

From Alumni Programs

As the holidays approach, days grow shorter and life slows down. It's a perfect time to reflect back on old friendships and great memories. Many alumni were able to make the trip back to campus for Homecoming 2004 and the dedication of the renovated 77 Steps. If you weren't here, I hope you will make an effort to reconnect with old friends and classmates to catch up and hear about it.

If you've been out of touch and don't know how to reconnect, you are in luck! The process of creating a new Southwestern College alumni directory is well underway. In October, you should have received a questionnaire to fill out and return with updated information about you. If you've not yet returned it, please do so right away. This directory process will not only update our college database with current alumni information, but it will provide an opportunity for Moundbuilders everywhere to obtain a book or CD-ROM copy if they so choose.

Meanwhile, if you can't wait for the directory to come out, check the online SC class e-mail directory at www.sckans.edu/campus/directory. (If you aren't listed there, this is a perfect time to do so.) I hope you will set a goal to get in touch with fellow classmates this year!

Two Southwestern College Halls of Fame Will Induct New Members April 9, 2005.

For qualification standards and nomination forms for the Scholars Hall of Fame or the Educators Hall of Fame, contact the Office of Alumni Programs at (800) 846-1543, ext. 6334, or check online at www.sckans.edu/alumni2. In addition to inductees into the halls of fame, one educator will receive the Marilyn McNeish Award for Special Education.

Nominations are due Jan. 15 for the Scholars Hall of Fame, or Feb. 1 for the Educators Hall of Fame.

Do You Have Memories of Grace Methodist Church?

Grace United Methodist Church in Winfield is being nominated to a place on the National Register of Historic Places, a process that includes collecting artifacts concerning the church.

The church's roots began to grow in 1886 when a group of Southwestern College students, tired of walking two miles each way on muddy, unpaved streets to attend church downtown, organized their own Sunday School class in the home of a faculty member who lived close to the college. By 1888 it had attracted not only students and faculty, but local residents of the College Hill area as well.

That year the annual conference recognized the "student church" as Grace Methodist Episcopal Church. For the 116 years that followed, the story of Grace Church has remained closely tied to the story of Southwestern College.

If you have old photographs, stories, or other memories of Grace Church, please contact Ronald Surface at (620) 229-9015, or e-mail surface@canoemail.com.

2004 Business Hall of Fame

The SC Business Hall of Fame added three new names Sept. 11.

- In a related ceremony, Craig Duncan '02 (far left) was honored with the 2004 Business Builder Award.

- Charles Kopke '44, who retired as senior vice president of Commerce Trust Company, Kansas City, Mo., after 40 years.
- Becky O'Neal '77, an executive with State Farm Insurance in Bloomington, Ill.
- Steve K. Stone '74, senior vice president and chief financial officer of Morris Communications Co., a privately-held media company.

2004 Science Hall of Fame

Inductees were honored on Nov. 6 (from left)

- Frank Newman '53, professor emeritus of veterinary virology and medical science at Montana State University. His research in the enteric infections of humans and cattle led to the development of a vaccine for calf scours, and his studies of anthrax and cholera contributed to the understanding of virus host-cell interaction.
- Max Thompson '57, professor and research associate in biology at Southwestern College for 33 years. He helped build the biology curriculum into the college's most popular major.
- Melvin L. Cheatham '55, whose achievements have been both as a neurosurgeon and as a humanitarian with the Samaritan's Purse Christian relief organization.
