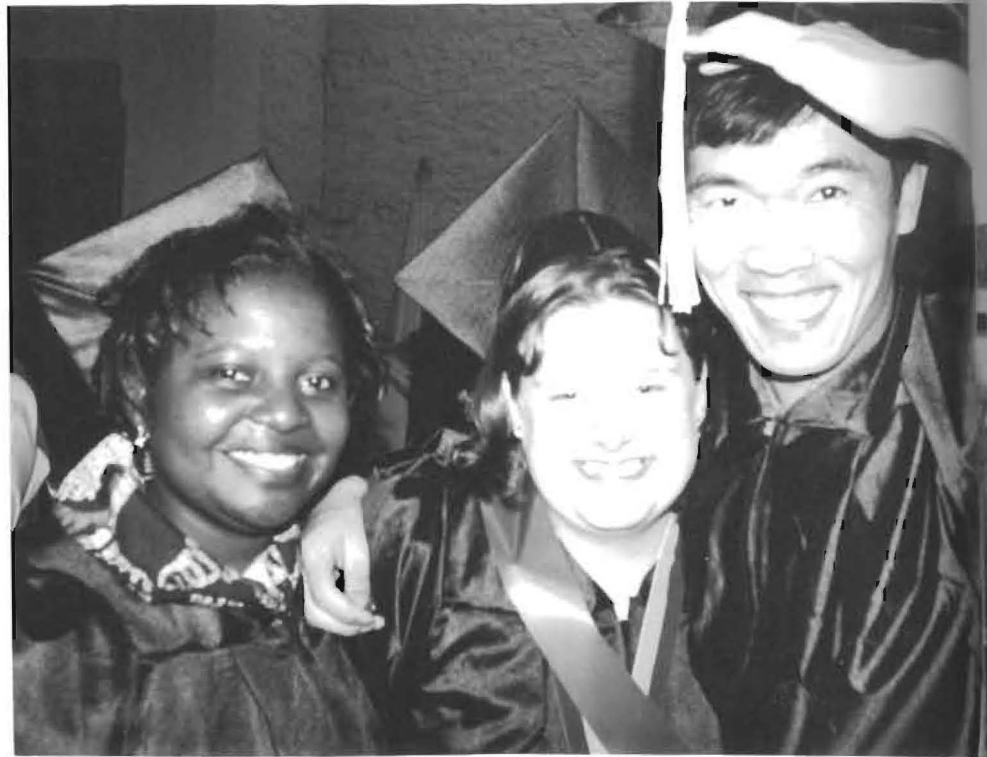

Robin Walker is ready for the big wide world.

It was a big day, for many reasons, for Katie Dorn and her family.

Mary Black and Sarah Ferguson happy it is over and ready to move on.

Thyrsa Mucambe, Ann Hawley, and Woo Sun Chang shared many moments with each other. Graduation was no exception.

A Moment For Us:

Remember the past, live for today, and hope for tomorrow. Although this phrase sounds like a cheesy high school class motto, there is some truth to it. This year would not be complete without remembering the goofy memories you made with your new friends, or the class that drove you to drinking. In closing this decade, the yearbook staff would like to remind you also to remember and give thanks to God for those people who touched our lives. Southwestern has experienced more than its share of tragedies in the past ten years, which claimed the lives of some wonderful people. Even though they are no longer with us, we still have their memories in our hearts as we look to a new century.
