NEWS AND STORIES FROM SOUTHWESTERN COLLEGE

“As the sun rose this morning,
behind where I stand now,
it broke through the low hanging clouds and lit up the sky with a brilliant purple light.

Light bathed this campus. Light bathed Jantz stadium where we now gather.

This light not only heralded a special day for all of us, it was a reminder of the promise – and the preciousness – of each new journey we begin.

Today is a powerful a day at Southwestern College.

We, as a Builder family are gathered here today in a spirit of celebration, marking the culmination of your hard work, sacrifice and focus over the past four years.

But we, as a college community, also are grieving. The sudden and heart-breaking deaths of two of our students last Wednesday night has affected us all deeply.

I want to invite us to begin our commencement exercise today by honoring the lives of Jacobi Scott and Shelvin Keller. As a college we were strengthened by their passion and energy, and in their deaths we struggle to find the words to express the depth of our loss. As we begin this ceremony today, I ask you to join with me in a moment of silence as we remember these two remarkable young men, and also remember our classmate, Kara McLain, who we lost two years ago...

... There is a lot that comes at us in life, and as Builders we face it all head on.

Today, this day, life brings us something special; it brings us you and your accomplishments.

Even as we remember and honor all that has come before – today it is right that we celebrate all that is to come in each of your journeys. Today, and every day, we have much to be grateful for, we have much to celebrate.”

With these words I began the 2019 Commencement Ceremony. Since that ceremony in mid-May we have suffered even more loss as a Builder family – some great people, good friends, incredible Builders, have left us much too early.

I know that it is difficult to make sense of the loss we feel. I know that we rely upon each other during these times, we lean on the Builder family and I am grateful for that. Certainly, we are blessed for this community, this family, that we share in.

I also know that times like these remind us of the importance of getting the most out of today, the most out of every day. Life is indeed precious.

Our Academic Dean, Dr. Ross Peterson-Veatch, reminded us in his remarks at the Graduate Hooding ceremony that this is the ultimate purpose of education. A Southwestern College education, at its best, prepares us to get the most we can out of today, out of each day, out of each journey we embark on.

We commit ourselves to this purpose of education; in class, in our offices, on the athletic field, in our residence halls, in activities, in relationships with each other, as alumni. We commit to preparing ourselves and future Builders to take advantage of every day, to respect the preciousness of life.

On the coming pages you will read about the losses we have suffered and the passings that we grieve. You will read about the celebrations we share, the dawning of new journeys for Builders. You will read about developments on campus, and the promises of the future. As Builders we come together around the past, around the present, and around our future.

Nothing is guaranteed us, and as Builders we have always known that. However, it is also true that everything is possible for us as Builders. Southwestern College is special in as much as it prepares us to pursue all that is possible, and provides us a Builder family for comfort in difficult times.

Life is precious, every day is precious. We respect this, and we celebrate all the possibilities promised by each sunrise. Vernon, and Ralph, and Paul, and Kara, and Jacobi, and Shelvin, and so many others, have taught us that.

Brad Andrews, President

The Builder family encounters tragedy

Jacobi Scott, a sophomore from Denham Springs, Louisiana, and Shelvin Keller, a first-year student from LaPlace, Louisiana, were tragically killed in a car accident near Marshall, Texas on May 8. The two were traveling home together for summer break.

“Our community is tightly knit, and we all share in the tragic loss of these two bright, strong, young men – two Builders,” President Brad Andrews wrote to campus in the announcement of the accident “It seems impossible to make sense of tragedies as devastating as this. In these moments of grief, it is important that we offer each other support and comfort.”

Shelvin had not yet declared a major, but was interested in communications and was active on campus. He was a running back on the Moundbuilder football team. In addition to the friends he had made on campus, Shelvin had formed strong connections with several faculty and staff. He was looking forward to returning in the fall and to the upcoming football season.

Jacobi transferred to Southwestern last fall from Grambling University. He was a quarterback and had assumed a leadership position on the team this spring. Coaches described Jacobi as a student athlete who brought great ability to the quarterback position, but more importantly, they emphasized his character. He was majoring in computer science and digital arts.

“I’ve been here long enough you know a Builder when you see one and I know these two young men were the essence of that,” said Dawn Pleas, vice president for student success.

Jacobi Scott

Shelvin Keller

Shelvin and Jacobi were described by fellow Builders as “two of the nicest guys on campus.” A group of their friends organized a vigil at Cole Mound Plaza before leaving campus for summer break. Plans are underway to memorialize the two as classes and football season resume in the fall.

Student affairs and football staff are working to support students who were close friends of the two young men through the summer break.

“We don’t want friends of Jacobi and Shel to feel like they have to work through their grief alone, so we’ll be checking in on them,” said Alissa Shepherd, first-year advisor.

In the announcement sent to campus, President Andrews invited students, faculty, and staff to be thoughtful about all who are impacted by the tragedy “Please join me in praying for Jacobi and Shelvin’s families – for all of their friends so deeply affected by this loss, and for our Builder family.”

Quarterback, Jacobi Scott (below left) hands-off the ball to running back, Shelvin Keller during the spring scrimmage held April 26. The two friends were killed in a car accident while driving home to Louisiana for summer break.

New natural science learning lab to open in August

A major gift from Robert and Barbara Jewell has allowed construction of a premier learning space in Beech Science Center to begin.

The Jewell Family Learning Lab for the Natural Sciences will be located on the second floor of Beech Science Center and is set to open in early August.

Robert Jewell is a member of the Class of 1977 and comes from a family of Moundbuilders. He has made his career in information technology and development. Jewell earned a bachelor of science degree in mathematics and physics with a focus in computer science from Southwestern. He later earned a master's degree in electrical engineering.

"During my first semester in 1974, I was studying at 2 a.m. in Christy Hall, I can still remember where I was sitting – when I knew then what I wanted to do with my life," said Jewell. "I just want to give that opportunity to a student or, hopefully, to many students – this learning environment will be helpful in the same way Christy Hall was for me, as they work to identify their passions and prepare for meaningful careers."

Senior vice president, Tracy Frederick, worked closely with Tammy McEwen, associate professor of biology and division chair of the natural sciences, to plan the project. Frederick spent time during the fall semester

Above, this rendering of the Jewell Family Learning Lab for the Natural Sciences by WDM Architects depicts the large monitors to be installed in the space for screen sharing, and the collapsible glass wall allowing for different learning configurations. The project, which is set to be completed before classes begin in August, is on schedule. Demolition is complete and construction has begun (right).

of 2018 hosting listening sessions on campus to collect the hopes and dreams of faculty and students regarding the creation of premier learning spaces in each of Southwestern's academic buildings.

"The idea is to transform a currently under utilized space into a collaborative environment that invites and inspires – that energizes the life of the mind, and allows for greater collaboration and creativity," said Frederick.

Architects met with the natural sciences faculty as a group at the outset to ask questions and better understand how students would benefit from the future learning lab space. They returned with initial drawings and the project planning team moved forward with an aggressive time line – with a goal to have the space ready for students to use when classes begin next semester.

"Beyond what I learned, I think about many of the good friends I made at Southwestern – many went on to become very good doctors – we became friends sitting next to each other in science courses and because we studied together," said Jewell. "Those friends I made at Southwestern many years ago are still my best friends today."

The Jewell Family Learning Lab is designed as a flexible and interactive space which can be used for class-wide study sessions or partitioned by a large moveable glass wall for more focused study groups. The space features new large wall-mounted monitors for screen sharing and group research, furniture optimized for flexible seating arrangements, and multiple whiteboards – all included to allow for greater utilization of the space.

"This project is focused on creating a space where students want to learn and faculty want to teach – an environment that inspires students to connect and collaborate, to engage academic curiosities together," said Pat Wagner, vice president for institutional advancement. "We are so grateful to the Jewell family – they are bringing that vision to life."

Jewell is optimistic about the impact this project will have in the lives of students, and about his investment in Southwestern.

"The college is under extraordinary leadership and this is the time to give to pay the most dividends possible," he said. "We are excited to be a part of this project."

General Wesley Clark to present Docking Lecture in September

Former NATO Supreme Allied Commander and author General Wesley Clark will present the Docking Lecture on Leadership and Public Affairs, sponsored by Union State Bank, on Wednesday, September 25 at 11 a.m., in the Richardson Performing Arts Center. The public is invited to attend. While there is no admission charge, those planning to attend are encouraged to reserve seats by visiting sckans.edu/docking.

“Many prestigious honors are testament to General Wesley Clark’s lifetime of distinguished leadership and service in both the military and civilian arenas,” said Bill Docking, Chairman of the Board at Union State Bank. “In 2000, he received the Presidential Medal of Freedom, the nation’s highest civilian honor. It is a pleasure to have a hand in bringing a speaker of General Clark’s stature to Southwestern College”

In addition to the Presidential Medal of Freedom, Clark has been honored with Defense Distinguished Service Medal (five awards), Silver Star, Bronze Star, Purple Heart, honorary knight-hoods from the British and Dutch governments, and numerous other awards from other governments, including award of Commander of the Legion of Honor (France). He has also been awarded the Department of State Distinguished Service Award and numerous civilian honors for his civic contributions.

Clark retired as a four-star general after 38 years in the United States

Army. He graduated first in his class at West Point and completed degrees in philosophy, politics and economics at Oxford University (B.A. and M.A.) as a Rhodes Scholar. While serving in Vietnam, he commanded an infantry company in combat, where he was severely wounded and evacuated home on a stretcher. He later commanded at the battalion, brigade, and division level, and served in a number of significant staff positions, including service as the Director for Strategy, Plans and Policy (J-5). He was the principal author of both the U.S. National Military Strategy and Joint Vision 2010, prescribing U.S. war fighting for full-spectrum dominance. He also participated with Ambassador Richard Holbrooke in the Dayton Peace Process, and helped write and negotiate significant portions of the 1995 Dayton Peace Agreement. In his last assignment as Supreme Allied Commander Europe he led NATO forces to victory in Operation Allied Force, a 78-day air campaign, backed by ground invasion planning and a diplomatic process, saving 1.5 million Albanians from ethnic cleansing.

A best-selling author, General Clark has written four books and is a founding member of the Clinton Global Initiative, and director of the Atlantic Council.

General Clark currently serves as chairman and CEO of Wesley K. Clark & Associates, a strategic consulting firm; chairman and founder of Enverra, Inc., a licensed investment bank; board member of Growth Energy; senior fellow at UCLA’s Burkle Center for International Relations; advisor at the Blackstone Group; advisory board member of SICPA; trustee of International Crisis Group; founding chair of City Year Little Rock/North Little Rock; chairman of Energy Security Partners, LLC; as well as numerous corporate boards including BNK Petroleum, Leagold Mining, and Rentech.

The Docking Lecture is underwritten by Union State Bank and by William and Thomas Docking. The Docking family has played a prominent role in Kansas government and politics for over half a century. In 1956 George Docking was elected governor of Kansas. He served two terms, leaving office in 1961. His son, Robert Docking, was elected governor in 1966 and served four two-year terms, more than any other Kansas governor, leaving office in 1975. Robert Docking’s sons have continued the family’s commitment to public service. William Docking was appointed to the Kansas Higher Education Board of Regents in 1995, and served as its chair. Thomas Docking was lieutenant governor of Kansas from 1983 to 1987, during the governorship of John Carlin.

“We are thrilled to announce General Wesley Clark will present the 2019 Docking Lectures on Leadership and Public Affairs,” said Brad Andrews, president of Southwestern College. “The Docking Lecture Series encourages academic discovery and broadens our students’ perspective of leadership by allowing them the opportunity to engage remarkable people with diverse and notable experiences, people such as General Clark. We are incredibly grateful to the Docking family and Union State Bank for making the Docking Lecture Series possible.”

NORTH & SOUTH Builders travel the globe to serve

DISCIPLESHIP TO BELIZE
Thirteen Discipleship students traveled to Belize May 13-22. The group worked with children in Orange Walk Town, Belize. The students organized and taught a Vacation Bible School program and worked with kids at a local elementary school. “Service-learning travel awakens students to new experiences, and helps them see the world – places, but also people – through a new contextual lens. The world simultaneously becomes smaller and bigger, beckoning wonder, prompting reflection, and nurturing skills in empathy,” said Rev. Molly Just, director of Discipleship. “For the discipleship team, travel helps us see how Christ is at work in other parts of the world, and allows us to share stories from the global church here in Winfield.”

LEADERSHIP TO ICELAND
Students from the Leadership team traveled to Iceland for their international service learning trip. In Reykjavik, the group partnered with Whales of Iceland and the International Foundation of Animal Welfare to advocate for tourists to not eat whale meat while visiting Iceland. The team also completed service work at Daladýrð

Petting Zoo helping farmers dig fence post holes, build a goat playground (and watch the goats play on it in the end), and help with the farm chores in general. The team also traveled to the Blue Church, a popular tourist destination, in Seyðisfjörður, where they partnered with the local community to clean, organize, landscape, and paint in the church cemetery.

“... the top three memories for students from our trip to Iceland are the dramatic and beautiful scenery, laughing together while cooking and enjoying our family style team meals, and the meaningful service work we performed at the petting zoo, particularly, in light of the strong servant leader practices modeled by our service host.”

– Brae Wood, director of Leadership Southwestern

Q&A with 2019 Jabara Leadership Award Recipients

Class

David Matthews is from Rowlett, Texas, he graduated with a Bachelor of Science in Biology. He was recognized by his peers, faculty, and staff as a Masterbuilder – and as a leader in the classroom, on the football field, and across the campus community. As a linebacker he recorded quite a career with Moundbuilder football. Additionally, he was involved in pre-health professionals and served as an executive for Student Foundation.

Dave exhibits the characteristics that define a true Builder – he’s selfless, driven, respectful, and compassionate – his instructors describe him as a quiet leader, who has great integrity and quite a sense of humor. Matthews will be attending Langston University in the fall to begin the doctor of physical therapy program.

- Q What does it mean to be a Builder?
A To be a Builder means to go the extra mile in everything that you do and to make sure that those around you are taken care of as well.
- Q As you set out on a new venture, what will you carry with you from your time at SC?
A I’ll carry the relationships I’ve made at SC with me forever. There are numerous people who I could call on if I ever needed some assistance, who I know wouldn’t hesitate to lend a helping hand in any way they could, and vice versa. The relationship between faculty/staff and amongst students is what makes Southwestern so special and what makes it feel like home.

Catabrean Baumann came to Southwestern from Tulsa, Okla. She graduated with a Bachelor of Arts in Elementary Education. Baumann holds a variety of titles in the volleyball record book at SC – including all-time assists and attack percentage. She was first-team all-conference this season and was a leader on the team and was recognized with the 2019 Female Outstanding Student-Athlete award.

Baumann was honored by the Kansas Department of Education as a 2019 Teacher of Promise – in her award nomination, faculty expressed that Baumann demonstrates the ideals of teachers and teaching valued and espoused by the academic program at Southwestern. The nomination went on to share that Baumann shows a great commitment, dedication, and a desire to continue to grow professionally and personally.

Baumann will begin teaching kindergarten at Irving Elementary in Winfield next fall.

- Q What does it mean to be a Builder?
A To be a Builder is to always be looking for ways to contribute to the community. To be a Builder means to do everything to the best of your own ability and to uplift those around you so that they can also perform at the best of their abilities.
- Q As you set out on a new venture, what will you carry with you from your time at SC?
A Southwestern College gave me the opportunity to grow intellectually and emotionally. I was able to form opinions and beliefs that will help me in my future classroom (career) and I was able to build a foundation for the kind of character I want to present to the world for the rest of my life.

Institutional Advancement

New role includes Homecoming and Alumni Directory responsibilities

Since September of 2013, I have been serving as the director of the Builder Fund. I have had the privilege of working with Builders across the globe to help ensure our Builders on campus have ample opportunity to explore their academic and co-curricular curiosities and to more fully discover their potential.

My role has expanded to include alumni engagement. In the past few weeks, I've spoken with many Builders as we plan for Homecoming 2019, All the World is a Stage. Along with class reunions, the parade, and football game, we are featuring several exciting events including a centennial celebration for the Campus Players.

The Richard and Julia Wilke Institute of Discipleship and Philosophy and Religion department are sponsoring the live recording of two podcasts. We will also be inducting alumni into our Athletic Hall of Fame. Indeed, it is sure to be a great production!

In addition to my work on Homecoming, I am also helping to publish the 2020 edition of the Alumni Directory. You may receive post cards, emails, and/or phone calls from Publishing Concepts (PCI). This is a legitimate survey to help us gather information so that we can share your achievements and help us stay in contact with you.

As I reflect on my love for Southwestern and for the many Builders who I have come to know since my first days on campus as a freshman in 2005 – I am so grateful and excited for all that lies ahead. Our college is a beautiful and meaningful place. I am pleased to be working alongside a wonderfully talented and generous alumni base to build more opportunity for our current students and to deepen the powerful relationships formed here at our beloved alma mater.

If I have not yet had the chance, I look forward to meeting you. Please make plans to join us for Homecoming on October 25, 26, and 27. If you have questions about Homecoming or simply would like to connect, please reach me at 620.229.6155 or jessica.dibble@sckans.edu.

Go Builders!
